ALLIES TO BEGIN TALKS ON PEACE OUTLINE TODAY

Military Will Patrol Conference Scene.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 20.—Under armed guard, representatives of the world's most powerful nations—the United States, Russia, and Great Britain—will sit around a table in historic Dumbarton Oaks to plan for peace, by force if necessary.

The exploratory conversations will begin tomorrow in the Georgetown mansion after keynote speeches by Secretary of State Hull, soviet Ambassador Andrei A. Gromyko, and Alexander Cadogan, British permanent secretary for foreign affairs.

Military police are to patrol the grounds of the estate, which now is a center for Harvard university research scholars.

Delegates to Be Isolated.

The military will grant entry only to officials and clerks, who bear credentials, except for special occasions, such as the opening session when the press is to be admitted. At other times the delegates will be isolated from the rest of the world by armed guards.

The armed guard means that the deliberations are to be kept secret from Americans and other interested persons. Whatever covenants or basis for covenants are arrived at, they will not be arrived at openly, as the press is to be barred from the conferences.

While the barring of the press was expected to provoke a major controversy, there was some hope political controversy might be avoided thru bipartisan coöperation on security. It was hoped in the state department that John Foster Dulles, named by Gov. Dewey to represent him in foreign policy conferences with Hull during the week, might commit the Republican candidate to support of the conference program.

Two Parallel Discussions.

The peace discussions are to be conducted in two parallel sets, as at Cairo and Teheran, so that Russia and China will not be seated at the same table, because the Reds are not at war with Japan.

Russia, Britain, and the United States will deliberate on plans to be submitted by each nation. Then the United States and Britain will sit down with China in another series of conversations.

The two sets of conferences are expected to draft a post-war security program, which is to be submitted to a wider conference including smaller nations, who evidently are to be given a chance to approve the plan of the larger powers.

The Russian delegation, which is headed by Gromyko, arrived in the capital from Canada during the afternoon. The ambassador returned to his post after consultations in Moscow. He was accompanied by naval and military delegates and five officials of the Russian foreign office, a delegation secretary, and a secretary-interpreter.

Parley Postponed for Week.

The conference was postponed a week at the insistence of the Russian government. Earlier negotiations also were held up on a soviet request for more time to give the problem detailed consideration.

Officials here are hopeful the Russian delays do not mean the Reds

Kimmel Calls Pearl Harbor Story Untrue

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 20.—Real Adm. Husband E. Kimmel, naval commander of Pearl Harbor at the time of the Japanese attack, today asserted the report of the investigating commission headed by Supreme Court Justice Roberts does not contain "the basic truths of the Pearl Harbor catastrophe."

Rear Adm. Kimmel.

The admiral made this statement in a letter to Sen. Truman [D., Mo.] in which he accused the latter of making false statements concerning Kimmel's conduct as commander in chief in the Pacific.

Willing for Court-martial.

In curt language, the admiral demanded that the Democratic candidate for Vice President refrain from repeating charges he made in an article which appeared in Collier's magazine. In the article Truman called for unification of the army and navy command and cited alleged friction between Adm. Kimmel and Maj. Gen. Walter C. Short, army commander at Hawaii Dec. 7, 1941, as an argument for a single command.

In his letter Kimmel reiterated his willingness to have the American people know the facts thru a court martial. The administration has twice extended the court martial deadline, the last time in June, to carry the trial deadline over the election until June 7, 1945.

In addressing the letter to Truman, who is President Roosevelt's running mate, Kimmel was seen as intimating that the delay of his trial is political.

Released by Attorney.

Kimmel's letter was released here by C. B. Rugg of Boston, Mass., his civil attorney. The letter was released by Rugg without comment on the ground that it speaks for itself.

The letter was dated from Kimmel's home at 280 Bronxville road, Bronxville, N. Y. It was addressed to Truman at the senate office building. The text of the letter follows:

"My Dear Sen. Truman:

"In an article appearing under your name in Collier's magazine of Aug. 26, 1944, you have made false statements concerning my conduct as commander in chief of the Pacific fleet at Pearl Harbor prior to the Japanese attack.

"Your innuendo that Gen. Short and I were not on speaking terms is not true. Your statements alleging failure to coöperate and coördinate our efforts are equally false. Gen. Short and I, as well as our subordinates, coördinated the efforts of our commands in close, friendly, personal, and official relationships.

"The real story of the Pearl Harbor attack and the events preceding it has never been publicly told. This has not been my decision. For more than two and a half years I have been anxious to have the American people know all the facts.

Basic Truths Untold.

"The Roberts report, upon which you rely, does not contain the basic truths of the Pearl Harbor catastrophe. This is evident from the fact that no official action has ever been taken upon the basis of that report. The congress of the United States, of which you are a member, has recognized the inadequacy of the Roberts report by directing that the war and navy departments undertake a full investigation of the Pearl Harbor disaster.

"Until I am afforded a hearing in open court, it is grossly unjust to repeat false charges against me, when, by official action, I have been persistently denied an opportunity to defend myself publicly.

Truth Will Be "Amazing."

"I suggest that until such time as complete disclosure is made of the facts about Pearl Harbor, you refrain from repeating charges based on evidence that has never met the test of public scrutiny.

"I ask for nothing more than an end to untruths and half truths about this matter, until the entire story is given to our people, who, I am convinced, will be amazed by the truth.

"I am releasing this letter to the press in the belief that the historic American sense of fair play will approve this action." Very truly yours, [signed] H. E. Kimmel, rear admiral, United States navy.

OPA CURB GLUTS CHEESE MARKET

WFA to Sell Cheddar to Avert Spoiling.

More than half a million pounds of American cheddar cheese in government surplus stocks must be sold to holders of grade certificates to avoid deterioration, the war food administration announced yesterday.

Cheddar cheese, one of the most popular brands with the American public, was not put on the market ration-free in June when other rationed cheese was point-free for two weeks.

Military Demand Satisfied.

The WFA said this cheese would be disposed of as a product no longer needed by the army and navy and that 507,357 pounds of it would be available. Sales will be made on the basis of grade certificates and buyers will have their last opportunity to bid on this supply Sept. 13.

At the time other cheeses were taken off the ration list in June, cheddar and cheddar products and other group 1 cheeses were continued at 10 red points per pound on the ration chart fixed at that time by the office of price administration.

Cheese Now in Storage.

Cheddar cheese covered in the order to be issued by the WFA today is now in refrigeration storage at Philadelphia, Pa.; Syracuse, N. Y.; Erie, Pa.; Albion, N. Y.; Toledo, O., and Scranton, Pa.

At the time other cheeses were taken off the ration list, OPA said it was a temporary action, adopted with WFA approval, because soft cheese stocks would be at their highest level of the year during the two week period.

TOMATOES LEFT TO ROT.

Easton, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—An official of the Tri-State Packers' association said today that at least 100 tons of tomatoes were spoiling in the Maryland eastern shore area last week, and asserted that unless the war food administration took prompt action, even more would be wasted. C. L. Skinner, secretary of the association, said the WFA had been warned last April that its production program would create a surplus of tomatoes that could not be handled by shore canneries. The WFA promised to arrange for movement of any surplus to canneries outside the area, Skinner said, but had done nothing.

Pirie Houseman Chases Maid Into Glencoe Home; Slays Her

Miss Caroline Hamilton, 47, Negro maid employed in the home of Mrs. Gordon L. Pirie, 411 Lakeside ter., Glencoe, was fatally stabbed yesterday by James M. Allen, Mrs. Pirie's Negro houseman, in the home of John J. Yowell, 51 Beach rd., Glencoe, where Miss Hamilton had fled for protection.

Yowell, a member of the law firm of Hummer, Van Ness & Yowell, 69 W. Washington st., was napping in a balcony bedroom in the front of the house and his wife, Mrs. Helen Yowell, was in the kitchen when Miss Hamilton opened the front door and fled inside, screaming, with Allen in pursuit.

Trapped on Balcony Stairs.

She ran up a short flight of stairs to the balcony. Allen caught her at the top and stabbed her repeatedly with a pocket knife.

Yowell, awakened by the commotion, came to the bedroom doorway and ordered Allen to leave. Then he turned back to the bedroom and began loading a revolver.

Mrs. Yowell, running in from the kitchen, saw Allen attacking Miss Hamilton and returned to a room off the kitchen for a shotgun belonging to her son, Kent, 17, head lifeguard at the Glencoe beach.

Running back to the front of the house, she threatened Allen with the shotgun, which was not loaded. As Yowell appeared in the bedroom doorway with a loaded revolver, Policeman Alex Chacharon came in the front door and seized Allen.

Allen told police that Mrs. Pirie loaned him and Miss Hamilton a car with which to drive to the North Shore station on Park av. in Glencoe so that they might spend the afternoon in Chicago. They quarreled, he said, when Miss Hamilton announced her intention of visiting a boy friend on the south side.

Slayer Wounds Himself.

Instead of driving to the station, Allen turned south on Sheridan rd. In the 800 block he stopped the car and began beating Miss Hamilton. Bystanders called police.

When Chacharon arrived, the car had been driven around the corner into Beach rd. Following, Chacharon saw Allen running into the Yowell home in pursuit of Miss Hamilton. Chacharon ran after him, but not in time to save Miss Hamilton's life.

Allen had a knife wound in the leg, apparently inflicted accidentally. The jacknife with which he stabbed Miss Hamilton had a blade at either end, and both blades were open.

GREENWICH HAS NEW QUARTZ CLOCK ONLY 1-1,000 OF SECOND OFF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Greenwich time, which has been recorded heretofore on a traditional pendulum clock at the royal observatory here, soon will be computed on a quartz crystal clock. Harold Spencer, royal astronomer, says the change will revolutionize the measurement of time the world over.

The old pendulum clock was accurate to the degree of 1/100 of a second daily. The quartz crystal clock is accurate to a degree of 1/1,000 of a second daily and it is hoped to reach the accuracy of 1/10,000 of a second per day. This would mean that it would take 2½ years' to lose or gain as much as one second.

The pendulum vibrates once a second. The quartz crystal vibrates 100,000 times in one second, all of which can be recorded electrically.

Farmer Meets Alligator; Rues His Snap Judgment

Salisbury, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—Farmer Ira Givens put up with adverse farming conditions all summer, but advertised his farm for sale when he found an alligator in his chicken yard. It was only after a showman from a carnival came to claim his runaway pet that Givens canceled the ad.

$70,000 DAMAGE LAID TO STRIKE AT JOLIET LINKS

Damage to the two untended Joliet municipal golf courses, where maintenance workers are on strike, was estimated yesterday by Mayor Arthur O. Janke at more than $70,000.

Without crews to sprinkle them, fairways have burned to a crisp brown, the mayor said, and many of the greens have been seared. Mayor Janke, who also is head of the park board, said he has vainly sought permission from the striking union to let a skeleton maintenance crew salvage what it can of the parched courses.

The strike, involving 70 members of the American Federation of Municipal, County, State, and Park Employes [AFL], has been in effect since Aug. 11. The walkout occurred at the outset of a blistering weekend, and evoked complaints from citizens, deprived of their golf courses and the pool at Nowell park. The strike was called, Mayor Janke said, because the park board had not recognized the newly organized union.

Four Planes Lost Due to Enemy Action.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21 (AP).—B-29 Super-Fortresses hammered Japan's home industries in two attacks today—one, the first daylight raid on the enemy homeland since Lt. Gen. James Doolittle's daring swoop on Tokyo more than two years ago.

The 20th air force, announcing Sunday's coördinated day and night attacks, said four planes were reported lost due to enemy action. The Japanese radio had claimed 25 planes out of a total of 77 were destroyed in the first raid.

The army bulletin said 12 Japanese fighters were claimed destroyed and 10 damaged.

Hammer War Industries.

The big bombers struck war industries in the Yawata-Kyushu area. Bombing results on the first attack were reported good with relatively strong fighter opposition. Anti-aircraft fire was described as moderate to intense.

Results of the night mission were not disclosed.

The Japanese broadcasts said the first raid was against five cities on Kyushu, naming Fukuoka, Moji, Kokura, and Yawata, the last a city that had been hit twice previously.

Naval Base Hit.

The Japanese also said that both raids were directed at "northern Kyushu and the western Choguku district," and contended damage was negligible. The German DNB agency and other sources identified "Choguku" as Shikoku, one of the islands east of Kyushu. The OWI identified it as a naval base on the main island of Honshu, northeast of Kyushu.

However, there is a Chokugo district on Kyushu Island in the immediate vicinity of the Kyushu cities named by the Japanese, and it is possible this district was meant.

The 20th air force has acknowledged the loss of only seven Super Fortresses in five previous air assaults on Japan and occupied areas, altho it has indicated other bombers were lost and some damaged.

Seven Planes Lost.

The loss of four planes—two by accident, one by enemy anti-aircraft fire, and one missing—was admitted in the first major raid which struck at Yawata on June 15. Three planes were listed as not accounted for after the Aug. 10 attacks on Palembang, a petroleum center in southern Sumatra, and Nagasaki, a port and manufacturing city on Kyushu.

In the July 29 raids against Anshan, steel city in Manchuria, and Tangku, a port in occupied China, losses were described merely as "light."

The enemy has been reluctant to admit serious industrial harm, but the 20th air force has said on several occasions that "observed bombing results were reported to be good."

Jap Air Force on Halmahera Isle Pulls Out

BULLETIN.

CHUNGKING, Aug. 21 [Monday] —(AP).—A Liberator bomber of the United States 14th air force has sunk a 14,200 ton Japanese cruiser in a sweep off the Chinese coast east of Hongkong, Gen. Stilwell's headquarters announced today. The attack took place Saturday, the announcement said.

GENERAL HDQ., SOUTHWEST PACIFIC, Aug. 21 [Monday]—(AP).—Japanese air forces are withdrawing from Halmahera Island to bases westward beyond allied bomber range, Gen. MacArthur reported in a bulletin today.

"This will make possible an advance westward without the necessity of costly frontal assaults to clear the way," the official pronouncement added.

Halmahera, 200 miles west of New Guinea and 300 miles south of the Philippines, had been under almost daily attack by allied bombers in recent weeks. Nearest major Japanese strongholds west of Halmahera are Celebs and Borneo Islands. Both contain many airdromes as yet untouched by allied bombing.

No Longer a Contest.

The bulletin said:

"The battle for air supremacy [in the Moluccas] is rapidly approaching a definite conclusion.

"Under constant punishment, the enemy is apparently withdrawing his air force to bases further westward, beyond our bomber range. Our air force is continuing its pressure but is finding many enemy air bases nonoperative and others stripped of planes.

"With negligible loss, this interlocking chain of positions which provided flank interdiction to the vital Halmahera-Philippine route is being strategically sterilized and the chain divided into its component links."

A spokesman said the Japanese had abandoned and destroyed some of their Halmahera dromes to prevent use by the allies. He said the Japanese continued to offer anti-aircraft fire.

Nimitz Pounds Island.

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Aug. 20 (AP).—Continued aerial softening of Japanese islands in the Southwest Pacific was reported by the navy today. Nauru Island, southwest of the Marshalls, was bombed twice Thursday and Friday by army and navy planes.

Mili and Wotje Islands in the Marshalls were attacked the same days by marine fighters and bombers.

American Patrols Advance Into Versailles.

Fighting in Streets

NEAR VERSAILLES, Aug. 20 (AP).—A Versailles resident who had left Paris two hours before told American reconnaissance units tonight that street fighting was raging in Paris between French students and Patriots and the Germans. He said there were big fires in various sections of the city. The Germans, he said, were machine gunning demonstrators. He urged Americans to come quickly to the aid of the French.

[The German-controled Paris radio said "irresponsible elements in Paris have taken up arms against occupation authorities. This revolt will be rigorously suppressed. Only a reasonable attitude will make it possible to avoid bloodshed among the innocent and that the city should not suffer damage."]

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SUPREME HD., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Aug. 21 [Monday].—United States tank columns are racing to encircle Paris in a vast pincer movement, according to reports from the front today. They had reached the Seine at points above and below Paris.

To the west, the Germans said, the Americans crossed the Seine river near Mantes and were fighting to widen their bridgehead.

Troops making the frontal attack on Paris were reported to have advance patrols in Versailles within six miles of the Paris limits. Supreme headquarters refused to confirm reports of the presence of American troops in the outskirts of Paris.

One of Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's 3d army armored forces was operating in the vicinity of Corbeil and Melun, 15 and 21 miles southeast of Paris. More Americans were near Fontainbleau, on the Seine 35 miles southeast of Paris.

Links to All Highways.

Melun and Fontainbleau are road junctions about 20 miles apart where all the strategic highways from the north, east, south and southwest to Paris link up.

The possession of both towns would open the way for a possible double allied drive—one northeast toward Soissons and Reims and a second down the main Riviera road thru Lyon to link up with the Riviera invasion forces.

Still other American troops advancing east along the upper Loire river have penetrated to the vicinity of Montargis, well south of Fontainbleau and 20 miles east of Orleans on the highway thru Nevers to Clermont-Ferrand and Marseille.

Meanwhile front line messages said that the British advance east of Falaise threatened to overtake and overwhelm the retreating remnants of the German 7th army.

Armor Aims At Lower Seine.

Powerful allied armored columns were pressing rapidly and almost unchecked toward the lower Seine around the closed Argentan pocket, where the trapped enemy troops were being steadily exterminated.

The American thrust from Dreux to the Seine, which crossed between Mantes and Vernon, cut the German vital water link between Le Havre and Paris. The crossing was made at the point where the enemy had been hastily assembling barges to ferry his fleeing forces across the river. Allied air forces have been pounding the Germans at this point for several days.

The Germans were attempting to cross at from 12 to 20 places between Vernon, 45 miles northwest of Paris, and the sea, 55 miles farther on. They were using pontoons, barges, and anything that would float. At one point where the Seine is 200 yards wide enemy troops were seen swimming the river.

Land Air Borne Troops.

The German official news agency, DNB, asserted that the Americans landed parachute and air borne troops on the east side of the river where they formed a bridgehead which covered the crossing by tanks. The German radio also asserted that allied armor was at Arpajon, 18 miles south of the center of Paris and only eight miles from the Seine.

"American tank forces coming from the area northeast of Chartres and east of Dreux," the enemy radio said, "were halted on the Houdan-Rambouillet-Arpajon-Etampes-Pithiviers line."

British, Canadian, and American troops advanced along the whole front from the sea to a point southeast of the old Argentan pocket where the remaining troops were now herded closely into a box about 5,000 yards square, south of Trun. British headquarters was reported as estimating there are about 40,000 Germans in the trap, representing remnants of 14 divisions and elements of four others. Many prisoners were being taken.

Escape Attempt Fails.

The enemy made a determined attempt to break out of this pocket thru the line running from Trun to Chambois, which was sealed off yesterday. Allied artillery heavily shelled the German concentrations of enemy and armor and the escape attempt broke down.

Southeast of Falaise where a number of fair sized German pockets remained to be mopped up, British reconnaissance units reached Gace on the Alencon-Rouen road, 15 miles beyond Trun. They were pushing rapidly toward the Seine.

In the north allied troops were nearing Vimoutiers, had captured Livaro, and were within six miles of Lisieux. A British force crossed the Dives river, near Dozule, 5 miles southeast of Cabourg on the western side of the river's mouth, Cabourg was being attacked.

One Orderly Retreat.

There was only one place where the Germans were seemingly retreating in good order under the protection of strong and well organized rear guard action. This was in the northern sector between Troarn and Lisieux.

It was emphasized that the units retreating in this area had pulled out of the Caen sector and were making the most skilful use of the hills and wooded areas to cover their withdrawal.

[A Berlin dispatch to Sweden predicted a "swift German retreat on the French front" and indicated the Nazi press was preparing the German people for a withdrawal all the way back to the German frontier.]

It was announced officially that infantry which followed Patton's swift armored columns had mopped up the last resistance around Orleans, south of Paris.

Meet Little Resistance.

Dispatches from near Paris said reconnaissance over a wide area before the capital had uncovered surprisingly little resistance, even in patrols deep into the Orleans gap.

The battle of the Normandy trap, a scene of indescribable chaos, came to a climax when Americans, Poles, and Canadians met at Chambois, sealing off all Germans left fighting around Argentan, which lies seven miles southwest of Chambois.

The Germans were surrendering in such numbers that they were hindering allied movements. Some 3,000 prisoners were taken yesterday.

In fighting into Cabourg the British were bent on silencing big enemy guns which have been harassing allied shipping in the Normandy beachhead area since D-day. They also were threatening to cut off the small port of Houlgate on the south.

Planes Range the Seine.

American Marauder bombers rained explosives on the enemy trying to cross the Seine river while fighter bombers ranged up and down the stream, breaking up pontoon spans, ferries, and barge concentrations.

The 2d tactical and 9th United States air forces struck at the enemy on both banks of the Seine and as far away as the Risle river.

Second tactical air force planes struck at moving transport immediately west of the river, and reconnaissance flights disclosed that the Germans were concentrating every makeshift craft possible in an attempt to save remnants of the army from the new trap.

Temporary spans were seen crossing the Seine from Vernon to the mouth of the river at a point where it is 200 yards wide. All primary bridges large enough for the passage of vehicles had been smashed in the battle area.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Sunday's German war bulletin as broadcast by Berlin and recorded in New York by the Associated Press said:

"In Normandy, our divisions, facing stiff resistance and defending themselves against continuous enemy attacks on their flanks, are fighting their way from the area north of Argentan farther back towards the east.

"In the area northeast and north of Chartres, our buffer formations are fighting advancing enemy forces, which are being reinforced from the southwest.

"Forty-eight enemy aircraft were downed over French territory by anti-aircraft defense.

"Patrol vessels of the German navy, in an engagement with enemy light naval forces north of Le Havre, damaged one enemy destroyer and shot two enemy E-boats aflame. One German vessel was lost.

"Heavy 'V-1' fire continued on London and the outskirts."

Huge American Armored Forces Converge on Paris

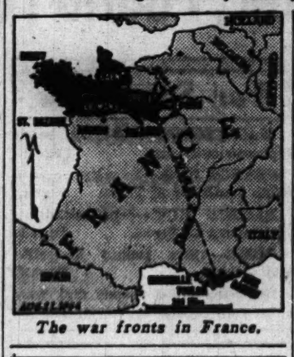
Legends tell yesterday's reported developments in American drive on Paris.



The war fronts in France.

FINDS WOUNDED YANKS TREATED WELL BY NAZIS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 20 (AP).—Wounded American prisoners of war in German hospitals are treated in the same manner as German patients, except that armed guards are posted in prisoners' wards, the American Red Cross said today.

The Red Cross said Swiss representatives of the international committee of the Red Cross are permitted to talk with patients individually, so that unbiased statements as to conditions and treatment are possible.

Most of the wounded Americans in German hospitals, the Red Cross added, are airmen. Red Cross parcels are sent regularly to prisoners in the hospitals as well as to those in camps.

Quake and Tidal Wave Submerge Cocos Island

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica, Aug. 20.—An Argentine vessel while in the vicinity of Cocos Island reported that a seismic oceanic disturbance caused a huge tidal wave which swept over the island and momentarily partially submerged it. In past years the island was famous for numerous treasure hunting expeditions, but is now uninhabited.

U.S. 6TH ARMORED DIVISION LEADER OF BREST SMASH

Take 5,000 Prisoners; Lose Few Men.

U. S. 3d ARMY HDQ. IN FRANCE, Aug. 20 (AP). — The spearhead of the American drive to Brest in a 10 day advance of 250 miles was the 6th armored division, it was officially disclosed tonight.

Under command of Maj. Gen. Robert W. Grow, whose family lives in Washington, D. C., the division led the spectacular drive down the center of the Brittany peninsula which disorganized German defenses in the entire sector.

The "Super 6th" jumped off after passing thru an infantry division near Lessay on July 28 and climaxed its record breaking drive by smashing into the outskirts of Brest on Aug. 7.

Altho it was the division's first combat action, its members exploited their opportunity to the limit, capturing 5,000 Germans, including Lt. Gen. Karl Spang, and killing many hundreds while losing few of their own men.

By-Pass German Elements.

Most of the 6th's tankmen were recruited from New York, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey but it also contains a guard unit from Massachusetts and two from Missouri.

The division by-passed German elements from St. Malo which were trying to attack the tail end of the Americans, while the forward part of the division was bottling up German forces trapped at Brest.

In one engagement Lt. Col. Embro D. La Grew of Lexington, Ky., captured a tank and infantry task force of 530 Germans, and then accepted the surrender of 760 others who came forward under a white flag.

The 6th division's columns moved forward so fast that part of the time they were operating beyond their own locality maps—but they just found a good road to Brest and kept rolling until they got there.

Smashes Thru with Supplies.

They moved so fast the chaotic Nazi forces seeking to escape reentered some communities that the main body of American armor had gone thru.

This made a particularly difficult situation for Lt. Col. Elmer Droste of Mount Olive, Ill., who operated the supply trains that had to keep rations, fuel, and ammunition moving up to the forward tanks. He reinforced his truck supply columns with light tanks and mobile infantry.

The 6th armored division was organized at Fort Knox, Ky., and later stationed at Camp Chaffee, Ark. It participated in Louisiana maneuvers and spent five months in the California desert. It left Camp Cook, Cal., in February for England.

The first elements landed in France on July 17 and were fighting within 24 hours.

VET DIVISION IN ITALY PUT UNDER COMMAND OF CHICAGO GENERAL

ROME, Aug. 20 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Charles L. Bolte of Chicago is commanding the veteran 34th infantry division, it was announced today. Maj. Gen. Charles Ryder, who commanded the division in the North African and Italian campaigns, recently was transferred to new duties.

Maj. Gen. Bolte.

Gen. Bolte's recent duties include service as assistant chief of staff, G-3, 4th corps, special observer in London, chief of staff of the initial American forces in England, assistant division commander 91st infantry division, and commanding general of the 69th infantry division.

ARMOUR TECH GRADUATE.

Maj. Gen. Bolte was born in Chicago May 8, 1895, the son of the late Col. Anson Lee Bolte, former commander of the 1st and 131st infantry regiments of the Illinois National Guard.

He entered the army a few days after graduating from the Armour Institute of Technology, now the Illinois Institute of Technology, in 1917, and emerged from World War I. with the rank of captain.

His wife, Mrs. Adelaide P. Bolte, is the daughter of the late Maj. Gen. Ben Poor. She is in Richmond, Va., with their three children, Philip, David, and Damara.

A brother, E. Endicott Bolte, lives at 6516 Kenwood av.

HORSE TRADERS DO A BUSINESS WITH NAZI AUTO

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN SOUTHERN FRANCE, Aug. 20 (AP). —Lt. Bill Luyt, Jersey City, N. J., "discovered" a sedan abandoned by German generals on D-day. He drove it a few hours and then traded it to Capt. Kenneth Barnaby, East Orange, N. J., for one yellow parachute.

Barnaby tried to ford the river in the car and tore out the undercarriage and damaged the motor. So he traded it to a French unit for one chicken and seven eggs.

When last seen the sedan was being driven by an American lieutenant. Details of the last trade were lacking.

LONE YANK IN A TANK WINS DUEL WITH NAZI 'TIGER'

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 19 [Delayed].—Seven German Tiger tanks last night came trundling trustingly down a road which a few hours before was in German hands. They ran into a bunch of our anti-tank units just itching for such an opportunity.

Pvt. Dale Jennerett, 24, Wheaton, Kas., was the hero of the encounter. He was credited singlehandedly with knocking out one German tank and shooting up one German command car, killing at least five Nazis.

Jennerett was standing beside his Sherman tank, his other crew members absent, when he saw the German tanks. He tried to turn the turret toward them, but found a shell jammed in the mechanism prevented it. So he calmly waited behind a bush until a Tiger tank was about 50 feet away, and then fired his tommygun in an attempt to kill the German tank commander.

One-Man Commando.

The German tank returned his fire with a machine gun and then the crew jumped out. Jennerett jumped back in his tank again, tried to turn the turret, found he couldn't, so he got into the driver's seat, backed into a field and maneuvered until his 75 millimeter gun was pointing at the German tank. Then he climbed back into the gunner's turret, loaded the gun, fired, reloaded, fired again until the German tank was blazing fiercely.

He was aided in the final stages by 1st Lt. Marvin Orgill, Portsmouth, N. H.

Fires on Command Car.

When the Nazi tank was destroyed, Jennerett returned to pick up his tommygun, which he had left with an infantryman. He got back to the road just in time to see a German command car approach.

He cautiously held his fire until he heard the occupants speaking German. Then he opened fire until his ammunition was gone. The command car returned the fire and he retreated, leaving two dead.

Second Death Reported in Tipping of Gangplank

Salem, N. J., Aug. 20 (AP).—A second death was announced and a third person was reported missing today as the state of Delaware opened an investigation into the tipping of a crowded gangplank on a river liner at nearby Riverview Beach yesterday. Fifty-six other persons received hospital treatment after they were rescued from the Delaware river.

Yankee Trader Pays a Visit to Farmers; Gen. Ike Feasts

BY HOWARD COWAN,
[AP war correspondent representing the combined American press.]

SUPREME HDQ., ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, ADVANCED COMMAND POST, NORMANDY, Aug. 20 (AP).—This is to let Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower know that her husband has not lost any weight since he moved to Normandy.

The four star general is eating well. He had fresh blackberry pie for dinner and fresh eggs for breakfast this morning, and it was not because the army breaks its neck seeing that the supreme commander does not go hungry.

The ingenuity of the four star mess crew deserves the most credit. Sgt. Eugene Brandon, Monroe, La., goes hunting for eggs. He tucks his French phrase book under his arm and visits the farmers.

He Has What It Takes.

When he comes back he has usually killed two birds with one stone. His trailer carries eggs, vegetables, butter and cheese, and the farmer who provided them will be around the next day to pick up the garbage. That is the deal.

Sgt. Ludwig Wolfe handles all the pastry. The big curly headed baker from New York serves up hot biscuits, cakes, and doughnuts that melt in one's mouth. He does it mostly with powdered eggs and in a gasoline fed field oven.

It is quite a chore feeding the officers and enlisted men attached to the general's advanced command post.

Water is hauled eight miles. The gasoline dump is 10 miles away. The food supply dump is 12 miles off.

Chicagoan Praises Crews.

Lt. Hugo Landguth, 1438 Addison st., Chicago, said:

"These men work long hours, don't get any time off and don't get a chance to earn any medals.

"There are many tricks to making the food taste good. Take synthetic lemonade.

"We put pulp from oranges in it after we've bleached it a little and you can't tell the difference. We beat up a fresh egg in chocolate and its tastes like that you would get at a soda fountain back home."

The crew includes Sgt. Thomas Briggs, Peoria, Ill.; Pvt. George Mitchell, East St. Louis, and Pvt. Robert Bruse, Bay City, Mich.

REPORT PETAIN STAYS IN VICHY TO CEDE POWER

LONDON, Aug. 21 [Monday].—(AP).—The whereabouts of Marshal Petain of France was a mystery early today. A frontier dispatch to the Daily Mail said he was believed still at Vichy "waiting at the Pavilion de Sevigne to hand over his powers to those who will be called upon to represent the new France."

Claim Maquis Hold Vichy.

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—The Brazzaville radio said today in a broadcast reported by NBC that Maquis forces were in control of Vichy. The broadcast said Gestapo agents had been moved from Vichy and Paris to Nancy.

Report Pyrenees Under Control.

PORT BOU, Spain, Aug. 20 (AP).—The entire Pyrenees region of southwestern France from the Atlantic to the Mediterranean is now either in Maquis hands or under their control, reports reaching here today said.

[A war bulletin by Brig. Gen. Joseph Koenig, commander of the French forces of the Interior, broadcast by the Algiers radio, said French partisans now control one third of France comprising eight departments. The bulletin said that during the week ended Aug. 19 patriots killed 1,821 Germans, wounded 415 and captured 2,265, suffering only slight losses themselves.]

Wallace Denies Promise of Job if F. D. R. Wins

Houston, Tex., Aug. 20 (AP).—Vice President Wallace denied here today he had been assured an important governmental position if President Roosevelt is reelected. When asked if he had been promised such a post, Wallace said "No, I don't know anything about it."

Tropical Storm Hits Jamaica; Moves on Cuba

Miami, Fla., Aug. 20 (AP).—Jamaica was struck by the 60-mile-an-hour winds of a tropical storm today and the federal storm warning service here issued a hurricane alert for the south coast of western Cuba, the Isle of Pines and the Cayman islands. The storm warning service advised precautions against a severe storm which is expected to reach full hurricane force of 75 miles an hour within the next 36 hours.

ALLIES CUT OFF BOTH TOULON AND MARSEILLE

Reach Outskirts of Aix, Big Highways Hub.

ROME, Italy, Aug. 20 (AP).—Vanguards of the allied 7th army in a sweeping drive in southern France have crossed the Durance river at several points and are on the outskirts of Aix-en-Provence, allied headquarters announced tonight. The lightning drive, it was added, has virtually isolated the great city of Marseille and the naval base at Toulon.

French troops of the 7th army were officially reported closing on Toulon after heavy air and naval bombardments of targets in that vicinity.

Aix Controls Seven Roads.

Aix is an important junction of seven roads 15 miles due north of Marseille and between the Mediterranean port and Pertuis. These highways lead straight into the Rhone valley and are the main escape routes for the German forces trapped in Marseille and Toulon.

Headquarters did not reveal exactly where allied spearheads had crossed the Durance, which is a tributary of the Rhone.

Maquis [patriot] forces in a full scale offensive behind the German lines have trapped a German force in the town of Pertuis on the north bank of the Durance, 30 miles north of Marseille.

[The American broadcast station in Europe [ABSIE] said that a correspondent of the French news agency estimated that several hundred thousand allied troops were in southern France "and that French troops make up more than half the force."]

Devers Visits Front.

Allied headquarters said that Lt. Gen. Jacob L. Devers, deputy commander in chief in the Mediterranean and commander of American forces in that theater; Lt. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, allied air commander, and Maj. Gen. John K. Cannon, commander of the United States 12th air force, had visited the invasion area for a first hand survey.

As the generals were returning to a ship some miles out to sea during a German air raid, a bomb fell close to their small boat. It exploded and sent up a water spout that deluged them.

The 7th army in its sweep against relatively weak resistance added to its bag of 12,000 prisoners in five days of invasion, and seized the town of Rians, 15 miles northeast of Aix and 27 miles northeast of Marseille. Barjols, east of Rians, also was captured. Rians is 50 miles from the invaders' point of debarkation.

Combined radio dispatches from the battle front said the Germans were pulling out of Marseille and that Maquis had broken open the city's jail, liberating political prisoners. The French gestapo was said to have left the city but many high Vichy officials still remained.

Big Forces Fan Out.

Overwhelming forces being poured into the beachheads were fanning out in every direction, plunging deep into the maritime Alps in a drive straight north, severing enemy communication lines and liberating hundreds of additional square miles.

The position of stubborn German rearguards at Hyeres, eight miles east of Toulon, seemed untenable with the capture by French Commandos and American tanks of heights on the east.

Other forces were even closer on the north, being only six miles away at Sollies-Pont, but opposition was stiff in front of the naval base.

On the eastern flank, the Americans drove far into the maritime Alps and occupied Castellane, 33 miles northwest of Cannes. La Bastide, 23 miles northwest of Cannes, and Grasse, eight miles northwest, also fell.

"There was no further advance toward Cannes along the coast," an official source said.

Medium bombers and fighters ranged freely over enemy rear positions yesterday, batting down weak attempts at interception by the German air force and knocked out at least 100 enemy vehicles, destroyed a number of locomotives and blew up German gun positions.

Engineers were hurrying air fields to completion.

R. A. F. light bombers last night bombed and strafed enemy transport moving over roads of the Italian Riviera as well as southern France.

641 U. S. Ships in Attack.

The United States navy disclosed that 641 of the total of 1,500 ships and other craft in the assault force that staged the landings in southern France six days ago flew the colors of the United States.

Three principal naval assault forces operating off the new beachhead are commanded by Rear Admirals Frank J. Lowry, Cresson, Tex., Bertram J. Rodgers, Los Angeles, Cal., and Spencer F. Lewis, Calvert, Tex.

Of five naval gunfire support groups, one is commanded by Rear Adm. J. M. Mansfield, British royal navy, in the cruiser Orion, and the others by United States Rear Admirals Lyal A. Davidson, Davenport, Ia.; Theodore E. Chandler, Washington, D. C., Carleton F. Bryand and M. L. Deyo, who directed a force at Cherbourg.

Rear Admirals Thomas Troubridge, royal navy, in H. M. S. Royalist, and Calvin T. Durgin, United States navy, were listed as commanding the group of aircraft carriers participating in the operations.

[Germany's radioed war report said yesterday:

"In southern France, the enemy, with an array of strong tank forces, is trying to widen his bridgehead toward the flanks and toward the north. Embittered fighting is going on, especially in the mountain valleys north of Toulon."]

Developments yesterday in the advance in southern France.

BRAZILIAN FORCES PART OF 5TH ARMY FIGHTING IN ITALY

ROME, Aug. 20 (AP).—The Brazilian expeditionary force under Gen. Joao Batista de Moraes Mascarenhas has become a part of the 5th army in Italy, it was announced today. It was thus clear that the Brazilians will not for the present participate in the French operations. The 5th army front on the banks of the Arno in the Tyrrhenian coastal area has been comparatively quiet for the last two weeks.

Polish troops on the Adriatic sector of the Italian front have advanced more than three miles, reaching the towns of Gabrielli and Mondolfo, allied headquarters said today.

Some enemy shells fell in Florence yesterday, but otherwise the Tuscan capital, where snipers have been active for several days, was quiet.

[The Berlin radio said a major attack was launched yesterday on the Adriatic side. The Germans, the broadcast said, were forced to withdraw in one area.]

ITALY BOMBERS RAID OIL PLANTS IN POLISH SILESIA

LONDON, Aug. 20 (AP).—British based heavy bombers were held on the ground by unfavorable weather today, but Italian based heavies attacked oil refineries in Polish Silesia and Slovakia as well as targets in Hungary. The German radio said the bombers from Italy were 1,000 strong, with fighter escort, and said they attacked Szolnod and Szeged, Hungary, and penetrated southwestern Germany.

Few Foes to Shoot Down.

ROME, Aug. 20 (AP).—Mediterranean air force planes shot down only 21 enemy planes in the week ended yesterday, despite the opening of a full scale invasion. The low score was brought about by the lack of German planes in the air.

The MAAF set an all time record for this theater on D-day for the southern French invasion, flying 4,285 sorties, an average of three planes per minute over southern France thruout the day.

Betty Hutton Stops Here and Looks Around, Too

CHICAGO YANKS SEEM TO CROWD ROADS TO PARIS

BY ROBERT CROMIE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 3D ARMY ON THE ROAD TO PARIS, Aug. 19 [Delayed].—I've been stumbling over Chicagoans every time I turned around.

Pvt. John A. Gura, 26, whose sister, Mrs. Celia Florek, lives at 265 W. 104th st., was sound asleep in the central square in the town of Dreux, but his ardent admirers weren't sleeping. Corp. Joseph Malvestuto of Philadelphia, Pa., and Sgt. Sam Angelo of Sheepshead Bay, Brooklyn, found out I was the Tribune correspondent and began telling me about Gura, who is an aidman to their anti-tank unit.

Pvt. John A. Gura.

Capt. Victor Markov.

"He deserves a lot of praise, that guy," they said. "He's got lots of guts and goes right up in there. One day when we were ambushed near St. Aigne, another unit's medics couldn't get to them, so Gura went in and pulled the guys out of half tracks and saved a lot of lives. He amputated a German guy's arm, too, to try to save his life, but the fellow died."

Picks Up Hitch-hiker.

He also gave the last rites to an American Catholic boy who was dying. Gura says he is scared, hates to see our boys hurt, but it is his job, so he does it.

"Tell 'em our boys have confidence in him, sir," Malvestuto said.

Yesterday on the road to Orleans we saw Pvt. Robert Jacobs, 3301 Cortland st., Chicago, who rides a medium tank. Then we picked up Pvt. Morris Goldstein, 2226 Winona st., Chicago, who was hitch hiking into Le Mans after dark.

Others from Chicago or the midwest we met today were:

First Lt. Armund Schoen of the Shoreland hotel, who was in the auto business in Chicago and now is in the business of keeping armored groups' equipment in running order. He has been abroad six month and said, "It's swell to meet some one from the home town."

Meets Three in Chartres.

Others were Pvt. Edward J. Pachnik, Saginaw, Mich., who was working on a map in the depot where we stopped to get a road map; Lt. Fred Forsgren, 2739 Montclare av., Chicago, a tank commander, Corp. Wilfred Fritz, Hinsdale, Ill., former attorney, Capt. Victor Markov, 6722 S. Artesian av., Chicago, Pvt. Sam Shapiro, 37 S. Central Park av., Chicago, Sgt. Russell R. Risdon, 1039 North Shore av., Chicago, and three lieutenants we met in Chartres during a German counter-attack.

They were Fred Pope, former editor of the Daily Illini at the University of Illinois, whose wife Wilma lives in Virginfield, Ill.; Harold Burns, 1707 W. 66th st., formerly with the Freer Trucking company, and Arthur W. Hunt, 2106 S. Wesley av., Berwyn, Ill., who formerly played tenor sax with Ted Weems and his band and also played professional baseball in Tulsa, Okla. The latter two showed me some photographs, and two cuter kids I've never seen.

IN ARMY FOUR YEARS.

Pvt. Gura, who enlisted in the army in 1940, attended Fenger High school and was employed as a civilian by the Chicago Malleable Steel company's West Pullman plant. A nephew, Pvt. Ray Florek, son of the sister with whom he resided, is with the army in New Guinea.

Capt. Victor W. Markov, 28, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Christ Markov, 6722 S. Artesian av. A graduate of Lindblom High school, he was captain of the 1938 All-Star football team when it met the Washington Redskins in Soldiers' field. He won three football letters at the University of Washington.

HOW MACARTHUR CLUNG TO HOPE FOR SOME HELP

Finally Sends Plea for Just 3 Planes.

[Gen. Douglas MacArthur and his gallant forces on Bataan and Corregidor waited in vain for help while endless streams of supplies poured across the Atlantic. How MacArthur felt about it is told here by his intimate friend, Frazier Hunt, famous war correspondent. This article is one of a series condensed from Hunt's forthcoming book, "MacArthur and the War Against Japan."]

BY FRAZIER HUNT.

[Copyright: 1944: By Chas. Scribner's Sons.]

On Corregidor, blasted daily by bombs, MacArthur was not only worried about our own desperate situation but he watched with heavy heart the disastrous turn of events in British Malaya. The native peoples of this part of the world were making little or no effective effort to help their white masters in the hour of peril. Only in the Philippines were the natives loyal and eager to fight.

On Jan. 31 word came that the last of the British forces had been overrun in the once heavily held Malayan peninsula. Only the vast fortress of Singapore still remained to be captured. British leaders long before had pledged Washington that Singapore and Malaya could hold indefinitely, and be kept as a base for operations to relieve the Philippines. This guarantee unquestionably had much weight in the grave decision to throw the whole might of American arms into the European scene, at the almost complete neglect of American honor and duty in the Philippines.

Situation Grows Perilous.

MacArthur's code dispatches to Washington had long before given complete details and plans of the secret air fields and strips for fighters that might be flown in from carriers and then sent on northward from Mindanao. In anticipation of help air field construction continued by our engineers until April.

A bomber and air transport route all the way from Australia was still open and usable. There was little doubt that aircraft carriers could readily steam within 500 miles of Mindanao, shoot off their fighters, and the planes work their way by the secret air strips up to Bataan. MacArthur's position was becoming perilous, and he could not understand why no word reached him of an attempt at relief.

Flowing eastward from the United States were streams of planes and ships, men and supplies, all heading across the Atlantic for the distant European theater. Convoys bound for Murmansk, North Russia, lost up to 80 per cent of their ships. Yet they continued to be sent. There was no dearth of courage or paucity of enterprise there in the Atlantic. Surely American responsibility to the Philippines would not be totally ignored merely because the odds were heavy and the enterprise bold and dangerous?

Laugh in Face of Danger.

It was fortunate that the Japanese were now jamming the air whenever American broadcasts gave out their glowing reports of the mighty output of American factories; of the thousands of planes and tanks and guns being built; of ships and men-of-war sliding down the ways in a score of great shipyards.

As the American air armadas flew eastward thru the mists and uncertainties of the North Atlantic, it became a grim joke for the men on Bataan and Corregidor to say: "They're pulling a Corrigan on us. They're heading the wrong way." And when the broadcast came that the west coast had been shelled by an enemy submarine, MacArthur with acid humor turned to Chief of Staff Sutherland and said, "Dick, you might wire them that if they will hold on for a month we will bring them help." The grapevine carried his words to the men in the foxholes and the battery pits, and that night they roared their laughter. Men about to die in battle are like that.

Morale at times was endangered. In one low period, way back in middle January, MacArthur had felt the necessity of giving out a statement for the men to hold on, that help would be coming soon. It had been of immense value. Senior officers were spending no small part of their time assuring their tired, discouraged troops that America certainly would not fail them. Nowhere else but here were Americans being actually attacked, their sovereignty invaded, their flag dragged in the dust and fouled. Surely there would be some effort made to send help.

Bad News Received.

Feb. 15 was marked in black letters on all the calendars on the Rock. The mighty fortress of Singapore fell that day. And on to the southward the defenders of the Netherlands Indies were being beaten down and overwhelmed.

Long before these trying days of middle February, Maj. Gen. Brereton had taken his dwindling force of Flying Fortresses south to Australia for necessary overhauling and repairs. The Forts had proved their worth time and again. Capt. Colin Kelly, flying up from Mindanao, had alone and unaided put out of action a Jap battleship. Other Forts had done valiant work. But Brereton's forces never returned. They were detached from MacArthur and sent to Java under the command of Wavell.

Talented Brig. Gen. Harold H. George, commander of the pursuits, had long husbanded his swiftly disappearing little group of fighters. In pairs they had harassed the enemy's landings and reconnoitered his positions; these resourceful flying men had even tied bombs on their fuselages and sunk ships. In tiny formations they had fought whole squadrons of fast Zeros and made their marks.

But always it was a hopeless game. By the end of February Gen. George could muster only two or three of his original 72 P-40s and P-35s. In addition he had the strangest air fleet that ever cut thru the blue skies. It was known as the "Bamboo Fleet," because the two or three old and worn out training and reconnaissance planes of the original Philippine air force that composed it were literally tied together with bamboo and wire and glue.

When the last plane was put out of action, MacArthur desperately pleaded for reconnaissance replacements. "Just three planes," he begged George, "so that I can see." And when he realized they would not arrive there was bitterness for the first time in his voice when he said to his staff, "You can't fight them, if you can't see them. I am now blind."

Time was crowding down on MacArthur and his men. The general still could not believe that he had been actually abandoned. For here were the reports that great masses of American troops had been landed in Ireland. Here were the stories of a bridge of bombers thrown over the 3,000 miles of ocean separating North America from England. New sea fleets were taking to the waters. North Russia, at the end of a long and dangerous sea road, was receiving hundreds of shiploads of guns, tanks, planes, food, and military supplies of every kind.

Hope Still Lingers On.

Ships were sent all the way around Africa to deliver help thru the distant Red sea and Persian gulf. American carriers boldly sailed thru the sub-infested Mediterranean to run the gantlet of the land based bombers of the axis in Sicily, so they might fly their planes to hard pressed British Malta. Surely they would get relief to our own men and our own brothers here in the Philippines. Surely they would not be abandoned to their fate.

On Feb. 2 a messenger hurried from the code center with a secret telegram for MacArthur. He was shocked when he read it. President Roosevelt ordered him to leave Corregidor at once, and proceed to Melbourne, Australia, to assume command of the Southwest Pacific area. He could hardly believe his eyes. It was a promotion, it was true, and a much larger and more important command.

Yields to Higher Orders.

He paced up and down as he made his decision. For the first time in his life he would refuse to obey a lawful order. Quietly he wrote out a blunt refusal, and then called in his senior officers to explain the situation. They unanimously disagreed with him. What good would be his insubordinate message? He would get a reprimand at best and another order to obey the first order without delay. If he persisted there could be but one result. He would be directed to turn over the command and face an inevitable court-martial.

Stubbornly these trusted friends argued that obviously he had been selected to lead a rescue force back, and all begged him to go at once. The local situation was not too bad. He still had 17,000 American troops, 10,000 Scouts, and 55,000 Filipinos. With care the food would last well into June. There was still ammunition available. They might well hold out until he could return.

He tore up his first reply, and on Feb. 24 wired Washington that he had plans and commitments that would delay his departure. For the first and only time in his life he hedged. Washington replied that he should leave as soon as possible. Again he delayed. On March 10 came another peremptory order. He was urgently needed in the new command without delay.

EYES SHOT OUT, YANK BATTLES CHARGING JAPS SINGLE HANDED

AITAPE, New Guinea, Aug. 20 [Delayed]—(AP).—Just before he died Pvt. George Klym, of Gorham, N. D.—blind and comatose Yank soldier—pulled on the sleeve of a battalion hospital corpsman and said: "Don't move me. Just show me where to shoot."

With that the world of war slipped from him. The corpsmen covered his face and went on to the next case.

Klym, standing midnight watch in a foxhole outpost, fought off a Japanese banzai charge with an automatic rifle single handed until the rest of the outfit was aroused and joined him to repulse the attack. All the Japanese could see was the blazing muzzle of Klym's gun, so they charged at it. The brave soldier took their fire, stood his ground and pumped bullets into the charging Nipponese. They shot out both his eyes and still he stood and fired. He was still firing when he went down.

Demands Italy Retain Her Colonies After War

ROME, Aug. 20 (AP).—Count Carlo Sforza, Italian minister without portfolio, demanded today that the allies permit Italy to retain her colonies after the war unless the other nations are willing to give up theirs and place them under an international administration. Sforza, who spoke at a public meeting attended by Premier Ivanoe Bonomi and members of his cabinet, apparently did not include Ethiopia or the Dodecanese Islands in Italy's colonial claims.

GERMANS FIRE ON FLAG OF TRUCE ON U. S. VESSEL

WITH A NAVAL TRUCE PARTY OFF CAPE GIENS, Aug. 18 [Delayed]—(AP).—German shore batteries opened fire at point blank range on a white truce flag today after permitting its approach almost to the gun muzzles.

Commanded by Lt. Col. William C. Baxter, Baltimore, Md., the truce party was approaching the harbor of Porquerolle to demand the island's unconditional surrender when 88 mm. guns opened fire on the torpedo boat. Two large white flags were prominently displayed on the deck.

Lt. Lon C. Hill, Winnetka, Ill., who commanded the torpedo boat, coolly swung her in a sharp arc and headed back thru the narrow channel marked on the way in. He kept her on the course while 88s thumped in a pattern 50 yards to starboard.

Report Exiled Poles Soon to Offer Coalition Plan

LONDON, Aug. 20 (AP).—The Polish government-in-exile here is drafting suggestions for settlement of the Russian-Polish dispute, which probably will be delivered to Premier Stalin within a week, it was disclosed today. The offer is expected to contain a proposal for a government to include the Moscow-backed Polish national liberation committee with the decision on Poland's post-war frontiers deferred until the end of the war.

CHICAGO FLYERS LEAD ATTACK ON TOULON WARSHIP

Score Direct Hits on Strasbourg.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Aug. 20.—Two Chicagoans led the wave of B-25 Mitchell bombers which scored direct hits on the French battleship Strasbourg and sank a submarine and a cruiser in Toulon harbor Friday.

Lt. R. W. Joyce.

Capt. F. M. Furey.

They told today of their most successful mission against enemy shipping achieved in the face of terrific and accurate anti-aircraft fire.

Capt. Frank M. Furey, 25, of 4510 N. Ashland av., was pilot on the lead ship in the formation and Lt. Robert W. Joyce, 23, of 302 N. Menard av., was in that plane as lead bombardier. Furey's co-pilot was his group commander, Col. Richard H. Smith, 704 S. Lynn st., Champaign, Ill.

The Strasbourg, a 26,500 ton war vessel, was torpedoed by allied planes in July, 1940, and then moved to Toulon. She was partially scuttled by the French in November, 1942, but the Germans were able to use her 14 inch guns to shell our troops advancing on Toulon Friday. Right near her were a 7,600 ton cruiser of the La Galissonniere class and a submarine.

Ordered to Stop Fire.

"We were ordered to stop that shelling and do something about those ships," Furey told me. "And we came in from the sea on the target just after noon. We had to go thru lots of mist. There was another Mitchell wave ahead of us but its lead ship was partially crippled by ack-ack and they were unable to get their bombs away."

"So our bombs were the first which hit," Joyce carried on the narrative. "Each ship in our formation had four 1,000 pound bombs and if you'll pardon my using a new phrase 'we dropped our eggs square on the target.'

"We estimate eight direct hits on the Strasbourg and she was aflame in three places. We smacked her turret and her guns stopped firing. We sank the cruiser and the submarine with some of our other bombs."

45 Holes in Plane.

Furey said fierce flak came up from 90 millimeter guns on shore and from ack-ack batteries on the vessels in the harbor. One big piece of flak whizzed inches past Furey's head and there were 45 holes in his ship, 23 of them in the nose, where Joyce presides over what he calls the bombardier's "greenhouse."

"Two other waves of Mitchells came over after us to add to the wreckage in the harbor," Furey said. "Most of the ships in four formations had flak holes in them but all came back safe."

This was the first flight for these Chicagoans over Toulon but on D day they were with air force units which provided support for infantry on the beaches near St. Raphael. Joyce has 48 missions and Furey 42. The latter attended De Paul university and Joyce the University of Chicago.

FRENCH PLEAD TO KEEP BODY OF SLAIN CHUTIST

DRAGUINAN, France, Aug. 18 [Delayed].—(AP).—Lt. James Brown of Waco, Tex., stopped in this southern French town today to pick up the body of the one man killed in his group of parachutists on D-day.

The body was not at the French hospital where he had left it. A French doctor led him to the church, where half the town was gathered to file past four flower-banked caskets containing the bodies of the American and three French Partisans who had been killed in the battle for Draguinan.

The people urged the lieutenant not to move the American's body, the doctor explaining, "we'd like to keep him here, and when the war is over we will build a monument for him. He belongs in Draguinan." The lieutenant explained removal was an army order and rounded up four soldiers and carried out the body, including Corp. Joe Fowler and Pvt. Raymond Dewees, both of Evansville, Ind. As the procession passed thru the streets, Frenchmen snapped to attention and many women wept.

FIRST YANKS HIT NAZIS 15 DAYS BEFORE H-HOUR

AN ADVANCED AMERICAN OUTPOST IN SOUTHERN FRANCE, Aug. 20 (AP).—Capt. Mills Brandes pointed mournfully at his feet, encased in bedroom slippers, and ruefully explained that the only hard part about being in southern France doing advance work two weeks before H-hour on D-day was that his shoes did not last long.

The husky Sandusky, O., officer parachuted in with 14 of his squad 15 days before invasion day in order to consolidate Patriot activities inland from the beachhead. In addition the group cut communications and ambushed Germans.

Everything went well, the captain said today as he and his men got in touch with advancing beachhead forces, except that running up and down mountains and over rocks and thru streams wore out their shoes.

High Praise for Maquis.

Outside of that, Brandes wanted to talk most about "the wonderful job" the Maquis patriots did in organizing resistance and preparing the way for the arrival of the Americans. He said the Maquis were waiting when he, Lt. Carl Strand of Spokane, Wash., and the 13 others parachuted down.

"When anything was needed," he added, "they fixed us up."

These 15 advance invaders trained for a year in the United States, North Africa, and Sicily for the operation. They learned skiing, guerrilla fighting, knife work, foreign weapons, and languages.

Their chief job was chopping up the enemy's transportation and communication facilities along the Napoleonic highway running north from the coast near Cannes and highway 96 extending northward from Marseille. It was along these routes that German army supplies were carried south and they were important to the Nazis as retreat routes.

Brandes and his men put up several ambushes along the Napoleonic highway and cut railroad and highway bridges over the Durance river at several places. Daily they reported back to Algiers headquarters by radio.

The squad included Corp. Morice Gross of Iowa, who handled the radio, and Sgt. Eugene Dinet of Joliet, Ill.

IN FRANCE FOR YEAR

BY JOSEPH DYNAN.

[Associated Press war correspondent representing the combined American press.]

WITH ALLIED FORCES IN SOUTHERN FRANCE, Aug. 19 [Delayed]—(AP).—It was disclosed today that the American and French general staffs maintained regular plane and parachute communications with Maquis patrols for more than a year before the invasion.

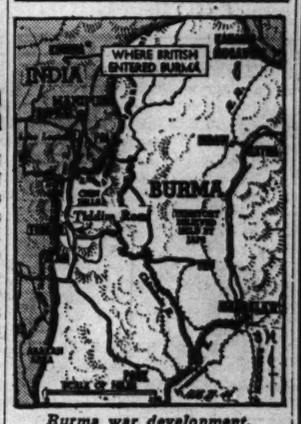
As early as September, 1943, Gen. Henri Giraud's staff established plane routes to the interior of southern France. French officers dropped by parachute to help organize and direct the Maquis movement.

French and allied planes flew in equipment for the Maquis and in the last few weeks huge supplies of British Bren guns were dropped by parachute.

The patriots leveled an air field large enough for C-47 transport planes to ferry in key personnel and to bring out detailed maps. The planes operated only in clear weather under a full moon.

Intelligence service was so exact that officers said no German units which had not been expected were encountered by the invaders.

Invade Burma



Burma war development.

SOUTHEAST ASIA HDQ., KANDY, Ceylon, Aug. 20 (AP).—Two British 14th army columns have by-passed the last knot of Japanese resistance along the Tiddim road a mile north of the Burma frontier in the Indian state of Manipur, and stabbed a mile into Burma, a bulletin from Mountbatten's headquarters said today.

Inside India the Japanese still were resisting in a disorganized manner. The new advance into Burma is by a larger operational force equipped to hold the territory, a spokesman said, and not merely an advance element.

Capture Hill Position.

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 20 (AP).—Supported by United States 14th air force planes, Chinese troops stormed and captured Laotungpo, a strongly fortified hill position southeast of the Burma road city of Lungling, and inflicted 130 casualties on the enemy, the Chinese high command said today. Chinese troops in Yunnan province now hold all necessary positions to launch an attack on Lungling.

RUSSIANS ADMIT GAIN BY NAZIS IN LATVIA CORRIDOR

Baltic Fleet Shells Foe, Berlin Claims.

LONDON, Aug. 21 [Monday]—(AP).—Moscow's war bulletin early today admitted Russian troops had been forced yesterday by the Germans to yield ground southwest of Riga, capital of Latvia, Berlin said a force of several cruisers had shelled the Russians in this area.

The German attack took place near Jelgava on the west side of the corridor the Russians have driven to the gulf of Riga west of Riga. The corridor has cut off in Estonia and Latvia a German force estimated at 200,000.

Moscow said the Germans made 20 counter-attacks that cost them 2,000 dead, but admitted the Russians had withdrawn from several populated places.

Big Tank Fights Rage.

One hundred and forty-four German tanks and self-propelled guns were knocked out, Moscow said. It added that some of the biggest tank battles of the war were raging on the eastern front and that 1,500 German tanks had been wrecked in the last nine days.

East of Riga, Moscow said, Russian troops drove to within 55 miles of the city with the capture of Ergli on the Madona-Riga railway. This represented a 22 mile advance west of Madona. Seventy places were captured.

The Russian bulletin said German SS [elite guard] forces made 20 attacks east and northeast of Warsaw. Here the Russians were reported within sight of Warsaw and were trying to drive a wedge between it and East Prussia. Moscow said the Russians absorbed the attacks, killed 900 Germans and captured several localities.

Trapped Nazis Liquidated.

One hundred and ten miles below Warsaw, Moscow said, the Russians liquidated Germans trapped in the encirclement of Sandomierz and advanced to take eight more localities. The number of trapped Germans had been estimated at 15,000.

In northern Lithuania, the Russians beat off German attacks in the Siauliai area, Moscow said.

In Estonia, 3d Baltic army drove to within seven miles of Tartu on the Tallinn-Riga railway. Moscow said 150 localities were overrun.

Berlin reported a Red army had begun a large-scale attack on both sides of Iasi, Romania.

A bulletin issued in Bucharest told for the third straight day of Soviet attempts to cross the lower Dnestr river in the area between Tiraspol and the Black sea.

Moscow's bulletin made no mention of the Romanian front, nor did it report on the battle for East Prussia.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

Berlin's broadcast war bulletin yesterday said:

"In the southern sector of the eastern front the enemy, after heavy artillery fire, made numerous unsuccessful attacks between the Dnestr and the Seret.

"In the Vistula bridgehead west of Baranow our divisions were engaged in heavy defensive fighting the whole day. They eased their situation by counter-attacks.

"In the bridgehead southeast of Varka, enemy attacks, supported by tanks and battleplanes, were repelled in hard fighting.

"Northeast of Warsaw the soviets yesterday, despite of fresh forces brought up, were able to gain only insignificant ground.

"Embittered fighting is still in progress on both sides of Vilkaviskis as well as south of Shaken. Renewed soviet attempts to break thru were foiled.

"At the Latvian front embittered fighting with Russians who have broken into German lines is raging west of Modon.

"In Estonia, strong soviet pressure is maintained west of Lake Pskov, without the enemy having succeeded in gaining major ground."

SIX TENANTS ARE KILLED AS ROBOT CRASHES FLATS

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 21 [Monday].—Six persons were killed and a number injured when a flying bomb hit the top floor of a block of flats in southern England yesterday. Pieces of masonry and showers of glass fell into the streets, injuring passersby. Buildings near-by also were damaged.

Five others were killed by robots including two Canadian soldiers.

Early today, after a lull of several hours, the Germans sent more flying bombs over the channel.

Return from Shelters.

Many residents of the flats were sleeping when the bomb fell. Others, after spending the night in shelters, had returned to their flats for breakfast.

Miss Ada Hopper, who was crossing a square in front of the flats, said she took cover in a doorway when the bomb came over and escaped injury. One man standing outside said: "I think my daughter must still be in there. I just slipped down to get a newspaper."

Americans Praised.

One occupant of a flat said: "Everything in my room was smashed. I took cover behind a sofa and the soles of my shoes were cut right off."

Everywhere the warmest praise was expressed for aid given by American soldiers. They helped clear up the glass and masonry in the streets. They also assisted in moving injured to hospitals.

Mussolini Takes Over Command, Say Nazis

ONE MAN ANZIO ARMY GIVEN BIG WELCOME BY HOME TOWN FOLK

Spring Mount, Pa., Aug. 20 (AP).—The "one-man army of Anzio" received his official welcome home today, and most every one in the Perkiomen valley opined he "never saw anything like it."

Pvt. A. W. Knappenberger.

The hero, Pvt. 1st Class Alton W. Knappenberger, the 120 pound boy who won the congressional medal for holding off two companies and slaying 60 Germans on the Italian beachhead, said, "This is terrific."

More than 800 members of 27 firefighting units in the valley turned out with sirens blowing to lead the parade while farmers and villagers poured into town to see "the army" ride by in a coupe, his arm around his fiance, Ruth Eichoff, whom he will marry Saturday.

Ruth was wearing a diamond that Knappenberger bought with contributions from neighbors who heard a pickpocket took all his money, $150, the day before he sailed from Naples.

"Al is my ideal," Ruth said. "Sure was nice of these folks to do this."

After the wedding Knappenberger will return to duty.

4 YANKS AIDED BY 25 FRENCH K. O. 150 NAZIS

ORLEANS, France, Aug. 20 (AP).—Two United States army civil affairs officers and two enlisted men beat the infantry into this city and with the aid of 25 French patriots killed or wounded 150 Germans who were among the last enemy units fleeing southward across the Loire river.

Today, four days after they helped drive the last German out, they had the city functioning again in orderly fashion with adequate water and enough electricity for key services. "It sure wasn't orderly the day we came in," said Capt. George L. Schnieder, 31, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The other officer, Capt. Lawrence W. Brady of Los Angeles, suffered slight leg wounds, and a number of the French patriots were killed or wounded. Schnieder and the two American enlisted men, Sgt. Francis J. Harrington of Troy, N. Y., and Corp. Paul D. Bahr of Salt Lake City, were unharmed in the three and a half hour battle.

NAZI OFFENSIVE AGAINST RUSSIA POSSIBLE: LANZA

Says Allies Should Push Campaign in France.

BY COL. CONRAD H. LANZA.

[Regular contributor to the Field Artillery Journal and recognized as an authority on military matters.]

The new German chief of staff has had time to do something to indicate that he can handle the situation better than his precedessors. Col. Gen. Guderian took charge on July 21. He seems to have promptly decided to stop the Russians first, and while doing so to remain on the defensive in Italy and France. Except as to Italy, this is the reverse of the previous policy, which was to continue on the defensive in Russia, while crushing the allies in France.

There seems to be no doubt that the Russians have been nearly stopped. In the last week substantial Russian gains were limited almost entirely to Estonia and Latvia, from Germany.

Gain 40 Miles in Estonia.

In Estonia an advance of more than 40 miles was accomplished westward from the Pskov area, and about half as much farther south opposite Riga. Still, the Russians reported that on July 29 they were only 17 miles from Riga. The situation seems to have remained unchanged.

On Aug. 3, the Russians were within eight miles of Warsaw. Local German attacks have pushed the Russians back a few miles.

In two or three weeks the Russians have been unable to capture either of the important cities of Riga or Warsaw.

The Germans are on the offensive in Lithuania, where they have made minor gains. There have been other small successes elsewhere. Lastly the Finns are on the offensive. They report they recently annihilated two Russian divisions north of Lake Ladoga.

From Moscow comes a report that it is no longer expected there that the overthrow of Germany will be completed this year.

Picture Not Complete.

The reports as to the situation on the Russian front are incomplete. The general impression given is that Guderian has reënforced his front, commencing with the sectors nearest to Germany. In some cases the reënforcements have been large enough to undertake limited offensives. The Estonia sector, the Russians report, is getting some reënforcements. All German offensives so far have been to improve the line locally.

The present front in Russia is favorable for a large scale German offensive. The general belief is that the Germans do not have troops available to engage in such a venture. Nobody knows just how many troops Germany has. Nor is it known how many troops the Russians have.

It is wrong to assume that Russian numbers are unlimited. There is a limit. Prime Minister Churchill in his speech Aug. 2 in the house of commons said that all the Russian armies were engaged. If this was meant as a statement of fact it would indicate that the Russian effort is at its maximum.

Seek Red Decision.

The situation in France will be another important factor. Present indications are that the Germans have abandoned the idea of attacking Gen. Eisenhower's troops. They seem prepared to abandon most of France, but must of course defend Germany.

The present German policy seems to be to seek for a decision on the Russian front before it becomes necessary to engage in a frontier battle on the west to defend Germany herself. This makes it important for the allies to push the campaign in France so as not to allow the Germans time to accomplish anything in Russia. Perhaps the Russians do not need any help. Still it is better not to take unnecessary risks in war. The faster the progress made, the sooner the decision will come.

The Inquiring Camera Girl

BY MARYON ZYLSTRA

[The Tribune will pay $5 for each interesting question submitted by a reader and used by The Tribune. Today's question was submitted by Betty Nelson, 8047 Vernon av.]

THE QUESTION.

Did the first girl to whom you proposed accept you?

WHERE ASKED.

Aragon ballroom. [Asked of Eddy Howard and his orchestra.]

THE ANSWERS.

Robert E. Lee, saxophone, New Lawrence hotel—I dated a girl for three weeks and decided right then that she was the girl for me. I went with her for three years before I popped the question. She accepted but we couldn't marry for a couple of years because I was traveling and we waited until we could settle down.

Sid Commings, trumpet, 800 Washington st., Evanston — The first girl I proposed to went to the same school as I did. All during school I had my eye on her but she went with another guy. When she started going to college I dated her. When I asked her to marry me three years later she didn't hesitate.

Hil Badtke, pianist, 917 Washington st., Evanston — Yes, the first girl I asked to marry me accepted. I met her on Aug. 14, 1936, and we were married on Aug. 14, 1937. She was the only girl I had ever been the least bit serious about. I knew the minute I saw her that she was the girl I wanted to marry.

Billy Baer, pianist, 911 Washington st., Evanston — I've proposed to only one girl and she accepted. I did it via long distance telephone. I was working in Rhode Island and she was working on a newspaper in Milwaukee. We arranged our wedding at once. I had gone with her five years and knew she'd say "yes."

Roy Bast, saxaphone, 804 Seward st., Evanston—My wife was the first and only girl I ever asked to marry me. When she accepted my proposal I suggested that we elope. I think if she would have said "Yes" I would have backed out because I wasn't ready to marry her. We were married a year later in a church wedding.

Eddy Howard, 612 N. Michigan av. —Definitely no! I was 17 the first time I proposed to a girl. I was playing in San Francisco at the time. The girl refused because I'd known her for only three weeks and she said we were too young to get married anyway. She said she loved me but thought we should finish school first.

NAZI RETREAT TO 1939 LINE SEEN BY EXPERT

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 20.—Gen. J. F. C. Fuller, foremost British military expert, discussing the present situation of the German army in Europe and particularly in France, today expressed the conviction that it would be "strategically unsound" for the German high command to try to continue to hold France at all after having failed to hold the allies in Normandy and with little prospect of doing so on the French Riviera.

He believes that the Germans will fall back slowly on the old 1939 front, and says that since this front is nearly 500 miles long, they will shorten it eventually by swinging their right back to the northern half of the Siegfried line.

Machine Power to Win.

In view of Germany's dwindling man power, Fuller believes that Hitler's problem is to fight for time while it is up to the allies to fight against time with increasing machine power.

He states in an article in the Sunday Pictorial that in the end machine power is bound to win provided political conditions remain what they are. He wonders why the Germans persist in continuing to fight since they know this as well as the allies do. Germany's hope of achieving any material gain from their stubbornness is long passed, he points out, but adds that since the allies are fighting fanatics, "faith as always is impervious to shot and shell."

Sees Fight to the Death.

Altho acknowledging that the German army is still "vastly formidable," Fuller asserts that no new strategy and no new invention —unless it borders on the miraculous—can now give it back that velocity which is essential in a technological war.

Predicting that with their backs to the wall the Germans will do what the allies would do under similar circumstances, that is, fight to the end, Fuller says: "There will be a fight to death."

To substantiate his belief he invokes Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels' scheme of total mobilization which, he says, points not only to the defense of the walls of the reich but also to a guerrilla defense of its interior, and asserts that it is up to the allies to clear town by town, hill by hill, valley by valley, province by province until Germany is "sucked down by a maelstrom of ruin."

REPORT BULGAR CHIEF CONFERS WITH RED ENVOY

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Bulgarian Premier Ivan Bagrianov and the soviet charge d'affaires at Sofia conferred yesterday, the German radio announced. Bulgaria and Russia never have broken off diplomatic relations, altho Bulgaria is allied with the Nazis.

At the same time the German radio said Foreign Minister Parvan Draganov would read a foreign policy statement by Bagrianov to members of the Bulgarian parliament this afternoon.

Last Thursday night Bagrianov, in an impassioned speech before parliament, urged that the nation get out of the war.

SPLIT REICH, ASSESS REPARATIONS, BRITISH CONSERVATIVES URGE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The division of Germany into a number of independent states and an effective system of reparations and economic control of the country, are the chief proposals of a memorandum issued today by the post-war policy group of 39 Conservative members of parliament and peers.

The memorandum advocates establishment as separate states of the Rhineland, Westphalia, Hesse, Hanover, Schleswig-Holstein, the old Hansa towns, Bavaria, Wurttemburg, Saxony, and Baden, and the reduction of the population of Prussia from 19,000,000 to 13,000,000.

It also suggests that Germany's means of production be harnessed into allied reparations plans and that Germany be prohibited from manufacturing aircraft. It also is urged that Germany's chemical industry be placed at the disposal of the allies.

Army Guard to Patrol Conference Scene.

are lukewarm about the conference, but rather that the postponement was sought so the delegation could be instructed completely and that the delegation was given more discretion than ordinarily is granted such bodies by the soviets.

As a rule, Red delegations at conferences do nothing but listen during deliberations and rush to a phone or cable to report to the Kremlin for instructions. It is the hope of British and American delegates the present Russian delegation has been instructed thoroly.

Both the Russian and American delegations are headed by young men. Gromyko is 36 years old and occupied relatively unimportant diplomatic posts until his sudden elevation to the status of an ambassador last September.

Stettinius Heads U. S. Group.

The American delegation is headed by Undersecretary of State Stettinius, 44, who has been a diplomat since September. Until his appointment as undersecretary of state after the dismissal of Sumner Welles as a result of a feud with Secretary Hull, Stettinius had no diplomatic experience.

A career diplomat is in charge of the British delegation. Cadogan is particularly conversant with Chinese affairs, having been minister and later ambassador at Peking for four years. He was made deputy under secretary of state for foreign affairs in 1936 and permanent secretary in 1939.

Each of the nations has its own plan. In most respects the plans are in accord, but they differ on questions of sanctions, votes, and the manner of policing the world.

The American plan reportedly calls for creation of a council of all allied nations with an executive council composed of Britain, China, Russia, and the United States. It also embraces a world court to mediate disputes.

British Plan Similar.

The British plan is similar to the American plan except that it would impose sanctions against unruly nations more readily than the American plan contemplates. It is understood a unanimous council vote would be necessary for the imposition of sanctions under the American plan, whereas the British favor a majority vote in some cases and a two-thirds vote in others.

The Russians have advised Britain and the United States of the broad outlines of the plan they favor, but have not submitted a detailed set of views as requested. The Russians expressed a preference for conferring with the United States and Britain to consider details.

British Ambassador Halifax, a member of the British delegation, conferred yesterday with President Roosevelt. He said the conference consisted of a canvass of procedure involved in the discussions.

F. D. R. Meeting Expected.

It is expected Mr. Roosevelt will receive the Russian and British delegations during the conference. He has received delegations to the food conference and the relief and rehabilitation conference in the past.

The main conferences are to be held in the former music room of the old home. Delegates will be seated at a horseshoe table. French windows of the music room look out over the park of the walled estate.

The state department has emphasized the informality of the conference. It is said the conference will not be a dress performance, but will be the informal exchange of preliminary conversations.

THREE ROB CASHIER.

Three men yesterday entered the A. M. Kidd drug store at 2201 Van Buren st., menaced Robert Robertson, cashier, with a revolver, and forced him to turn over $220 from the cash register and $48 in merchandise.

DAY by DAY on the FARM by BEN MARKLAND

Aug. 20, 1944.

THE fall webworm, an annual enemy of many shade trees, fruit trees, and shrubs, is particularly serious this season on common cherry, wild cherry, elm, willow, ash, and apple trees in the Chicago area.

It's the webworm [often mistakenly called the tentworm or tent caterpillar] that builds a bed enclosure around the tips of tree branches and then feeds on the leaves within its lacy home. The web may cover 12 inches of the leaf terminal; it isn't unusual for the enclosure to be four to six feet long, and we have noticed small elm trees along Illinois highways almost completely covered with the webs, with the result that the saplings have been defoliated. On the Wheaton farm, the webworms this year are feeding almost exclusively on wild cherry trees along the farm roads and in the woodlots.

Destroy the Webs.

Farmers and home owners should eliminate as many of the webs as possible to reduce future attacks by these persistent insects. Elimination of the webs in the insects' feeding period insures that no new broods will be hatched next season.

The simplest method of stopping the webworms is by cutting off and burning the infested branches. Webs that cannot be reached to be eliminated in such manner can be destroyed by using arsenate of lead sprays directed into the webs under pressure. One-fourth of a pound of arsenate of lead mixed into eight gallons of water will kill the insects. Unsprayed apple trees often are attacked by webworms, but the insects cannot survive on apple trees which are sprayed in the spring with mixtures of arsenate of lead and lime sulfur used for killing the codling moth.

How Pests Differ.

The tentworm, or tent caterpillar, if different from the webworm in that it builds its web in the forks and crotches of trees rather than over the terminal leaf twigs. These tents are built in the spring rather than in August, as in the case of webworms.

The tentworms also are different from webworms in that they do not feed inside their web, but leave their tents during the day to eat foliage within a yard of the web.

★ The GARDEN ★

GARDENERS who have hotbeds can make excellent use of their frames for producing a small autumn crop of vegetables. The farm gardener now is readying his frame for this type of planting. The bottom of the hotbed will be filled with 24 inches of cow or horse manure, which produces the heat necessary to sustain the plants in cool autumn weather. Six to eight inches of black dirt is spread over the manure as a seedbed.

The farm hotbed is 7 feet wide and almost 40 feet long, therefore enough vegetables can be grown in it to supply the farm tables for several weeks in late autumn.

Vegetables planted in a hotbed at this time of the year survive without protection until the nights become cool in September. Glass sash can be placed over the frame on such nights and during cool autumn days. If additional protection is needed in October, straw insulation can be put over the sash at night. Additional information on this subject will be published here tomorrow.

DE GAULLE IN NORMANDY VOWS REBUILT FRANCE

New York, Aug. 20 (AP). — Gen. Charles de Gaulle, head of the French Committee of National Liberation, speaking from the balcony of the town hall in Cherbourg after his arrival in France today, told a cheering crowd of 7,000 that "we are all united in the same will—the will to French greatness."

"We shall rebuild Cherbourg greater and more beautiful than it was and in the same way we shall rebuild France," De Gaulle said. The address was reported by the office of war information.

"We know that the Calvary we have been going thru is the greatest ordeal of our history," the French leader said. "We know the abyss we are emerging from and toward what peaks we are striving."

Met by Military Chiefs.

De Gaulle was met in Cherbourg by Gen. Joseph Pierre Koenig, chief of the French forces of the interior; Gen. Alphonse Juin, French chief of staff; Adm. Georges Thierry d'Argenlieu and the mayor of Cherbourg.

The cheering crowds sang the "Marseillaise" as De Gaulle went to the town hall balcony to make his speech, and when he had finished, they shouted "Long live De Gaulle! Long live France!"

Eisenhower Sees De Gaulle.

GEN. EISENHOWER'S HDQ., Normandy, Aug. 20 [Reuter].—The anticipated liberation of Paris in the allies' swiftly moving pursuit of the Germany army brought Gen. Charles de Gaulle and Gen. Koenig, commander of the French forces on the continent to Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters for a brief conference today.

The French leaders conversed in English with Gen. Eisenhower for more than half an hour.

Signing of the document returning civil government to the liberated areas in the rear zone is scheduled soon. Gen. De Gaulle will sign for the French, Gen. Eisenhower for the United States, and Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, for the United Kingdom.

FAVOR DE GAULLE—NOW

BY BARBARA WACE.

LONDON, Aug. 20 (AP).—Any estimate of France's political future based on developments in presently liberated territory must, for two reasons, be incomplete. First, it is only a small portion of the whole country, but Normandy, only area open to real observation, is a conservative, prosperous, deeply religious agricultural district, probably less affected by German occupation than any other part of France. Secondly, it must be remembered that there are nearly three million silent Frenchmen in Germany, prisoners of war or in forced labor.

Symbol of Resistance.

A Norman, reserved and untypical tho he may be, is still a Frenchman. If you ask him if he is for De Gaulle, he will answer "of course." But he will look puzzled. If you pursue the question further he will usually explain that of course he is for De Gaulle, what would you, for is it not De Gaulle who is fighting the Germans? Only a few go further than this.

After talking to them in a number of towns, I would say that, for now, 98 per cent of the people of liberated France are "for De Gaulle" in that sense, as a symbol of resistance against Germany.

For now—De Gaulle, the soldier. For afterwards there was a reservation. Sometimes a shrug. Often the answer "France needs a firm hand. France needs an iron hand in a velvet glove."

BURGLARS OBTAIN $200.

Burglars, who sawed the bars on a rear window, took $200 from the cash register and four fountain pens valued at $50 from a drug store at 5200 Madison st., Louis Gaberman, owner, told police yesterday.

DEWEY ADVISES INDUSTRY CURB TO KEEP PEACE

Dulles to Exchange Views with Willkie Today.

BY HAL FOUST.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Gov. Dewey, Republican candidate for President, and his adviser on foreign affairs, John Foster Dulles, this afternoon told of their proposals to prevent future wars, to keep Germany and Japan permanently disarmed, and to end the balance of power politics in Europe under which the old continent has been international tinderbox.

Their views are to be carried to Washington, D. C., this week by Dulles to contribute as much as possible to diplomatic discussions opening tomorrow among representatives of America, Great Britain, and Russia.

Dewey revealed today that last night he had tried to reach Wendell Willkie, the 1940 G. O. P. nominee, to invite him to join the week-end conference in the governor's mansion here where the Republican policy on foreign affairs was being crystallized. Instead, an exchange of telegrams resulted in an appointment for Dulles and Willkie to meet in New York City tomorrow.

First Hint of Collaboration.

It was the first evidence of any collaboration between the 1940 and the 1944 Republican candidates. On the other hand, there had been published reports, denied by President Roosevelt last week, that Willkie had been invited to the White House to discuss foreign policy with the fourth term candidate.

Dewey's proposals for permanent disarmament of Germany and Japan would be effectuated, not so much by a limitation upon armies and navies and air forces as upon control of the industries of the two aggressors. This control for the first few years after the end of this war would be under the jurisdiction of the victorious allied powers but later under the jurisdiction of an international organization including small nations and minorities.

To sterilize the future military strength of Germany, under the Dewey plan, the rich Ruhr valley would be separated from Germany and probably be established as a separate state under international law. Its mines and heavy industries would be barred from arms production. They would contribute to the economic welfare of all Europe rather than being a source of arms for Junkers generals.

The economic welfare of Europe is seen by Dewey as an essential to sustain peace. To attain this welfare, according to Dewey, there must gradually be worked out something on the order of a United States of Europe, rather than a multiple division of the continent as promoted by power politics.

Dulles Summarizes.

Dewey, in reply to a question, said America's future peace is dependent upon peace in Europe, as demonstrated by the last two World wars, and that Americans must keep fully informed so that future administrations will discourage rather than encourage power politics. This point was summarized by Dulles.

"You have this question of dominance of the world organization," said Dulles, referring to Dewey's charge last Wednesday that Churchill-Stalin-Roosevelt diplomacy was reportedly aimed at world rule by force, including the coercion of minorities and smaller nations.

"If it is only a matter to be privately discussed [by diplomats]" continued Dulles, who is a New York lawyer active in international affairs for the last generation, "it is awfully easy for the government [American] to take the easy way. On the other hand, if you have an alert, vigilant public opinion on the matter—such as the governor's statement went far to create—then the government will have to stand firm.

Compromise Is Easy.

"Unless you create back of the government a strong, intelligent public opinion on these matters, and if it is all done in secrecy, then the easy way to do is to compromise, make the best deals you can with foreign powers, assuming the American public will take it, because they don't know any better. So you have to keep the American public alert and vigilant on this thing."

Dulles dictated this statement in reply to a question of why foreign affairs will be debated in the Presidential campaign, notwithstanding Hull's invitation for the Republicans to participate in the international negotiations opening this week.

In Dewey's plans for world organization, several similarities to Willkie's published views were noted.

Willkie Sends Telegram.

In response to Dewey's telegram today Willkie, after accepting the invitation to meet with Dulles, wired the governor in part as follows:

"I wish I had known of your desire for my views prior to your original statement. For several years I have been deeply concerned about the ill fate of the small nations inherent in military alliances between any or all of the great powers. But I have been equally concerned that there should not arise among our allies the notion that our party would in any way obstruct or endanger the success of an international conference.

"I therefore made inquiry about 10 days ago of the Washington authorities to determine if our government intended to insist upon the protection of the position of small nations in the forthcoming Dumbarton Oaks conference. I was given strong affirmative assurances. Therefore, I had determined to await results before entering into any public discussions. However, since, according to your latest statements, both you and Secretary Hull have agreed that the discussions between the secretary and Mr. Dulles are to be of a nonpartisan character, I shall be glad to give your representative, Mr. Dulles, freely of my views."

Neutralization of Ruhr.

In discussing the neutralization of the Ruhr, Dewey said there were several proposals: distribution of stock ownership of the mines and mills among the French, Belgians, Poles, Dutch, and other victims of German aggression; creation of a separate state under continuous international control; and creation of a state under control of a group of nations.

"While the method is important," said Dewey, "it is something that no single individual or nation can decide. It is something to be decided by a conference of nations.

"I'm convinced that the neutralization of the Ruhr as an effective producer of armaments is an essential peace objective. The benefits of its facilities for mass production of civilian goods must be made available to all for the economic stability of Europe.

Rehabilitation Essential.

"The whole economic rehabilitation of Europe is essential to peace. Europe has well been likened to a firetrap that burned down 25 years ago with heavy loss of life. At the peace conference thereafter, instead of constructing a better building, the same firetrap was put up again. Now it has burned again with even greater loss of life. We don't want to erect a third firetrap.

"One very important objective this time is to remove the diverse and numerous causes of war. There are 350 million people in Europe, divided into 26 watertight compartments, no one of which is self-sufficient. A prime objective is for us to rebuild to give the people a better opportunity for economic expansion for larger markets, and for a freer exchange of goods between countries."

A reporter asked if the candidate was suggesting a United States of Europe or a United Federation of European states. Dewey said that his idea is "certainly for a much closer relation" between European countries.

Suggests 25 Year Supervision.

On the control of German and Japanese industries, to prevent manufacture of arms, Dewey suggested that this supervision should be continued for at least 25 years and probably as long as 50 years. It is his theory that eventually the German and Japanese people, under peaceful governments, can be admitted to his idea of a world-wide family of peace loving nations. The four allied powers would exercise this control only until the world organization is perfected. He avoided any use of the phrase "world police force" because it might infer continuing foreign service for large numbers of American soldiers and sailors.

"For the first few years after the war," Dewey continued, "we must keep separate the problem of controling Germany and Japan and the problem of creating a permanent world organization. Both projects can be advanced simultaneously but the problems of one should not impede the progress of the other.

"The success of the world organization will depend upon many factors. The treatment of small nations and minorities and the fairness of the peace."

Emphasizes United States' Stake.

He was asked to elaborate upon America's interest in the future of Europe.

"The American influence must be for peace," he responded. "Twice, because of our close relationship, we've been drawn into what started as a European war. We have a tremendous stake in building successfully to prevent future wars.

"The only way we can prevent future wars is to reëstablish America's moral leadership and regain our great internal domestic strength.

"I feel deeply that the whole success of our negotiations must be matters in which our people keep very much informed. Every effort must be exerted to bring in every shade of opinion in America. There must be an agreement and not a compromise. The government must have the united support of all people, an agreement which will be supported year in and year out, regardless of the administration in power.

"The achievement in building for peace must be so solidly supported by a fully informed American public opinion so no change in the future political scene will change our attitude toward the peace program."

WHO'S talking? Just a boy and a girl planning their future—the inherent privilege of all Americans.

In this country you've always traveled where you wished, settled where you pleased and tried your hand at whatever you chose.

That's the American way of life—the way the Founding Fathers meant it to be. It's free enterprise!

Take the case of Solomon Juneau, Byron Kilbourn, Alexander Mitchell and their associates—pioneer Americans with an enterprising idea. They envisioned a railroad extending westward from Milwaukee to the Mississippi River. In the face of skepticism and hardships, they planned, persevered, prevailed!

Built nearly a hundred years ago, this railroad became The Milwaukee Road, eventually opening new territory clear to the Pacific Coast.

Sturdy pioneers—eastern tenant farmers, and immigrants, too—staked out farms in this new country and became land owners. Clerks, with more courage than capital, left secure employment to open crossroads stores and become independent merchants. Blacksmith shops grew to great industries, and territories achieved statehood.

That's how the American system worked yesterday—and will work tomorrow.

Men with ideas build railroads, or automobiles, or radios, or tractors. They tap new resources, found new marts—and constantly open new avenues of opportunity for others.

It has proved a good system. Let's not tamper with it—except as we must, temporarily, in achieving Victory—lest we win the war and lose our liberty.

THE WASHINGTON CONFERENCE.

The conference to be held in Washington this week between Cordell Hull and John Foster Dulles presages nothing beneficial for America. Mr. Hull, according to all the evidence he has adduced, represents the views of the British foreign office. Mr. Dulles is the impersonation of the big dough of Wall street. We can expect to emerge from this conference some plan to perpetuate all the evils and brutalities of the British empire with Wall street getting a cut on the profits of imperialism and nothing to provide for the future security of America as has been the case for the last 40 years. American interests will have to depend on the senate. Sen. McKellar's activities show that they will not be without representation there.

THEY TAKE IT OUT ON THE KIDS.

The City Club of Chicago has made public a report on an investigation it made on conditions in the juvenile home.

The report can hardly be called sensational, at least to those conversant with the operation of the Democratic machine in Chicago, since it merely sets forth in some detail that employes at the home appear to have been hired for their value in the precincts and not their services to the public. The same thing is going on in virtually every other department in the city hall and county building.

The investigators reported:

"Little discipline is maintained over the staff. Employes fail to report for duty or do not work full time. Many hold other positions which prevent them from functioning efficiently. Employes should be responsible to the superintendent and not to some politician.

"Employes have informed the superintendent when they would or would not work. Some have admitted absence was due to political activity. Instances have occurred where staff members on night duty were found asleep. These employes were being paid for full time outside employment while drawing full time wages from the county."

The only difference between conditions in the Juvenile home and the other public offices is that in the home these abuses of the public funds are being carried on at the expense of defenseless kids. The home isn't a penal institution. It is a place for temporary detention of children pending arrangements for their permanent care. Some of them have been in trouble with the police. They may have been engaged in petty crime or truancy. Many more are just in trouble. They may be youngsters who have run away from home. They may be shavers below teen-age whose parents have abandoned them.

R. Patrick O'Reilly, chairman of the committee that made the investigation, got hot under the collar over some of the things he found. The report, he said, pulled its punches. It didn't say anything about the employes who have daytime jobs with private employers who make them work, and who on their night shift at the home boosted some of the kids out of their beds so they could sleep while drawing their pay. It didn't say anything about the kid who was kept at the home for three months because his papers had been mislaid. Mislaid papers and neglect of charges are inevitable with that kind of political help.

Francis D. Scully, superintendent of the home, says that he doesn't hire his own help and he doubts if he could fire them. He would have no doubts if he tried it. He'd have a ward committeeman on his neck immediately.

Perhaps the kids haven't any right to kick about their mistreatment. After all, they are being mistreated so the payrollers can go out and punch doorbells for Roosevelt and humanity.

AN ARMY LYNCHING.

A group of American soldiers at Fort Lawton, Wash., attacked a unit of sleeping Italians who are paroled prisoners of war, seized one of the Italians, and hanged him in a tree. Twenty-four Italians were injured in the fighting. Reports from the army camp where the incident took place say that the American troops were resentful at privileges allowed the Italians, and rebelled because the Italians were assigned to lighter work than the troops. The Italians are selected prisoners who have pledged allegiance to the allied cause and they are members of a service unit.

This kind of barbarism could be expected from Japanese troops, but not from Americans. The incident is a disgrace, and the American soldiers involved in the lynching should be caught and punished like any other murderers. Final responsibility for the outbreak rests directly on the army and upon the New Dealers in the high command who are restoring Italian war prisoners to quasi-military status and shoving them in among American troops. If the Italian prisoners are to be trusted with their freedom here, they should be sent back to Italy to fight and work for their own liberated country.

WHY THEY WERE HAPPY ON GUAM.

Col. Carlos Romulo in his book, "Mother America," explained why the people of Burma, French Indo-China, Singapore, and Java did not join in repelling the invader. Any change was looked upon as an improvement, he said, where natives were paid so little they died of hunger; where disease was rampant and the ruling race did little to control it, and where "a well shod shoe was planted on a scrawny buttock."

In the Orient, said Romulo, only the Filipino did not gloat over the fall of the white man. Thanks to our Harold Smith's excellent stories from Guam we know that Romulo's statement was not quite inclusive enough. Smith was amazed to find in the American outpost, which has just been recovered from the Japs after 31 months, "dusky-skinned folks who speak our language and share our customs." He wrote in one of his stories of the thrill he got "to catch the infection of their long suppressed love of our country flaming high."

We took over Guam after it had been a Spanish possession 250 years. In 1898 the population was 9,000, having been reduced to that figure from 50,000 by disease. The Spanish treated the natives as the lowest peons. They forbade all education and the people were completely illiterate. On the whole island, it is said that at the time the American flag was raised there was one book—a worn out Spanish grammar.

As an American possession all this was changed. Sanitation was provided. The people learned about money and working for wages. Production on the island was greatly increased by farm experts sent from the United States. They were supplied with equipment and shown how to use it. Schools were established and by 1940 there were 4,000 pupils among the 23,000 inhabitants. Living standards rose remarkably. Smith says that with freedom the Guamians look to the return of radios, electric irons, washing machines, and sewing machines.

Guam was not to America what India and Hongkong were to the British, what Indo-China was to the French, and what Java and Sumatra were to the Dutch. Guam was not a place to be plundered as political patronage. We sent no governors to milk the island, in a corner of the globe where that was the rule. The Japs were not welcome in Guam. "You quickly get the feeling there are no more devout Americans than the Guamians," wrote Harold Smith. No wonder!

BLUNDERS IN BURMA.

Leslie Nichols, a Mutual Broadcasting system correspondent, who returned to New York recently from Cairo, Egypt, reported that British censorship in India has suppressed news of the Burma campaign "far beyond any requirements of military expediency or morale." He explained that the Japs caught the allied forces off balance in Burma and the campaign started badly. The British censors willingly passed any good news or "paeans of praise," he said, but would not allow correspondents to report the mistakes and reverses. He pointed to the story of the demoralization of Gen. Merrill's Marauders which was not released from Kandy, Ceylon, until two months after the incident.

Americans have a large equity in the Burma campaign. Part of the allied force is made up of American troops under Gen. Stilwell, Gen. Merrill, and other American commanders. Millions upon millions of dollars worth of American weapons, munitions, and supplies have been sent into India and Burma to the detriment of Gen. MacArthur's drive in the Southwest Pacific. If things fare badly in Burma, the American people are entitled to know about it.

Supreme command of the Burma front was invested in the British at the Quebec conference between Mr. Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill. Americans were given the subordinate tasks of fighting and supplying in that theater. The British chose as their commander Louis Mountbatten, a cousin of their king and royalty's last justification for existence. The ineptitude of the Burma campaign and its inability to get going is largely Mountbatten's responsibility. At one time it looked as tho the allies might take Burma while the Japanese were conquering India, and things still aren't straightened out.

Censorship, even as tight as the British can make it, is a poor crutch. American newspaper men who returned to this country on furlough from India and Burma have been forced to sign pledges not to write anything so critical it wouldn't pass the British censors, no matter how well founded the facts. That was a condition for their readmittance to the Burma theater when they were ready to go back to work.

Public opinion in this country isn't going to allow the British to cover up their mistakes in Burma indefinitely, and there will be a rising demand either to withdraw American participation in that theater or to turn top command over to somebody like Gen. Stilwell who has experience in something besides commando raids. Mr. Roosevelt made one of his greatest mistakes in this war when he allowed American armies and fighting units to be merged with those of our allies under foreign commanders. Gen. Pershing fought successfully to prevent that in the World war, and if he hadn't maintained an autonomous American army command in France he wouldn't have won that war in 18 months.

Editorial of the Day

TOO MANY REJECTIONS.

[Cincinnati Enquirer.]

The record of rejections by the army physicians is startling. Literally thousands of young men have been denied entrance to the army because of physical unfitness. Young America is not as strong and healthy as we have thought to be the case. Of course, there is a fairly bright side to this—not so bright as to make us overhappy—and that is many physical ailments have been detected in time to remedy them. Incipient consumption, for instance, and there are other ills which perhaps can be held in check, but not cured.

We have been brought up to think that all was well with our boys and girls. Now and then we heard stories of the underprivileged, poor kids who were undernourished or who were the victims of a bad heredity. But these were exceptions and not the rule. Yet the army has rejected boys by the thousands because they did not have strong, wholesome bodies, boys who could not stand the strain of severe military training. The moral is that here is another peace time job—to bring our boys and girls up to a satisfactory physical standard.

It becomes increasingly evident that more and more Democrats are not New Dealers.—Indianapolis News.

THE BOONDOCKS.

Creeping into the newspapers occasionally, in dispatches from war zones where the United States marine corps is seeing hard and hazardous service, is a word that is new to these eyes and ears. It is "boondocks," a noun, whose context clearly implies rough country and tough going. We crave for an explanation of the origin of this curious bit of military slang, which is so close to "boondoggle" in appearance, so opposed in meaning. Experts in the language of the marines are invited to testify.

* * *

An example of its use occurred in a dispatch from Guam immediately after that island's liberation from Japanese clutches. An American civilian informed an interviewer that when the Japanese occupied the port he and other noncombatants fled "into the boondocks," meaning the hills and jungles. We submitted this to an ex-marine of World War I.—Sandy Williams, this column's Monday printer. He had never heard of "the boondocks," but suggested that it may have come into the vocabulary of the marines during their service in Haiti as law enforcers and bandit suppressers in the 1920s.

* * *

Sandy was guessing, but his hunch caused us to dip into a French dictionary, since that language is the parent of Haitian speech. We found "bonduc, a plant of America." We trailed "bonduc" to its botanical lair and learned that it is a prickly, vinelike shrub of the West Indies—exactly the sort of growth to make military life in tropical hills and jungles unpleasant. This clew may be misleading, for the origins of slang are weird and wonderful, but it is in line with the origin of the French-Corsican word "maquis," now much in the news. In both cases there is an implication of dense undergrowth in wild country.

* * *

The latest and most compendious work on slang, colloquialisms, and technical jabber, "The American Thesaurus of Slang," published in 1942, 1,174 pages, does not contain "boondocks." It is time to unleash the word-beagles and run down this critter.

Dark with the clouds of war. No more they know
The bombs, the bullets' whine. Soft breezes blow
Above them, theirs the gentle rains, the dew,
The winter snows to come. And from the blue
The cool, clear notes of songbirds, wild and free.
So far from home. Kind hands across the sea,
When springtime comes again, a quiet sky,
Remember where the tired bodies lie,
Lay flowers above each hushed young heart and say
A prayer, to echo half a world away
On hills of home. Then softly, tenderly,
Back to the windswept shores of Normandy.

Boys' Bridge Ride.

A lusty boat whistle and the clang of a bridge gong meant a free bridge ride if you could run fast enough from the Calumet prairies to the river bank.

The race was on! Like the trailing tail of a comet, boys followed the somewhat winded leader to the bridge on which they pounced, jumping the quickly widening chasm. On the middle of the bridge, the attendant merry-go-rounded the creaky wooden structure parallel with the river's course. How that old bridge groaned and protested! There were rumors regarding a new steel span which would open like a jackknife. No wonder the old bridge grumbled much like an old grandma for she, too, wanted forever to remain the mistress of her rightful domain.

We dangled our feet over the side of the bridge. This was our temporary haven for a few precious moments away from persistent parental bossing. In this isolated spot we often wished the bridge would get stuck and never right itself again, but it always did.

Boat captains would give us a curt nod as they watched their craft guided down the Calumet. Tugs, like barking, excited fox terriers, bulldozed and nudged the boats, holding them on the course. Deckhands [devilish lot] often practiced their tobacco cud aim at our feet. When a hit was made, they just leaned over the gunwhales and grinned.

Free bridge rides, like all heavenly things on earth, must come to an end sometime. The acts of bravado were reenacted again to see who would be the first one off the end of the moving bridge as it approached the dusty street.

ON FURLOUGH.

O, this is what he'd longed for: Home!
For cool, white sheets, Mom's layer cake,
A chance to play, to meet his friends,
To sleep, nor care what hour he'd wake.

It all is his, tho brief the time!
His folks count every hour, nor know
That soon the waiting seems too long;
That now he fairly frets to go.

Yes, here is comfort, warmest care,
And those who are most dear to him,
And there is mud, and fear, and death—
But, too, there's Tony, Mike, and Jim.

J. C. G. asks: "Do you know of any colleges or universities in the central west having scholarships available to children of deceased or disabled veterans of World War II.?"

In a recent survey, Ripon college, Ripon, Wis., was the only institution in the central west to indicate the establishment of scholarships for children of deceased or disabled veterans of World War II. Its letter stated: "Ripon is setting up 10 half tuition scholarships of $150 each for such children who stand in the upper half of their high school graduating classes and two full tuition scholarships at $300 each for candidates standing in the first quarter." Many other private and public institutions indicated there are scholarship funds available, but none specifically designated for the children of veterans of this war. Indiana, for example, has a law which automatically awards contingent fees of $30 a semester for eight semesters to children of veterans of either World war, provided the children have resided in the state for at least five years prior to the award. We will give interested persons scholarship information available on specific schools.

DON'T TAKE SULFA DRUGS ON YOUR OWN.

TOO much of any good thing may be harmful. We can eat ourselves into illness, overheat the body with too much clothing, and exhaust our reservoirs of strength with overwork.

By and large, drugs are dangerous. Time and trial have taught us the correct dosage. In other words, we balance the need against the disease, the resistance of the patient, the rate of absorption, etc. Many of our newer remedies, however, are on a far different basis and, in the majority of our discussions, a word of warning has been sounded concerning the widespread employment of sulfonamides.

The caution has been reiterated that preparations of this character should not be used unless the recipient is under the watchful eye of the family doctor. This advice is sound regardless of the number of friends and neighbors who have been helped by a given prescription. You may be the very one who will be affected adversely.

If these compounds misbehave they will exhibit their dangerous influence chiefly on the skin, the kidneys, the liver, or the blood. It is not uncommon to learn of a patient, who has been taking one of these products overly long, who has developed agranulocytosis — too few white cells in the circulation. But disaster may follow even small quantities. One report indicated that as little as 30 grains plunged a victim into that borderland between life and death. That he survived was due to prompt hospitalization and the administration of glucose injections directly into a vein.

How can we recognize symptoms of poisoning? If fever, inflammation of the eyes, itching of the skin, loss of appetite, dizziness, nausea, or headache ensue—we must accept the warning that all is not well. The wise physician will stop the medication—at least, for a time. One reason why practically every tablet should be guarded by a generous amount of alkali [sodium bicarbonate] is to avoid just such untoward reactions.

Now and then the bone marrow will be damaged and, in consequence, new blood cells will fail to mature. If the liver has been injured previously, the chemical cannot be altered so that it will be excreted with ease. Instead, crystals may be found in the kidneys, which will block the outflow of urine.

But some one will say, "Among the tens of thousands who take sulfa drugs every day, there are only a few such cases." True enough but, with reasonable care, there should be none. A few deaths have occurred, while other individuals have experienced narrow escapes.

We must not forget that these potent remedies are invaluable. But, like explosives, they must be so managed that they will become useful servants instead of enemies. The rule, then, is to watch your step with any medicine that may bring on side effects which can destroy comfort, if not life.

LOPSIDED SWEATER.

E. W. writes: My husband, who is healthy and quite active in all sports, has a peculiarity that I do not understand. When he perspires, there is a division line from the top of his head to his shoulders. The right side will be as dry as a piece of toast and the left side, normally wet. Please give us your conception of this freak of nature.

REPLY.

I hope he has an even disposition, despite the fact that the sympathetic [autonomic] nerves to the sweat glands are out of balance. There is some interference with the normal impulses to the skin perspiration depots on the dry side of his body.

EYE DISORDER.

E. E. W. writes: What is the cause of double vision in a man of 78?

REPLY.

Single vision with two eyes is a complicated function. It depends upon the correct adjustment and normal behavior of the eye muscles and the nervous system. Any one of a score of factors can be thrown out of balance by disease [infection] or toxin absorption.

FOOD POISONING.

G. H. writes: Is ptomaine poisoning the same as old-fashioned stomach ache?

REPLY.

The expression has long gone out of use. Food contaminated with certain organisms will produce inflammation—with abdominal pain, diarrhea, vomiting, and prostration. As a rule, the causative germs can be identified.

Creed.

The first child story of the week concerns two small boys who were on their way home from Sunday school. "Do you think there is a God?" one asked. "O, yes," the other said tolerantly. "Of course." "And a devil?" the first persisted. "Well, I don't know," the other replied slowly. "I think he's probably your daddy, just like Santa Claus."

We've just heard of a man who has beaten a slot machine. The machine was one of those privately owned affairs, 5 cent model, installed in the basement of a private home. The owner installed it with his heart full of nonprofit, private enterprise, but found to what he says is his astonishment that it was making piles of money for him. Days of tinkering with it to make it act in an abnormal manner and let the players win the money were futile, so to rectify matters he began to change his guests' dollar bills into nickels. For each dollar he gives a guest $1.25 in nickels. This is where our astute slot-machine-breaker comes in. Every half hour he gets $1 changed into $1.25 worth of nickels and doesn't play the machine at all. He wins about $2.50 every party he attends.

No prophecy of what is going to become of the youngest generation can now sound too dire. We base this feeling statement on the outburst of a child of 3½ years whose mother told her a Mr. Ware was coming to dinner. "What does Mr. Ware wear, mother?" the child asked. "O," the mother replied, "probably a dark blue suit." The child placed a hand on her mother's arm, shook her head, and grinned. "No, mother," she said impatiently, "what does Mr. Ware wear?" With this she burst into peals of laughter. Three years old. . . .

The widely syndicated health column of our Dr. Cutter carries a question and answer division, as you may see for yourself by shifting a bit to the left. In a recent column the Daily Argus Leader [Sioux Falls, S. D.] version of one q. and a. was this:

Q.—I am going to have my child's tonsils and adenoids out, but some one told me if I had it done at this time of the year hay fever would develop later. Is this true?

A.—There isn't the slightest ground for [this] belief. . . . There is only one reason for removal of tonsils and adenoids—infection followed by swelling which causes interference with breathing.

Another folk tale that has been rolling off the tongue of many a babbler goes like this:

"Last week a client of my uncle's was driving from Cleveland to Cincinnati. He graciously gave a lift to an Indian woman carrying a heavy bundle. As he stopped at her destination to let her out, she turned to him and said, 'The war will be over by Sept. 2 just as certainly as you'll have a dead body in your car before night.' The man traveled on and soon forgot the prophetic words. Near Cincinnati he came upon an accident. A collision had occurred. He stopped to be of assistance and carried an injured boy into his car. He drove rapidly to the nearest hospital, but when he attempted to lift the boy from the back seat the child was dead."

This tale is a war time classic. It flourished in World War I. and probably in every war.

QUEER JUSTICE.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—I wonder who is running the courts in Chicago, the crooks and racketeers or the honest citizens? Why does Judge Quillet have to leave his happy home after hours to come downtown to bail out a couple of racketeers who came here from New York to chase out some union officials who refused to be bulldozed by them? And why does Borrelli call an honest citizen a "shylock" when he asks that crooks who have been caught red-handed be given the punishment they deserve. I think there should be an investigation. WM. J. RAELLY.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—The much publicized "shylock" case of Judge Francis Borrelli and the bad check artists give conclusive proof that we the citizens are far too lax in our responsibility of keeping our city free of crime. When we continue to keep men like Borrelli on the bench, when he seems to be trying to see how lenient he can be to criminals, it is no wonder crime runs rampant. When his honor saw fit to show more consideration to the criminals than to the complaining witness and in fact even insult the latter, it is certainly easy to see why law abiding citizens hestitate in their duty to prosecute. Men like Borrelli who are trying to earn the title of "The Criminals' Friend" must go, and go they will the next time they appear on the ballot. JOHN PUBLIC.

Chicago, Aug. 17.—There are more crooked judges in Chicago than you could shake a stick at. I want to congratulate you upon your fine editorial appearing today entitled: "A Little Pink Judge." Now is the time to hit another pink judge, the one who told a complaining witness "We want no shylocks here." I like THE TRIBUNE because it is fearless.

"BE YOUR OWN FIRE WARDEN."

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 16.—I wish to express my appreciation of the editorial in your recent issue entitled "Be Your Own Fire Warden," which has to do with the serious fire hazard produced by the extended spell of hot, dry weather and the responsibility of every individual to take all due care to prevent fire. The editorial is timely, to the point, and effective. It may be the means of preventing some disastrous fires. The ultimate hope of real fire prevention lies in the building of fire mindedness in the individual and your editorial therefore has struck at the real heart of the problem.

JOHN H. CRAIG,
State Fire Marshal.

THE FLAG AND THE ANTHEM.

Mahopac, N. Y., Aug. 17.—C. Sam Dreyer, whose letter appeared in one of your recent issues, suggested that whenever the national anthem is played the flag of the United States must be present. Mr. Dreyer is wrong. The "Star Spangled Banner" is the national anthem, and can be played or sung whenever the occasion is proper for its rendition, but there is no provision whatsoever in any rules or regulations that calls for the presence of the national emblem.

GRIDLEY ADAMS,
Chairman,
National Flag Code Committee.

THE CLOSED SHOP RACKET.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—The forgotten man today in this land of liberty is the worker who is forced by so-called majority vote and WLB directives to join a union against his will. In the first place, most of the union elections are won by fraud and deceit. Any move by an employer to help his workers avoid the trap set by the CIO racketeers is condemned by the WLB as unfair and illegal tactics.

We, who have been forced into the CIO concentration camp, have no intention of giving up our right to vote for whom we please at the national elections. The funds the CIO is using thru the PAC to elect Roosevelt and the New Deal party were obtained by force thru the closed shop and check-off system sponsored by the WLB.

We regret that our money will be used that way, but what can we do about it? Our hope lies in the newspapers like THE TRIBUNE and congressmen like Rep. Hoffman from Michigan. They can free us from this communist yoke by restoring to us the right we all should possess under the Constitution—to join or not to join a labor union. WORKER.

POLITICAL FOUR-FLUSHING.

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 15.—Gov. Kerr, who made the keynote address at the New Deal convention last month, made the following statement: "Shall we restore to power the party whose national leadership, under the domination of isolationists, scrapped and sank more of our fleet than was destroyed at Pearl Harbor?" In 1935 Mr. Roosevelt, then commander in chief, had the following to say about the Washington conference, to which Mr. Kerr had referred: "The Washington naval conference of 1922 brought to the world for the first time an important voluntary agreement for limitation and reduction of armament. It stands out as a milestone in civilization." Which is a forthright, honest, and truthful statement and which is political four-flushing? One thing we know: When we suffered the disgraceful defeat at Pearl Harbor the commander in chief was not a Republican. J. P. GRIP.

PAYMENTS CHARGEABLE TO ESTATE.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—My grandmother received old age assistance of $16 a month from June, 1938, until her death in January, 1942. Her only other income was $8 per month rent from a small property. The Illinois public aid commission was informed that she had this income when application was made for assistance. 1. Since her death the commission has placed a lien against the property, valued at $1,000, for the amount of aid she received. She had been a resident of the state for 18 years and under the circumstances [2] it does not seem that the property should be forfeited to pay for help she was entitled to receive. V. D.

1. The accumulated assistance payments are always chargeable against the estate of the recipient.
2. This conclusion does not follow.

IS YOUR DOCTOR ABSENT? HE MAY BE AT HOLLANDIA

Many from Chicago in Hospital There.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HOLLANDIA, New Guinea, Aug. 20.—Do you miss your doctor, your nurse, or your hospital orderly? You'll probably find them in hospital row here.

A whole string of hospitals is being set up here and in them are the men and women you can't find in the hospitals back in Chicago. The doctors include Capt. Clarence Kristiansen, 2014 N. Kilbourn av.; Lt. Roland Ladenson, 1528 Morse av.; Maj. J. P. Grier, 2449 Marcy av., Evanston, Ill., Maj. John Guerin, who used to be on the staff of St. Anthony's, Lt. Ray Gaines of Broughton, Ill., and Maj. William Edwards of New Albany, Ind.

Over in the nurses' quarters are Lt. Georgia Ivanoff, 3301 E. 91st st., Chicago; Lt. Helen Shawn, 2401 N. Weil, Milwaukee, Wis.; Lt. Elizabeth Jap of Danville, Ill.; Lt. Dorothy Jacob of Elgin, Ill., and Lt. Lucy Russell, who used to work at Mercy hospital in Chicago.

Orderlies There, Too.

There are more Chicago orderlies than you can shake a stick at. Among them are Sgt. Wilbur Cullers, 4545 Beacon st.; Sgt. John Neef, 5557 E. Christiana av.; Sgt. Fred Hill, 225 W.59th pl.; Sgt. Carl Hoessrich, 3342 N. Damen av.; Sgt. Robert Rusk, 4950 N. Albany av.; Corp. Joseph Lederer, 5307 S. Bishop st.

Corp. David Pechtin, 927 Milwaukee av.; Corp. James Verner, 5723 W. 22d pl., Cicero; Pvt. Richard Burton, 610 S. Sacramento av.; Pvt. Calvin Johnson, 5345 W. Berenice av.; Pvt. Edwin Podosek, 5252 W. Cornelia av.; Pvt. James Van Alstin, 4515 Christiana av.; Pvt. Richard Borta, 2152 N. Laramie av.

Pvt. Merlyn Dearmond, Rockford, Ill.; Pvt. William Gullis, Peoria, Ill.; Pvt. Ralph Mannon, Bradford, Ill.; Pvt. Carlo Persico, 215 W. Garfield blvd., Chicago; Pvt. James Skillin, 4213 S. Princeton av.; Pvt. Kenneth Voy, Rockford, Ill.

And if Lt. Arthur Olsen, 4917 N. Francisco av., happens to be your lawyer, he's here, too. He is the adjutant in a hospital. Before his outfit came overseas he and a friend, THE TRIBUNE'S Marcia Winn, put the bee on Mayor Kelly and other Chicagoans for some radios and other stuff to help the patients pass the time. This all arrived safely in New Guinea and was promptly unloaded. Then the monsoon struck and washed it all away. So Olsen is in the market for more.

GRADUATES OF N. U.

Maj. James P. Grier, 47, of 2449 Marcy av., Evanston, was graduated from the Northwestern university medical school. He interned for a year in Evanston hospital, and four years at the Mayo clinic at Rochester, Minn. He began practice in Evanston in 1929.

He was commissioned a major in the army medical corps in 1942 and served in Australia until last July, when he was transferred to New Guinea. His wife, Mrs. Jessie Grier, and their two children, Patricia, 15, and James, 13, live at the Marcy av. address. His mother, Mrs. Jennie Grier, lives at the Orrington hotel in Evanston.

Married College Teacher.

First Lt. Roland P. Ladenson, 26, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ladenson, 1528 Morse av. He was graduated from Senn High school and the Northwestern university medical school, and interned for a year at the Cook county hospital. He enlisted in the reserve Dec. 10, 1941, and was called to active service in July, 1943. Later he was assigned to the 43d field hospital in New Guinea.

In November, 1943, he married Miss Virginia Hanson, a member of the faculty of Stevens college at Columbia, Mo.

U. S. DESTROYER MAURY CITED AS NEMESIS OF JAPS

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Pearl Harbor, Aug. 20 (AP).—The United States destroyer Maury, with one of the most impressive records of the Pacific war, has been awarded a Presidential unit citation, Pacific fleet headquarters announced today. The 500 ton warship is credited with sinking or helping to sink three light Japanese cruisers, 10 destroyers, and one patrol vessel as well as shooting down 10 enemy planes and destroying a number of shore batteries.

The Maury was built in 1936 at the Bethlehem Steel corporation yards, San Francisco.

The destroyer screened the carrier, Enterprise, during the Guadalcanal and Tulagi landings. She downed two dive bombers and two torpedo planes at Santa Cruz, and aided in the rescue of Helena survivors off Japanese held Vella Lavella on July 12, 1943, one of the most daring operations of the war.

Lands Behind Lines on Driniumor River.

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AITAPE, New Guinea, Aug. 20.—The commander of the American forces on the Driniumor river announced that the silver star had been awarded to Pvt. Edward H. Hensen, 2145 W. Monroe st., Chicago, for his part in a story book landing far behind the Japanese lines.

Pvt. Edward H. Hensen.

The general's citation said the work of Hensen and 14 others on the patrol made it possible for the American forces to be deployed in such a way that when the Japs, a month later, launched an attack on the Driniumor river, it was possible to eliminate virtually a force estimated at upward of 15,000.

The citation explained that the patrol boarded a boat near Aitape the night of May 27 and sailed east along the New Guinea coast. When far east of the Driniumor river the men climbed into two rubber boats and paddled ashore.

Airplane flights earlier had shown that the Japs had built a truck road from Wewak almost to the point where the patrol landed. The question was how much was coming up the road.

The patrol scouted the area. They found plenty. Once they almost walked into a Jap camp. When the time to reboard the rubber boats neared, the patrol was waylaid by 15 Japanese. Each American was assigned a Jap. They struck as one. Using only knives, they killed 14 of the 15 before any of them could cry a warning. The 15th they gagged and bound and took him back with them.

Then they recovered the rubber boats, paddled to a rendezvous with another boat and raced back to their own lines.

The other men on the patrol, all awarded silver stars, were:

Pvt. Frederick Wright, Oconto, Wis.; Pvt. Walter Wolfe, Detroit, Mich.; Pvt. Robert Stohler, Portland, Ore.; Pvt. Earl Vannetten, Muskegon Heights, Mich.; Sgt. Wesley Smith, Los Angeles, Cal.; Pvt. Donald Reed, Pinegrove Mills, Pa.; Leonard Pruett, Bluefield, W. Va.; Sgt. James McCue, Dorr, Mich.; Sgt. Lauron Brown, Bailey, Mich.; Pvt. Joseph Figueroa, Oakland, Cal.; Sgt. Francis Goode, Swannanoa, N. C.; Pvt. Chelsea Hamilton, Lomita, Cal.; Sgt. Francis Lisovich, Sharon, Pa., and Lt. Albert Pollick, Conshohocken, Pa.

POLLS DEFEAT NO SURPRISE TO CURTIN, HE SAYS

SYDNEY, Australia, Aug. 20 (AP).—The government's request for wide powers to carry out its post-war planning was rejected by Australians by a vote of 1,733,978 to 1,506,846, it was disclosed in figures released tonight.

Prime Minister Curtin said today he was disappointed but not surprised by the result, adding that Australia will face an era of great difficulty unless those who opposed the plan produce one of their own. The measure required a national majority vote as well as majorities in four of the six states.

CHINESE ATTACK JAP FORCES ON YANGTZE RIVER

CHUNGKING, China, Aug. 20.—(AP).—Chinese forces are attacking Japanese positions north and south of the Yangtze river in an effort to prevent enemy reënforcements of their Hunan province strength, the Chinese high command said tonight. In south Hunan in the vicinity of Japanese-held Hengyang, fighting was mounting in intensity.

Chinese troops drove against the port of Ichang on the Yangtze, westernmost point of the Japanese penetration into central China. Three strategic points northeast of the city were retaken by the Chinese, the high command said.

From the east, west, and northwest, Chinese columns were pictured as advancing against Tangyang, 27 miles northeast of Ichang and a connecting link for Japanese overland supply from Hankow, and another column was attacking the Yangtze port of Wanchieh west of Shasi.

NORWAY ENVOY PRAISES WORK OF UNDERGROUND

The underground system in Norway is proving highly effective in helping the allied cause, Wilhelm Morgenstierne, Norwegian ambassador to the United States, said yesterday. He spoke at the 49th picnic reunion at the Norwegian Old People's home, Nina and Avondale avs., which was attended by 6,500 persons.

How many thousands of Norwegians are supporting this underground campaign is a military secret, he said, "but it is the cause of great worry to the Nazis." He also praised the British people for "their high courage and morale under the strain of a long war."

The day's program included an American girl contest, athletic events, a bazar, and other entertainment.

Miracle Eye!

In the midst of the devastation of global war, let's call a recess from the news of the battlefront and visit the sector where science is advancing—constructively.

You've heard a great deal, now and then, about progress in the field of electronics. So come with me to Schenley Laboratories, Inc., at Lawrenceburg, Indiana, and get your first look at a rare new precision instrument called an "electron microscope." It is one of the few in the United States today and was developed and perfected by RCA Laboratories.

To give you just a slight idea of the magnifying power of this magic instrument, we'll take a human hair, which is about fifteen ten-thousandths of an inch in diameter and, presto, you look at it through this microscope and its size has changed to the proportions of the Washington Monument! That single human hair has been magnified about thirty thousand diameters. By making use of photographic enlargements, this magnification can be still further increased to one hundred thousand diameters. Think of this as compared with ordinary optical microscopes which magnify objects from two to three thousand times.

The human eye can now see objects which it has never gazed upon before; whose existence may have been suspected but which have, heretofore, never been seen. Here is a new "secret weapon," on the side of construction—not destruction!

The electron microscope is expected to play an important role, also, in the remaining days of the war. It will enable chemists and bacteriologists to widen their investigations of fermentation in the production of essential war alcohol; in the studies of yeast, which changes grain sugars into alcohol required for explosives and synthetic rubber; for new research on the vitamins which enrich livestock and poultry feeds processed from the residues of grain, which is used in making alcohol and in normal times—whiskey.

We'll say, again and again, that scientific progress can never be halted . . . come plagues, or wars or holocausts. Men and women in white keep marching on—with their eyes on the stars!

THOUSANDS SEE CRUISER CHICAGO ADDED TO FLEET

Christened with 2 Other Mighty Warships.

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 20.—In the greatest group christening of war vessels in American naval history, the heavy cruisers Chicago and Los Angeles and the aircraft carrier Antietam were added to America's naval might at the Philadelphia navy yard this afternoon.

Fifty thousand navy yard workers, Washington dignitaries, and prominent citizens of the places for which the ships were named were denied the spectacle of the ships sliding down the ways into the Delaware river. Instead, the ships were floated in the drydocks in which they were built.

Before the christening ceremony, 25 million gallons of water was let into the dock containing the cruisers and 30 million gallons into the Antietam's dock.

Christened by Mrs. Kelly.

The traditional smashing of a bottle of champagne on the prow of each vessel was a part of the ceremony, however, with Mrs. Edward J. Kelly, wife of Chicago's mayor doing the honors for the Chicago. The Los Angeles was christened by Mrs. Fletcher Bowron, wife of that city's mayor, and the Antietam by Mrs. Millard E. Tydings, wife of the Maryland senator. The Antietam was named for the Civil war battle fought in Maryland.

Mrs. Bowron and Mrs. Kelly followed the traditional form, saying, "in the name of the United States I christen thee Los Angeles [and Chicago]" But as Mrs. Tydings smashed the bottle against the carrier she shouted:

"Go get 'em Antietam!"

The new vessels will be "professional watchmen" to detect and control acts of aggression which may threaten the peace of the nation after the war, Ralph A. Bard, undersecretary of the navy, said in the principal address at the ceremony.

Instrument of Peace Also.

"The ships we launch today have a dual mission," Bard said. "They are instruments of war and peace alike. It is quite possible for America to retain its strength and at the same time participate in the creation of an international society to promote the cause of peace. The two are not incompatible."

Pride of the people of Chicago in the new vessel bearing their city's name was voiced by Mayor Kelly, speaking before Mrs. Kelly christened the ship. Construction of the Chicago was made possible by 47 million dollars in war bonds purchased by Chicagoans shortly after the loss of the previous cruiser Chicago in the Pacific in January, 1943.

Civic leaders of Chicago, a group of Chicago school children, and Rear Adm. Arthur S. Carpender, commandant of the 9th naval district, Great Lakes, Ill., were among the midwesterners present to see the Chicago christened. Sunny skies and cooling breezes added to the festivity of the occasion.

Carry 8 Inch Guns.

The Chicago and Los Angeles are 13,000 ton vessels and mount 8 inch guns in their main batteries. Other official statistics have not been made public.

The new Chicago is the third naval vessel to have that name. The first Chicago was built at Chester, Pa., in 1885 and was a unit of the old "white fleet," which ushered in the modern navy.

"But it was the second Chicago that captures our imagination," Undersecretary Bard said today.

"She participated in the battle of the Coral sea, saw action during the midget submarine attack on Sydney [Australia] harbor, and joined the screening force during the initial landings on Guadalcanal."

Bard then described how, in January, 1943, while convoying reenforcements to the Pacific war zone, she was attacked by Japanese planes and abandoned, later sinking.

$611 TAKEN IN THEFT.

Theft of $611, an automatic pistol, a revolver, and a pair of riding boots valued at $50 was reported to police yesterday by Harry Goldbaum, owner of the Fort Dearborn Trading post at 167 W. Washington st.

"There never are enough pots and pans in these rented summer cottages."

Dancing Horse

Doheos and master, who will perform for Chicago circus fans.

Patrons at tomorrow nights' opening performance of Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey circus in Soldiers' field will see Doheos, world celebrated dancing horse and his trainer, Albert Ostermaier, a feature act with the show. The initial performance, which has been designated "Million Dollar War Bond Night," will be restricted to bond buyers purchasing securities thru pay roll savings plans.

ELKS OF WORLD OPEN ANNUAL SESSIONS HERE

The 45th annual national convention of the Improved Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks of the World [Negro] opened yesterday with the Rev. J. C. Austin, pastor of the Pilgrim's Baptist church, Chicago, preaching the annual sermon. He told the audience of 1,500 that the world governments will tend toward brotherhood and that all races must develop self-reliance. Judge William Hueston of Washington, D. C., presided at the church service. Ten thousand are expected to attend the convention sessions, which will be held in Metropolitan church, 41st st. and South Park way.

INQUIRY OF PAC ACTIVITIES DUE IN HOUSE TODAY

Washington, D. C., Aug. 20 [Special].—The house committee investigating campaign expenditures today prepared to investigate operations of the CIO political action committee, which has pledged several million dollars to reëlect President Roosevelt and elect a "liberal" congress.

Sidney Hillman.

The committee, headed by Rep. Anderson [D., N. M.], opens secret hearings tomorrow at which members of congress have been invited to express their views on activities of groups or individuals in connection with congressional elections.

Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO political action committee, and C. B. Baldwin, assistant director, will be quizzed by the committee next week. Baldwin, former head of the farm security administration, has been charged with using that agency to further CIO political interests.

2 Brothers Found Dead of Heart Attacks in Beds

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 20 [Special]. — Two brothers were found dead in their beds today of heart attacks. One, Jerome Bopp, 56, an accountant, was found in his home by his sister, Mrs. Emma Grelle. She asked her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kennedy, to notify a younger brother Walter, 48, an interior decorator, who was camping east of the city. When the couple arrived at the camp they found Walter dead in his tent. Both had died in their sleep.

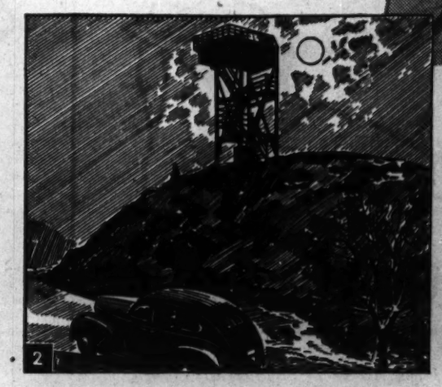
"GAS COUPONS DON'T GROW ON TREES . . .

"Sure glad I've got a FORD!"

says MRS. RUSSELL PERKINS
Social Worker
Moorestown, New Jersey

● The millions of Ford owners share a special pride and satisfaction. For they know that economy, reliability and smart appearance have been built into their cars to last. And efficient Ford Protective Service is readily available wherever they may be. That's why you will hear it said over and over again, "Sure glad I've got a Ford!"

"EVERY WEEKDAY, RAIN OR SHINE, my faithful 1939 Ford carries three of us to the hospital where I work in the Out-Patient Clinic. It's 18 miles round-trip...and now when every drop of gas is precious, Ford's famous economy means a lot!"



"MY HUSBAND WAS 'CHIEF OBSERVER' of the Army Aircraft Warning Service. And many a cold night our Ford has climbed Mt. Laurel. But we never had trouble. And, with regular checkups at our Ford dealer's, repairs have cost next to nothing."

"BEFORE THE WAR, the car was filled with children, dogs, golf clubs and tennis racquets. Now, on Sundays my twin granddaughters visit their great grandmother. Yes, we've always had mighty happy times in our Ford. It's like one of the family!"

Thru the Looking Glass

We thought that every one was pretty well aware by this time that brushing is good for the hair, be it straight, permanented, naturally curly, dry, oily, or what have you. But evidently there are still some who do not believe in the merits of the practice. We have an inquiry from a woman who wants to know if there is any truth in the rumor that a permanent should not be brushed. That is definitely a rumor and, like most rumors, without any basis of truth.

The fact is that permanents benefit from vigorous brushing even when brand new. You have probably noticed that the hairdresser generally gives the locks a hair raising brushing after the new permanent has been set and dried. And what the expert operator does is a good precedent to follow when taking care of the hair after you leave the shop. Brush and brush some more is the maxim most women follow to bring the look of natural, soft curl to the newly acquired rolls and ringlets. You can't hurt the curl, that's a certainty—it's in— but permanently. Of course it will grow out in time, any one knows that, and the new growth will need curling after a while, but in the interim, wield your brush to your heart's content.

We do know some timid souls who hesitate to use a hairbrush because they get the locks all mixed up and are unable to put the curls back into the shape they were when they left the beauty shop. However, if that's the case, we'd suggest that the hair be brushed in sections. This will not spoil the outline irretrievably, and while it isn't as good as an over-all brushing, it is a second best that you can fall back on if you're afraid to tackle the whole head at once. And then, in the interest of hair and scalp health, give it a good treatment of over-all brushing the night before you visit the beauty shop for your regular appointment.

International Star Boat Races Start in Lake Today

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Star boats which sail this week off the shores of Lake Michigan will fly the burgees of yacht clubs from Cuba to California which have sent challengers to participate in the 22d annual championship of the International Star Class Yacht Racing association, starting today and ending Saturday. This year the Chicago Yacht club is host to the regatta, with Charles H. Pajeau, one of the three rear commodores of the international association, as chairman of the regatta committee. Robert Cameron, fleet captain of the Southern Lake Michigan Star Boat fleet, which includes Stars from the Montrose, Jackson park, Belmont, and Chicago harbors, will manage the shore events.

When the association held its annual meeting yesterday at the Chicago Yacht club, Adrian Iselin II., was elected to succeed George A. Corry, who died last December. "Pop" Corry, as he was called affectionately by all Star skippers, originated that class and owned the first Star boat, Little Dipper. In his memory every one of the more than 2,000 Stars in the world this year carries a black band.

Sailing as challenger for the Sheridan Shore fleet will be Donald Bergman, with John Lane as crew. The Southern Lake Michigan's challenger is Bert Williams of the Chicago Yacht club, who will be assisted by Americus P. Nye. Of the other 17 challengers representing that many fleets, two are coming from outside the country—Carlos de Cardenas of Havana, Cuba, and Basil McKinney of Nassau, Bahamas. Since travel conditions make it impossible to bring boats to Chicago from a distance, members of the two local fleets are lending their Stars to the challengers, who, however, will use their own sails.

Each of the local yacht clubs will contribute a trophy for one day of the five day event. Today's trophy has been given by the Columbia Yacht club, which will be host tonight at a dinner-dance. The Chicago Corinthian Yacht club, donor of tomorrow's trophy, is giving a buffet dinner that night. On Wednesday the skippers will go out to the Jackson Park Yacht club, which is donating Wednesday's trophy, for a smorgasbord dinner. Thursday will be a rest day, but the races will be resumed Friday for a trophy given by the Sheridan Shore Yacht club, which has planned a dance for that night. The winner's dinner Saturday at the Chicago Yacht club, which is contributing the Saturday trophy, will wind up the series.

Service Notes.

After a well earned vacation at the Huron Mountain club, following several months of duty in the Pacific, Lt. Comdr. and Mrs. Woodbury S. Ober left Thursday for Washington, D. C., where he will report for duty. Comdr. Ober returned to this country unexpectedly a few weeks ago.

Lt. and Mrs. William M. Belding have gone to Yorktown, Va., where he will attend an advanced training school. Before he returned to Glencoe recently to spend his leave with his wife and parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hiram H. Belding Jr., Lt. Belding received a citation in a ceremony aboard ship in the Pacific for his outstanding work as commanding officer of a minesweeper.

Maj. and Mrs. Waldo M. Allen and their two children, Waldo Jr. and Mary, now are living in Grosse Pointe, Mich. They moved from Boston a few months ago when Maj. Allen was transferred by the army from that city to Detroit.

If WAC Lt. Alice Bradley Davey is able to obtain leave from her duties with the army air forces in Washington, D. C., in the near future, she will go to Lost Lodge in the north woods of Wisconsin, the summer home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Bradley. The Bradleys are spending the month of August at the lodge.

Wedding Ceremonies.

After a week's visit with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Earl L. Vernon, of Hutchinson pl., Lt. Franklin J. Vernon and his bride, the former June Talmadge Laird, are leaving today for Camp Claiborne, La. The former Miss Laird, daughter of Mrs. Katherine Laird of Columbus, O., and Lt. Vernon were married at 4:30 p. m. on Aug. 12 in the chapel of the Broad Street Presbyterian church in Columbus. Dr. and Mrs. Vernon were present at the small family ceremony as was Lt. Vernon's sister, Mrs. Con Casser, who stopped off in Columbus to be matron of honor en route to Camp Lee, Va., to visit Lt. Casser at his army post. Missing from the family gathering was the bridegroom's brother, Lt. [j. g.] John T. Vernon, who is stationed with the navy in the Pacific. Lt. Vernon and his bride will live in Alexandria, La.

Announcement of the marriage of Miss Ruth Irene Brown of Miami, Fla., to Edward G. Trueblood, on Aug. 13 in the Trueboods' summer home at Washington Island, Wis., is of interest here because Mr. Trueblood formerly lived in Chicago and on the north shore. Mr. Trueblood, a member of the state department, for the last year has been first secretary of the American embassy in San Jose, Costa Rica. After a short wedding trip he and his bride will leave for his new post in Lima, Peru, where he will be first secretary. He is a brother of Wilson D. Trueblood Jr. of Evanston.

Here and There.

Members of the Cliff Dwellers have received invitations to a reception for Josephine Antoine and Désiré Defauw, following Miss Antoine's appearance at the Grant park bandshell on Friday night. The Cliff Dwellers will go in a body to hear the concert that night and then will return to their headquarters to entertain the soloists and Mr. Defauw, conductor of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Birney [Jean Hauxhurst] of Lake Forest are being congratulated on the birth of a son, Bruce James, on Aug. 1 in Evanston hospital. The baby has a 4 year old brother, Kenneth Jr.

Winnetkan to Be Early Autumn Bride

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Miss Janice Gibson Chiquoine, who will be married to Joseph M. Cogar, son of Mrs. William B. Cogar of Midway, Ky., at 8 p. m. on Oct. 7 in the Winnetka Congregational church. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Victor L. Chiquoine of Winnetka, will give a reception at the Indian Hill club after the wedding. Mr. Cogar and his bride will live in Naples, Fla., and Milwaukee, Wis.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Gallery of Immortals.

It was during the recent hot spell that M. N. A.'s boss proved himself eligible to the gallery of immortals.

The personnel head had announced that the girls could leave early because of the heat—if their work was caught up. Every gal in the place immediately consulted her own particular "man" on whether there was urgent work to be done. Altho M. N. A.'s boss had a letter to be typed he said affably: "You can do it tomorrow, but date it today, as I should have sent it yesterday."

Word Study.

Speaking of words with opposed meaning but the results of which, in this case, are the same, how about a man running for office [in the United States] and standing for election [in Britain]?

BOB PROVIDENT HEIM.

The Difference.

The other day our high school WCG was called upon to describe the difference between two big bosses. She was talking over the telephone and trying to give a general description which would enable a stranger to differentiate. This is what she said:

"When you come in, one of them will try to wolf and you'll think he's a sly slicker of the gay '90s. Then the other one will try to wolf and you'll feel like Lana Turner—and think he's absolutely wonderful!"

NOSEY PARKER II.

Dis and Data.

A court reporting organization in the Ashland block maintains full equipment and generous supplies to take care of the girls' demands for cokes, toasted sandwiches, waffles, ham and eggs, coffee, etc. Occasionally the boss uses it to entertain customers. . . . William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission, predicted before the Publicity club last week that [even if the war is over] there will be 55 million in the labor force of men and women in 1946—nine million more than in 1940. . . .

O. B. Kay complains that in Rick-Moran's typewriter drawing of the little dipper the handle turns the wrong way—surely some white collar girl will take this matter up with Rick—under the stars. . . . For that Labor day week-end in town get the pamphlet "Vacationing in Chicago" at the Municipal Reference library, Room 1005, City Hall, Chicago 2, Ill., or send 10 cents in stamps and an addressed envelope to that address and it will be mailed. . . . Telephony relates the story of the army officer in Newport News, Va., who asked for a long distance number. The operator said, "Thank you, just a moment, please." After waiting a moment the officer was startled to hear a plaintive, little voice ask: "Won't you please say 'You're welcome?' All day I say 'Thank you' and no one ever says 'You're welcome.'" He did.

Park Concert 'Discovers' a Rich Contralto

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

A thrilling new voice was heard at Grant park last night when Lillian Chookasian, Chicago contralto, appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the direction of Erno Rapee. Miss Chookasian is a true contralto, authentic member of a tribe so rare as to be almost nonexistent in these days when contraltos yearn to be mezzo sopranos and mezzos look wistfully at the dramatic soprano repertory. Hers is a big, thick, extraordinarily beautiful voice, with a middle range restful as a voluminous velvet cradle, an upper range of startling brilliance, glinting like polished bronze, and the low notes of a young bass, tho as yet she isn't quite sure what to do with them.

Appearing after intermission, as a kind of afterthought, she had time to sing just one aria and one encore, but they were enough for one of the major successes of the summer. The aria was the lyrical "My Heart Is Weary" from "Nadeshda," an almost forgotten 19th century opera by the English composer, A. Goring Thomas. Not unduly distinguished as music, it was cannily chosen to exploit the very tone color and range that made people sit up and take notice. The encore was equally wise, the lovely "Calm as the Night" sung with an opulent ease that made listening luxurious.

Among Miss Chookasian's audience was her husband, Pvt. George Davejan, on furlough from Camp Browder for that very purpose and with every right to be proud. Perhaps his commanding officer also will make a note of Oct. 5, when Miss Chookasian appears at Orchestra hall with the Manuel and Williamson harpsichord ensemble.

Mr. Rapee gave the singer helpful accompaniment and a little professional advice about microphones. His own part of the concert came from the "Pop" bin, even to dispensing with the adagios of the Tschaikowsky Sixth, a procedure which must have puzzled a few who wondered why call it "Pathétique." Glinka's "Russian and Ludmilla," Ippolitoff-Ivanoff's "Caucasian Sketches" and some of Bizet's "L'Arlesienne" music were played, as well as the rarely heard Brocken ballet music from "Faust," which Gounod used in Paris to introduce the courtesans of antiquity.

Old-Time Hats Back, and It's a Good Thing

BY REA SEEGER.

Fall and winter hat collections are being launched with pomp and ceremony. Reasons are the sensational new outlines, sizes, and somewhat dizzy altitudes of the high turbans. Feathers, ribbon, veiling, fur, and fabrics make these toppers well worth all the attention. Coq feathers, the exquisite frail lacy effects of goura, ostrich plumes and little cluster curls, and the inevitable return of wings and birds recall the charm and coquettish swish of the belles in the family album pictures of two and three decades ago.

One thing is certain: These hats are really hats, not flimsy, skittery, little dabs and discs or floral corsage effects. They're actual creations of definite substance, not only to carry but to view. The towering turbans are startling at first. This, no doubt, is because of the sudden sweep from the smallest and most inconsequential hats of history to the opposite extreme of wide, high, thick, and very complicated arrangements. No one but an expert milliner could possibly essay such a model. No woman in her right mind would dare try a concoction of her own, this fall. Nor will the absurdly small hats made of left-overs of a dress or suit see the world from the coiffure of fashionwise women.

New hats are tremendously flattering and feminine. The gigantic, wide brims, edged with feathers and the crisp, sharp, shallow upturned brims copied from the hats in Paul Helleu etchings are patrician delights for the woman who asks for sleek perfection and a certain degree of elegance. The little ribbon trimmed hats recall the delicious manner of Edwardian lush and plush, while the very essence of youth is assured with the Charlotte Corday bonnet effects.

Music Festival and Audience Both Praised

Bianca Saroya, one of the singing judges, yesterday divided her compliments between the musical opportunities at the 15th annual Chicago Music Festival and the friendliness and responsiveness of the audience of 90,000 that filled Soldiers' field Saturday night. The festival, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, is one of the nation's biggest events.

"It was marvelous to see young singers have the opportunity to win recognition," said Miss Saroya, operatic soprano and teacher of singing. "All of the finalists have promises of fine careers.

"The music festival is a glorious fusion of culture and neighborliness and I was particularly impressed with the response to great music. Nowhere have I seen a more reverent attitude, so appropriate in expressing thoughts of our men across the seas, than was displayed by the vast multitude as it listened so quietly to 'Faith,' 'The Nation's Prayer,' 'The Lord's Prayer,' and the 'Hallelujah Chorus.'"

Harry Armstrong, the man who was honored as the composer of "Sweet Adeline" at the 15th festival's recognition of barber shop singing, said he had never seen "a more wonderful and enthusiastic throng."

"They didn't want to go home and I didn't either," added Armstrong. "People just lingered there and were friendly. I don't know why other big cities, particularly those in the east, don't try to hold such music festivals."

The 15th festival will be remembered, said Director Philip Maxwell, as the first time in entertainment history that a theatrical troup in costume appeared at such a gathering and answered on schedule its regular curtain call two miles away. That was accomplished by the cast of "Oklahoma!" whose singing and acting were coupled with achievements in timing and fast transportation.

"The Chicago Music Festival continues to be an inspiration to other communities to hold similar affairs," said Dr. F. E. Bollaert, director of the Mississippi Valley music festival at East Moline. "It gives singers and players the chance to be recognized in their home communities and then go on to greater glory in the larger fields."

CASTLE GUARDED.

They passed the little turn-off where the market cart had set Carol and Bright down earlier that day; or no, that was yesterday. It had been after midnight when they left Le Bastion. Just ahead lay the winding descent into the valley where Nice slept her troubled sleep. Then they rounded a hairpin turn and abruptly the road was no longer deserted. A car with a searchlight on it was coming up the grade toward them.

There was no doubt but that it was a military patrol car. The small but penetrating hand operated light attached to the windshield swept its narrow beam in one direction and then another, cutting into shadowed corners and then returning to the ground positions which made it invisible from the air. The car climbed slowly but fatefully, for there was no escaping it. On one hand rose the steep rocky cliff, on the other the low stone parapet was the only thing which stood between the road and a sheer drop of a hundred feet or more.

"If they see us we are sunk!" said Bright.

"What'll we do?"

"Flatten out against the rock. Don't move. And pray!"

He led the way over the stony gutter and in another moment they were standing with their backs to the cliff, motionless. The car came nearer and nearer, the thin blade of light slashing slowly thru the dark, arching up onto dim patches of vegetation, then streaming down at intervals upon the parapet. The car was abreast of them now, and there were four uniformed men in it. Carol held her breath but the car did not stop. It turned the curve just above and continued the climb onto the middle corniche. The sound of the motor grew fainter and finally Bright gave her hand a little tug.

"Green light!" he said. "I don't like this business of being the only people in sight. Let's get down to where we can do a little mingling."

On the lower road when they finally reached it, the clumsy carts of local farmers were already making their way into town. It was almost daylight and the town was beginning to stir when they reached Papa Brochard's. The dwarf, Georges, let them in, dancing for joy at the sight of Carol.

"She's exhausted," Bright told Brochard. "She's got to sleep now. I'll try and tell you what happened."

She was mounting the narrow stairs even as he said it. The little room with the huge bed looked like heaven.

It was hours later that Carol awoke to a wonderful sense of having found something precious. She had been dreaming of a Kansas wheat field—a vast sea of ripe gold which stretched away on every side as far as the eye could see. She had been standing in that field looking for something which was not visible, but which she felt certain was nearby, hidden in the ripe grain. Then suddenly she knew what it was she had found. Lita! She had been looking for her twin and could feel her nearness.

Carol sat up on the bed, seeing the stuffy room now, remembering. Lita was gone, but she could be found. In that moment Carol knew that whatever the end of her mission, she could not leave France until she had fulfilled that dream about her sister.

She told Brigh* about it later as they sat drinking the millet-substitute for coffee which Papa Brochard had sent up to them. Bright was reluctant to try what seemed a hopeless search.

"And I have an idea those maps can still be got before we try going back to Africa," she added.

Dodger Dugan, his bandy legs curled under him, listened with the same avid attention he had given to their account of what had happened at Le Bastion.

"Go back t' Africa?" he said between gulps. "Nuts! What would we sail in?"

"A boat," said Bright patiently.

"What boat? Didn't th' ole boy tell you? That guy that brought us in with th' herrings ain't goin' to take us back. He got picked up by the Jerry M. P.'s."

"You don't say!"

"Yeah! They smelled sometin' fishy after they found the sentry bumped off in front of the local lobster palace and started moppin'."

"Brochard will find another boat."

"After th' way you dumped that first baseman over a cliff last night? Brother, its goin' to be tough to do!"

"Dodger is right," said Carol. "We are going to have to move in some direction and fast. Bright, we can't go back empty handed. Those papers still exist, I'm sure of it."

"Why?"

"Somebody has taken them and only recently. But it wasn't done last night."

"How can you be sure?"

"Because there was a hairpin lying across the opening. It was dusty."

"Bright eyes!" he said. "Well, you could be right."

"We know Jacques hasn't got the papers. We can feel mighty sure Janner hasn't got them either or there wouldn't have been all that questioning of me last night. There is only one explanation. Either Victorine or Lita must have those maps; more probably Lita. She knew their value, and I believe she took them with her before Jacques could turn them over to Janner. If we can only find Lita, we will probably find the maps as well."

"That makes sense," Bright said quietly. "And Mme. Victorine likely knows more than she's told us. If we could get to talk to her, we could maybe start a little prospecting!"

"Yes, if we could get to talk to her is right," Carol agreed. "But when? Every moment we stay here is endangering the Brochards."

"Any chance of her coming here? Doesn't she come home sometimes?"

"Certainly. She used to bring food from the castle every day. But that was when things were comparatively normal up there."

All morning long Papa Brochard walked up and down the room at intervals declaring that it was impossible for the three to remain. Then he would plunge down the stairs to maintain some sort of front in his kitchen, only to return again in a short while and renew his lamentations. It was in intense relief to every one when Mme. Victorine appeared shortly after noon, even tho the news she brought was not good. She had been discharged from the castle, and it was now surrounded by guards with no one allowed to come or go.

"The saints be thanked that you are here," she cried at sight of Carol. "Those pigs at Le Bastion, they would not tell me anything!"

"What happened after you told me they'd locked Carol in?" Bright demanded.

"They locked me in my room also. Then this morning they let me out and said I was no longer needed. Then a guard put me outside."

Sweet corn is moderately priced and of pretty good quality. To be at its best, it should be cooked within an hour of picking, but since few of us have corn growing in a garden, it frequently is impossible to eat corn at its best. The ears lose moisture and sweetness at a rapid rate, once picked, and if the husks are removed much before cooking time, this occurs even faster.

Corn may be boiled, steamed or roasted in the oven or boiler. By any method, the cooking time is brief, not usually more than 10 minutes except for roasting.

For a special treat sometime, cook the corn in the broiler, brushing it well with bacon fat first, and turning the ears so that they brown slightly all around. Corn thus prepared tastes like the "roasting ears" you've cooked over an open fire for a picnic.

Cooked corn may be reheated in cream and seasoned with salt and pepper. It's good with the addition of a little minced onion and finely chopped green pepper, too.

If you wish to can corn, the freshness is extremely important. Corn is the most difficult of vegetables to can, and shouldn't be canned at all unless very fresh. The only accepted method is the pressure cooker.

Canning Corn.

Use only young, tender, very fresh ears. Husk corn, remove all silks, and cut from the cob about ¾ thru the kernel, using a sharp knife. Scrape the cobs with the back of the knife to obtain all the milky juice [but don't scrape so hard you get parts of the cob itself!]. Place in kettle with enough boiling water to cover, and pre-cook for 3 to 5 minutes. Pack loosely in pint jars, to within an inch of the top, adding ½ teaspoon salt to each pint. Fill jars with boiling water to within an inch of the top. Adjust caps according to kind used and process at 10 pounds pressure for 65 minutes.

Two piece caps [metal lid with composition rim and separate screw band] are screwed on firmly before processing, and not further tightened. Three piece caps including rubber rings are tightened, then turned back a quarter turn before processing. After processing they are immediately tightened.

Overprocessing corn or processing it at too high a pressure will cause the corn sugar to caramelize, and the corn itself will be dark and scorched in flavor.

Heat penetration in quart jars is not good, so corn should be canned in pints only.

Chicago Reclaims More Tins as Quota Is Raised

Chicago stepped up its contribution of tin cans last week, Mrs. Walter J. Kelly, chairman of the tin-fat committee of the Chicago office of civilian defense, said yesterday, but the city's quota, increased since the Normandy invasion, will not be reached this month. Highest individual industrial contributors during the week, she said, were the Orange Products corporation and the restaurant conducted for employes of the First National bank.

Frozen Cream Cheese Salad.
[Serves six.]

½ pound cream cheese
½ cup mayonnaise
⅓ pint top milk
1 bunch parsley or watercress, minced

Mash cream cheese with a fork; gradually working in mayonnaise. Add top milk and beat mixture with rotary beater until well blended. Add parsley or watercress and turn into freezing tray of automatic refrigerator. Freeze until firm. Cut into squares or cubes and serve on salad greens. Pretty and delicious when served on tomato slices.

Bette Davis' Latest Movie Ineptly Done

"MR. SKEFFINGTON."

A Warner Brothers picture, directed by Vincent Sherman, starring Bette Davis, and presented at the State-Lake.

Good Morning!

. . . All the king's horses and all the king's men [beauticians] Couldn't put Humpty Dumpty [Mrs. Skeffington] together again.

This story is mostly about Mrs. Skeffington.

The film is, I think, an inept adaptation of the novel "Elizabeth." The heroine is a woman who makes beauty her fetish and discovers—with age—that it has stripped her of everything in life worth having. [Same being represented by Mr. Skeffington—kicked out by her in her springtime—and whose devotion was the only real love she ever won.]

In my opinion Bette Davis was not the woman for the part. Certainly she has been poorly treated in the matter of photography and make-up. . . . Supposedly a girl in the first scenes, she looks 40—which sad state of affairs could have been remedied by photography thru a screen or some such subterfuge. Couldn't it? And toward the last [when I believe the book said 50, but her doctor in the film says something about 60] she looks a clownish 90. . . . "The mother of Zonable," muttered some one who sat next to me in the projection room. I wish I'd thought of that!

Crude and silly are the countless episodes showing hordes of maudlin males seeking favors of the incomparable Fanny, who, as the friend with me remarked, was "neither a Scarlett O'Hara nor a Camille"—just a vain, self-absorbed woman with a cultivated clinging vine manner, spending the overgenerous allowance settled on her by Mr. Skeffington solely on the maintenance of her beauty, background, and a worthless brother whose imminent incarceration in the hoosegow had been a big reason for her wedding to Mr. S.

Years and illness take their toll. . . . Onetime admirers creak and vanish. . . . Younger men appear to disappear. . . . ReEnters Mr. Skeffington to NEED Mrs. Skeffington, who learns what many women realize blessedly before they start to disintegrate, that to be needed is one of the greatest things in life for anybody and that "a woman is only beautiful when she is loved . . ."

The film rings in a plain and unwanted daughter, exquisitely played by Sylvia Arslan as the child and Marjorie Riordan as a young woman. . . .

Claude Rains makes the husband quietly effective . . . Dorothy Peterson is splendid as Manby, the heroine's faithful maid, and there are other able characterizations. But direction I didn't care for—and I shall read "Of Human Bondage" again to remind myself what Bette Davis, rightly cast, really can do.

See you tomorrow.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 20. — Ralph Bellamy's new contract with Hunt Stromberg, since finishing the romantic lead in "Guest in the House," gives him the right to do two New York plays a year, one as actor, another as producer or director. Ralph is another actor who had to go to New York to be rediscovered by Hollywood. More than a year ago he went with his agent to a studio to talk about a minor role for which he was being considered. He picked up the script and came to this description of the character: "A dull fellow from the middle west, an oaf., a Ralph Bellamy character." That did it. Ralph was fed to the teeth with those dull oafs. So he took the first train out, and next we knew, was doing the lead in "Tomorrow the World" on Broadway. . . . Pvt. Ray McDonald, who's working in the picture "Winged Victory," will wed Elisabeth Frazer of the New York stage cast of "Winged Victory" when she arrives here in early September.

Hollywood's Forbidden Fruit.

Gregory Peck will kiss Ingrid Bergman twice as long as the Hays office allows in "House of Dr. Edwardes," but don't get excited—here's how they do it. First the camera records the kiss, then pans down to its reflection in a brook — and Mr. Hays can't say a word. . . . "Swing Out, Sisters," Universal's new musical with Gracie McDonald, Rod Cameron, and Arthur Treacher, gets under way today, with Edward Lilley directing. Arthur, who is so tired of being a "gentleman's gentleman," writes me about this: "I think it may interest you to know that I am starting a picture in which I do not play the part of a butler. This not only proves the world is round, but it also proves the power of the press. . . . . William Sheehan, who was second assistant to Mark Sandrich on "Here Come the Waves," wanted to be an actor. So Mark made a test of him with Sonny Tufts, and as a result Bill now has a contract and a good part in "Duffy's Tavern."

Hats Off to Major.

Werner Janssen, who's doing the music for "Guest in the House," gave his German police dog, Major, to the coast guard two years ago. Major was shipped to the South Pacific, where the dog was wounded in action and shipped back to this coast for a two weeks' furlough. The coast guard asked Janssen to come up for a visit with Major. It was a happy reunion for both. Now Major, who has a service ribbon, is fully recovered and soon will be shipped out again. . . . I was talking with Mr. Weatherwax, who was the trainer of Ronnie, the little terrier in "Sunday Dinner for a Soldier." He tells me his brother Mack is working for the government in the biggest dog training station in the world. He is de-training dogs. After they've taught dogs to be savage for fighting purposes [and the dogs have a fine record in this war] they have to be de-trained before they're returned to their owners. It's a difficult job. It takes longer to break a habit than to make one.

This Picture Sounds Good.

Our own Norman Foster directed "La Fuga," the Mexican picture. Esther Fernandez, who commutes between Hollywood and Mexican Pictures [she recently finished "Two Years Before the Mast" for Paramount], is starred, and Sally Blaine, Norman's wife, plays an important role. It would be mighty nice to see Norman on our screen again, but I hear he's happy and doing so well south of the border that he isn't even thinking about coming back. . . . Louis Armstrong and band are finishing "Pillar to Post," then flying to Fort Huachuca in an army bomber to entertain service men.

Information, Please.

Has Lester Cowan got the inside track on the life story of Eleanor Roosevelt for filming, when F. D. R. becomes an ex-President? . . . Bob Wills, the fabulous cowboy, and his Texas playboys have signed to do two pictures with Columbia. First will be "Raiders of Quanto Basin." . . . Five famous old-timers will be in the cast of "Trail from the East." They are Gertrude Astor, Chester Conklin, Bryant Washburn, Frank Mayo, and Jason Robards. . . .The Selznick mail clerks and messenger girls have been giving Dore Schary questioning looks, and now he knows why. He wrote the state prison parole boards of each state for information to use in his picture, "I'll Be Seeing You." It looked mighty suspicious for a guy to get several letters a day from parole boards all over the nation. . . . Danny Kaye has almost recovered from that accident which injured his knee, but Bruce Humberstone, who injured his while trying to show the press boys how Danny's accident happened, is still walking with a cane. Imitation never pays.

Women in War Work

By Dorothy Johnson

Mrs. W. Earle Phinney, blood donor chairman for McHenry county, invites all residents of the county to visit the Dean Street school in Woodstock tomorrow, Wednesday, and Thursday to contribute to the Red Cross Chicago chapter's mobile unit, which will be stationed there especially for the county's first plasma drive. Woodstock has been selected as headquarters because it is centrally situated.

Directors at the blood donor center, 5 N. Wabash av., hope that the McHenry county campaign will make up the deficit of 2,000 pints in the chapter's quota.

Six hundred workers of the Oakes company in Crystal Lake, as well as citizens of that town, will make their plasma contributions to the mobile unit on Sept. 6 and 7.

The Marine Mothers' club will give a party at 2 p. m. tomorrow for patients in the wards of the United States Naval hospital at the Great Lakes Naval Training center. Mrs. Charles Larson will be chairman of the event. Members will bring refreshments, cigarets, and a radio for one of the wards. An Hawaiian women's orchestra will play. The party is one in a series given by the club on the fourth Tuesday of every month.

On Aug. 31 Mrs. Catherine Rogal, president, and other members will contribute to the Red Cross blood donor center. She invites all women who are relatives of marines to give blood with the group to the plasma pool that day. Appointments may be made by calling Wabash 7850, extension 91.

Under the direction of Mrs. Howard Stegner, wives of enlisted men at Great Lakes meet daily and on Tuesday evenings at the chief petty officers' club to make surgical dressings for the Camp McIntire dispensary. Several enlisted WAVES also work with the group, which has been turning out dressings, often as many as 3,000 a day, for a year and a half.

The SPARS, women's reserve of the Coast Guard, will open a new recruiting office at 5244 Hohman av. in Hammond, Ind., today. Lt. [j. g.] June Nowak and a staff of SPARS will be available to answer questions and accept enlistment applications daily between 9 a. m. and 5:30 p. m. On Thursdays and Saturdays the office will be open until 10 p. m.

Both the Hammond office and the Chicago procurement headquarters, 53 W. Jackson blvd., are seeking to recruit as many women between 20 and 35 as possible. Applicants must have had two years of high school or business school training, have no children less than 18, and must be American citizens. SPARS now are replacing men at shore stations as parachute riggers, drivers, cooks and bakers, pharmacist's mates, photographer's mates, and chaplain's aids, as well as in scores of other jobs.

[This department reports on women's war activities and answers questions regarding such activities.]

Saddened Lad Would Regain Girl's Interest

BY MAUREEN DALY.

[Copyright: 1944: By The Chicago Tribune.]

"Last summer I met a girl who is attractive and popular. We began to date often but I was away from home much of the time at military school. We wrote to each other and I thought everything was going smoothly, but when I came home she didn't seem to know me and we had an argument about another boy with whom we double dated. So, here I am back at military school again and very sorry we argued. . . . What should I do?"

Why not just write to the girl and tell her that you are sorry about the argument? Ten to one she is an amiable honeychile and just as sorry as you are about the unpleasantness. Very often, when a guy and a gal are separated, one or the other "presumes" a deeper friendship which isn't there simply because it hasn't had time to develop. Maybe this particular Joe read too much between the lines of those letters and when he came home expecting to find an ever-lovin' doll, there was just a casual friend, surprised at his ardor.

Get to know this gal little by little; don't rush her into a hand holding friendship which she doesn't feel. You may have concluded that she is lovely to look at and delightful to know, but she may need more time to get to know you. She may want to talk to you till she knows what you read, what you do for hobbies, how you like to spend an evening, what you think about girls . . . all about you; then she may be ready to be your special honeychile. A good gal is always worth waiting for, so don't rush it.

If you were wrong in the argument about the double date, don't hesitate to apologize. You don't have to go down on your knees in pen and ink but just let the girl know you regret being rude. That kind of apology isn't difficult.

Veterinary Medical Association Opens Sessions Tomorrow

The American Veterinary Medical association's convention will open here tomorrow and the women's auxiliary will hold its meeting at the same time.

Program plans are under the direction of Mrs. C. L. Miller of Oak Park, Mrs. O. Norling Christensen of Wilmette, and Mrs. A. C. Merrick of Brookfield. The women's session will begin at 10 a. m. tomorrow with a general assembly in the grand ballroom of the Palmer House; an informal reception is scheduled for 3 p. m., and alumnae dinners for 6 p. m.

After luncheon, Mme. Julia Marie S. Colbjornsen of the Norwegian embassy in Washington, D. C., will address the auxiliary at 2 p. m. on Wednesday. That night the annual banquet and president's reception and dance will be held. The women's program will close Thursday with a noon luncheon in the Edgewater Beach hotel.

Southtown Party Today.

The Southtown Woman's club will give a party, the last in a series of summer benefits, at 1 p. m. today at Mrs. Harry Aldrich's home, 6732 Perry av.

Wise Adult Treats Child as a Person

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1944: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Jack came slowly up the front porch steps and dropped into a chair.

"Mrs. Jones thanks you for the tomatoes, Mom," he announced, and then exclaimed, "Whew! Did she ask me questions! I felt like two cents—

"'My, Jack, how you've grown. . . . How tall are you now?

"'Were you promoted last term?

"'Doesn't your sister, Lucy, envy you your curly head?

"'How old are you?

"'What are you going to do with yourself this summer? I think a boy should try to pick up a little money during vacation. What does your father think?'"

To some persons children aren't like regular human beings. When they talk to them they change their tone of voice, they change their manner, they try desperately hard to come down to what they imagine is the child's level. And the result is usually a catechism of a personal and uninteresting nature like that quoted above, which, by the way, is not an exaggeration, as you probably know from experience. And the children are bored to death by it, not to mention the embarrassment they feel.

If those same adults only thought of children as human beings, they would act as they do with their contemporaries. They tactfully, with grownups, try to find a topic of mutual interest or perhaps one of interest only to the other person and talk about that: music, golf, servants, clothes, children, or books. So with children—instead of putting them thru a crossfire of questions, they should talk about the things that interest a child: baseball or hockey, dolls or velocipedes, hiking or camping, or show an interest in their belongings. It is interesting to watch adults who understand children meet them on their own ground.

Also, some persons, unconsciously perhaps, have the habit of using a voice, a manner, and an attitude toward children they would never think of using toward an adult—a rudeness, a sharpness, an ordering around way, which one little girl designated as "being bossy."

If you will only go about it in the right way, you'll find most children interesting guests or thoughtful and entertaining hosts or hostesses, if a situation demands it. Let them do the talking—helping them with a suggestion or two to start the ball rolling—and you'll often be surprised and delighted with their conversation.

Families' Need of Curtains and a Dresser Told

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

We hope our readers can assist Mrs. A., who lives on the northwest side of the city. She writes:

"Dear Miss Brown:

"Because you have helped me before, I am coming to you again. Since I last wrote to you, I have lost my husband, and I am doing my best to provide for the children. Our home has become very shabby, and I wonder if any reader could provide me with some curtains. Mine have been washed so much that they are almost worn out and my present income does not provide for anything but food and rent, and small payments on our bills. We have three large windows in the living room, and I also need kitchen and bedroom curtains."

Perhaps some reader could provide a dresser for Mrs. B. She is the young mother of two children. Her husband is in service. She has not been well and is unable to work. There is no place for the storage of clothing in her tiny apartment, and she now uses cardboard boxes. If any reader can provide a chest of drawers or a dresser, she would be glad to have them.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	2 clubs	Pass
2 no trump	Pass	3 clubs	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Pass

West led the spade six; East played the jack, and declarer won.

Declarer feared that if he tried to establish the clubs, East would have the ace and would return spades thru the single remaining honor in the closed hand. Hence, to "guard against" this condition, declarer decided to enter dummy with a heart and take the diamond finesse. If it worked he could run the entire diamond suit. West, however, had the diamond king, and after winning with that card he exited with a club—there must be some reason for South's failure to go out after the long suit in dummy! East won and returned a spade, and it was all over. Down one!

Declarer had not counted his potential tricks very accurately. Even if the diamond finesse had been on, five diamonds, two hearts, and one spade would not have totaled the necessary nine tricks. Thus, it was vital to establish the clubs, and moreover, there were two separate chances that that plan would succeed; one, that the club ace would lie in West's hand, from which no further attack could be made in the spade suit; and the other chance was that if East had the club ace, the spade suit might be divided four-four, as it actually was.

HAMILTON BEATS NELSON FOR P. G. A. CROWN

ALL-STAR PASS ATTACK CLICKS IN SCRIMMAGE

Hillenbrand, Dobbs Toss for Scores.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

[ALL-STAR BOSTER ON NEXT PAGE.]

Lt. Glenn Dobbs of Tulsa and Lt. Bill Hillenbrand of Indiana, two of the finest half backs of the 1942 intercollegiate football season, yesterday threw touchdown passes as the All-Stars took their midterm examination on Northwestern university's practice field for the game with the Chicago Bears in Dyche stadium Aug. 30.

Dobbs' blue shirted team, after a scoreless tie with the Whites, whipped the Reds, 7 to 0. Hillenbrand, Corwin Clatt of Notre Dame, and Lou Saban and Chuck Jacoby of Indiana comprised the Reds' backfield. The Reds continued in the third of the round robin practice games to win, 7 to 0, from the White eleven which had opened the drill in the scoreless tie.

Despite the success of the air attack and subsequent scoring in a fourth game which gave all members of the All-Star squad an opportunity to play, the results of the examinations conducted by Head Coach Lynn Waldorf and his staff were unsatisfactory. Blocking was erratic and no team was able to make continuous progress on the ground. Yesterday morning's games, however, did furnish opportunity for the coaches to grade their material. This week the varsity will be given major attention as plans for attack and defense are completed for the 11th All-Star game.

Dobbs, Layden Launch Attack.

The intrasquad games, after six days of double drills, found the squad leg weary. The afternoon holiday was used by some of the men to rest. Others attended the Cubs' double header with the Giants in Wrigley field. Class room work will be resumed this morning but Coach Waldorf indicated that the practice schedule will depend now on the condition of the squad. Night practice may be inaugurated this week and the All-Star quarter backs also will begin their special lessons.

Dobbs and Pete Layden, Texas full back, finally got the Blues' attack moving in their second game. After Dobbs had slashed off tackle to advance to the Reds' 38 yard line, he passed to Layden for the touchdown. George Hecht, Alabama guard, kicked the point. Lineups of the Blues-Reds game follow:

BLUES [7].		REDS [0].
Grefe, Franklin	L. E.	Wooten, Oklahoma
Willis, Ohio State	L. T.	Johnson, Kentucky
Barwegen, Purdue	L. G.	Jabbusch, O. State

Keuper, Georgia	Q. B.	Saban, Indiana
Dobbs, Tulsa	L. H.	Hillenbrand, Ind.
Trippi, Georgia	R. H.	Jacoby, Indiana
Layden, Texas	F. B.	Clatt, Notre Dame

Touchdown—Layden. Point after touchdown—Hecht.

Hillenbrand's team started moving in the early part of the battle with the Whites and a pass by the Hoosier star to John Yonakor of Notre Dame reached the Whites' 29 yard line. Another pass, on second down, was intercepted by Meredith Cushing, center from Cornell, but he was downed on his own 6 yard line. The Reds' line held and Hillenbrand took a punt in midfield and returned 10 yards to the Whites' 40.

Clatt punched the line and Hillenbrand went around right end for a first down. Bill then passed to Jacoby for the touchdown and Saban place kicked the point. Lineups follow:

Touchdown—Jacoby. Point after touchdown—Saban.

Three All-Stars Injured.

Paul Sarringhaus of Ohio State and Jim Dewar of Indiana were the half backs on the White team in the first game and later were replaced by Ruman and Ford. Dewar retired after bumping his injured knee while Sarringhaus also went to the sidelines with a turned ankle. Neither injury is serious. J. C. Coffee, Indiana guard, hurt his right shoulder on a tackle in the final game. An X-ray will be made today.

Before they left the lineup, Sarringhaus had tossed a 23 yard pass to Dewar and he had gained 16 yards on an off tackle drive on the play on which he suffered an injured ankle.

HEADING FOR THE WIDE OPEN SPACES

Half Back Paul Sarringhaus from Ohio State, a star on the Buckeye Western conference championship team of 1942, leads the way for Bill Reinhard of the University of California on a sweep around right end in yesterday's All-Star intrasquad scrimmage. Driving in at the right in an attempt to stop the charge is Tackle Bill Aldworth of Minnesota. Sarringhaus turned an ankle later in the scrimmage, but the injury is not regarded as serious. He is expected to be ready to play against the Bears Aug. 30.

GOLFERS START TAM O'SHANTER TOURNEY TODAY

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

A total purse of $42,500 in war bonds and seven days of concentrated activity by golf's outstanding professionals, amateurs and women players—that is the program opening today at the Tam o' Shanter Country club, Howard st. and Caldwell av., where George S. May will present his 4th All-American tournaments. The prize list is the largest ever offered in a fairway competition, and the entry will more than double the 1941 inaugural tourney's 300. Admission will be 83 cents, plus tax.

Extend Amateur Play.

Altho the tournament proper, a 72 hole medal play test in open, amateur, and women's divisions, will not begin officially until Thursday, the schedule for today, tomorrow, and Wednesday calls for as many preliminary swings as the district ever has seen. The amateur field is so huge that officials extended the 18 hole qualifying round in that section to tomorrow morning, with the first starters teeing off at 6 a. m. The amateurs will be playing for 24 places in the main event.

Pros Qualify Wednesday.

Following the completion of the amateur test tomorrow, the women entrants will have at Tam o' Shanter's acreage in a search for the 24 berths awarded to them in the big show that will continue from Thursday thru Sunday. Wednesday's program will be devoted to an 18 hole trial for those professionals who have not been exempt from the preliminaries by reason of past championship performances. These and the 24 amateurs and 24 women will then join the exempt players in Thursday's first 18 hole round.

Byron Nelson of Toledo and Harold [Jug] McSpaden of Philadelphia, the two professionals who have paced the 1944 money winners, are rated co-favorites not only because of this year's deeds, but also because of the fact that they have accounted for the first three All-American Open titles.

BANGALORE TOO AND ARDELLE WIN IN ORR REGATTA

Bangalore Too, owned by Ted Lumbard and John Kinsey, and Ardelle, Jack Vilas Jr.'s entry, both Chicago Yacht club craft, were major winners in the Columbia Yacht club's annual George Orr Memorial regatta yesterday off Chicago harbor. Bangalore Too, a 44 foot cruising yawl, won the cruising time prize, covering the 12 mile triangular course in a corrected time of 1:35:24. Ardelle, an R class sloop, won the Universal division on a corrected time of 1:19:59 over the same course. A fleet of 74 sailing craft competed.

Miss Curtis Takes Fourth Swim Crown

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 20 (AP).—Ann Curtis of San Francisco today became the only woman swimmer to win all four free style titles in a women's national championship meet.

Ann Curtis.

She easily outdistanced Florence Schmitt of New York City in her final test, the 800 meters, in 11:29.5 at the National A. A. U. contests today.

Miss Curtis began her march to new swimming heights Friday when she beat Brenda Helser, from Portland, Ore., in the 100 meter. She followed that triumph by taking the 1500 meter title. Saturday she added a third crown in a defense of her own championship in the 400 meter.

Jeanne Wilson Second.

Mrs. Jane Dillard Kittleson, Fort Worth, Tex., won the 100 meter breast stroke for the third straight year. She won by three yards over Jeanne Wilson of the Lake Shore A. C., Chicago, in 1:25.3. Nancy Merki, Portland, Ore., was third.

Multnomah Athletic club of Portland, Ore., waited until the last of the 11 event program to break the only record of the three day meet. Their medley relay team set a new mark for the 300 meters of 3:58.8.

Riviera Wins Team Title.

The Multnomah victory in the medley gave them second place with 28 points in the team totals behind the Riviera club, overwhelming winner of group honors with 43 points.

Anne Ross, representing the Brooklyn St. George club, took down her third straight three meter spring board diving championship.

BERGER WINS ROUND ROBIN BOWLING TITLE

Carl Berger, member of the Gold Crown team of the Randolph league, won the third annual Masters' round robin bowling tournament by defeating Joe Sinke of the Meister Braus of the Classic league, in the event's final last night in Dearborn-Jackson recreation.

Berger won the first three games of their four game set and outscored Sinke, 813 to 774, totaling 19.13 points to 16.24 for Sinke, the match being scored by the Petersen point system.

Berger becomes the third Masters' champion in three years, succeeding Sinke and Russ Creamer. Scores:

Berger	190	201	212	210—813	19.13
Sinke	183	190	179	222—774	16.24

BULLDOG TURNER BUSIEST MAN IN BEAR PRACTICES

BY EDWARD PRELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Collegeville, Ind., Aug. 20.—A stranger watching Clyde [Bulldog] Turner during a practice session would quickly wonder if the Chicago Bears were made up of a half dozen or more Turners. The blond giant from Texas perhaps is the busiest athlete on the field as the professional champions prepare here for their College All-Star assignment the night of Aug. 30 in Evanston.

At the beginning of a workout, Turner will be at his rightful position at center. Then it would take a Sherlock Holmes to follow his movements. He pops up at the other line spots and sooner or later he'll be running plays from half back and full back. He knows the assignments of every position and his trigger quick mind instantly discovers the slightest mistakes which are being made.

Called Excellent Coaching Prospect.

"Bulldog is the best prospect for a coach I have seen in 10 years." was the recent tribute expressed by co-Coach Hunk Anderson, who isn't a fellow who tosses around athletic trade lasts.

"He has a keen football mind," is the recommendation of Carl Brumbaugh, assistant coach. "He's one of those rare fellows who can visualize what each player is supposed to do."

The Bulldog works out at the various positions as part of his conditioning program. He spurns the standing time linemen sometimes have during practice periods. Turner, who has had four brilliant campaigns with the Bears, is only 25. He was graduated from Hardin-Simmons at 20 and credits this to his mother's instruction. She was a school teacher. Last year when Bear linemen were scarce, Turner filled in at guard and tackle. This season he probably will do likewise.

Bears Review Running Game

Today the Bears, beginning their last full week of training at St. Joseph's college, were sent thru all their running plays with the four quarter backs alternating at calling the plays.

This program will continue, plus the same treatment on passing, tomorrow and Tuesday in preparation for Wednesday's scrimmage. Everything is keyed to this second and last intracamp battle. It will determine how well the players—there are 19 new ones—have assimilated the lessons they have been taught on the gridiron and in the class room.

Players Will Be Ready.

"We'll be ready for the All-Stars," said George Wilson, the veteran end, and this statement mirrors the attitude of the players.

After Wednesday's scrimmage, the process of polishing all plays will be started.

CUBS WIN, 7-4, THEN LOSE, 3-1, BEFORE 42,445

Giants End 13 Game Reversal Streak.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs spread 'sufficient destruction yesterday to extend the losing streak of Mel Ott's Giants to 13 games, their longest retreat since 1902, but the New Yorkers took care of themselves thereafter. Their woes piled up when the Cubs, beneficiaries of a four run homer by Len Merullo, dissolved them by 7 to 4 in the first act of a double header. Then the visiting athletes busied themselves behind Bill Voiselle for a 3 to 1 decision before 41,445 paying guests and 1,000 service men, representing the largest Wrigley field turnout of the season.

Except for knocking out Hy Vandenberg and forcing Claude Passeau to assume a rescue job in the eighth inning, the Giants didn't do much to ease their agonies in the first game. They even helped the Cubs along by bunching two errors in the fourth inning when Harry Feldman was having troubles enough of his own. The net of this enjoyable disturbance was a cluster of five runs, four on Merullo's first home run of the year. Feldman experienced another bumpy ride in the fifth, two scoring, and then was seen no more.

Voiselle Puzzles Cubs.

There wasn't much the Cubs could do about protecting their interests in the second battle. Thanks to Joe Medwick prolonging a hitting streak that he developed in the previous argument, the Giants took an early lead against Japhet Lynn and Voiselle seemed so pleased about this that he didn't care to be delayed. He ran off the first eight innings of his performance on a yield of three safeties and his 15th victory wasn't removed from the shutout class until the ninth when the Cubs dispatched a pair of hits with none out. However, Bill induced them to subside quickly.

The Giants took a 2 to 0 lead in the first game because of a pass, two singles, and an error by Merullo, but this didn't look like much after the enemy fielders had assisted the Cubs in the assault on Feldman in the fourth. Kerr started it by throwing wild on Johnson's roller and Cavarretta enlarged the opening by singling Johnson to third. He scored on Nicholson's force of Cavarretta, after which Goodman walked and was survived at second when Hausmann dropped Kerr's throw of Novikoff's tap. This filled the bags and Merullo promptly cleaned up with his homer into the left field seats.

Passeau to the Rescue.

It didn't take the Cubs long to pick up a couple more runs for a 7 to 2 lead in the sixth. Singles by Merullo, Holm, and Vandenberg and Hack's fly did the trick. This pair of runs proved doubly comforting when the Giants took off after Vandenberg in the eighth. It began with a pass to Kerr and double by Medwick. Lombardi singled them home. Reyes walked and as nobody had been retired, Boss Grimm decided to find some help for Vandenberg. Passeau provided it by setting down the next three batters.

The second game took an unfavorable turn for Lynn as soon as he had retired the first batter. Hausmann doubled to right and rode in on Medwick's fifth hit of the show. The same pair had a hand in the third inning run. Treadway singled and was forced by Hausmann, who went to second on Kerr's infield out and scored on Medwick's looping single into short center. The Giants' run in the seventh was by courtesy of Goodman, subbing for the injured Andy Pafko. Goodman misjudged Voiselle's fly into a two bagger to score Mancuso, who had walked.

Schuster Hits Pinch Double.

The little affair engineered by the Cubs in the ninth began with Bill Schuster doubling for Lynn and scoring on a single by Hack before an out was recorded. But Johnson and Cavarretta flied to Medwick and Nicholson completed a painful afternoon for himself by flying deep to Treadway.

Ft. Custer Drops Warrior Nine from Softball Meet

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 20 [Special].—Scoring eight runs in the first inning, Fort Custer advanced to the sixth service command's elimination softball tournament finals by trouncing Camp Grant, 11 to 3, to sweep its two-out-of-three semi-final series against the northern Illinois champions today.

Sox Win, 3-2; Then Lose to Athletics, 8-3

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 20.—The White Sox nosed out the Athletics, 3 to 2, this afternoon in the first game of a double header in which they made two runs in the eighth inning, the second on an infield error with two out. But their good fortune in the opener failed to inspire them against old Luke Hamlin in the second game, which they dropped, 8 to 3, after Guy Curtright had started them off with a two run homer in the third inning for the first runs of the game.

The split was witnessed by 19,683.

Dramatic Scene.

The first game, Joe Haynes' third of the season and his first as a starting pitcher, was an oddity for the archives, with the climax coming in the sixth inning when the infield fly rule, complicated by an error, base runners going in every direction and fielders throwing the ball every place they saw a player standing with a glove on his hand, precipitated a dramatic scene of befuddlement rarely approached in a major league park.

The second game was another dose of Luke [Hot Potato] Hamlin, who has won five games this year, three of them over the White Sox. As an indication of how allergic the Sox are to old Luke, it may be said that the panic today spread to Ed Lopat, the losing pitcher, and Jake Wade, his reliever. In successive innings Hamlin was walked three times, once by Lopat and twice by Wade.

Hodgin Opens Scoring.

Hodgin opened the second inning of the first game with a single, took second on Trosky's out and third on a passed ball. He scored on Tucker's single to right.

The game went completely screwy in the home sixth. Hayes singled off Hodgin's glove and moved up on Siebert's sacrifice. McGhee walked and Kell singled to left, loading the bases. Busch sent an infield fly

Victory Night.

I've heard many a one in recent days
Announce with eager delight
Exactly the way they have in mind
To celebrate Victory night.
A night of nights it will surely be
For each woman, man, and child,
When delirious joy without alloy
Will run rampant and wild.

No, I couldn't relate all the gala fetes
For observing this yearned-for day,
And we're hoping, of course, that this gladsome hour
Is not very far away;
But of all the exciting plans I've heard
For this celebration rare,
I've heard only a few say the first thing they'll do
Will be to kneel down and offer a prayer.

Too Little or Too Much.

I've found out that I always flunk,
No matter what I try to do,
If I bite off a bigger chunk
Than I can chew.

But when I take a tiny bite
I'm pretty sure to find before
I've chewed it very long I might Have masticated more.

And so it goes. I always make
One blunder or the other. Such Infernal luck! I always take
Too little or too much.

INDIANA STAR UPSETS TOLEDO FAVORITE, 1 UP

Hoosier Takes 34th for Final Edge.

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 20 (AP).—Bob Hamilton of Evansville, Ind., defeated Byron Nelson of Toledo, O., 1 up, in 36 holes today to win the 1944 P. G. A. championship in the most spectacular upset in the history of the tournament.

Bob Hamilton.

The reversal that saw Nelson, a 10 to 1 favorite as they teed off over the Manito course this morning, beaten by such a newcomer was the most surprising since the big links events exclusively for the professionals was founded in 1916. Hamilton was playing in the meet for the first time.

Nelson 30 Under for 196 Holes.

Hamilton's feat assumes added stature in view of the fact that Nelson played 196 holes in 30 under par during the seven day competition. However, he contributed heavily to his own defeat today. He threeputted the 9th, 16th, and 29th holes to lose those three. In addition, he continually missed others on the green which he usually taps in without difficulty when at peak form.

Nelson took a one hole lead at the fourth but Hamilton squared the count at the ninth. Nelson jumped to the front again at the 14th but Hamilton came back and after they had halved three in a row evened matters once more at the 18th.

Nelson Behind for First Time.

He won the 19th hole with a birdie 3 and this was the first time in the tournament that Nelson had been down to an opponent. He never got into the lead again, and twice Hamilton held a 2 up advantage, at the 23d and the 29th.

Nelson, battling for his second title, evened the contest at the 33d but Hamilton came back with a winner on the 34th. They halved the next two and when Hamilton sent the ball spinning into the cup on the final green the crowd of more than 7,000 gave a tremendous ovation to the new champion.

Each Birdies Thirty-Sixth.

The 36th provided a tingling windup to the tournament as the two rivals posted birdie 3s on the 300 yarder. Nelson's drive landed in heavy grass short of the green, leaving him with a downhill lie and a hill to pitch over. He dropped the ball on the green 12 feet from the pin. Hamilton, meanwhile, had driven nearly to the edge of the green. After much deliberation—he played every shot slowly—he chipped up to about 20 inches past the cup. Nelson stepped up and sank his putt. Hamilton took his stance, putted quickly for the first time and the match was over. He won $3,500 with that putt. Nelson pocketed $1,500. The cards:

Bucky's 4th Hit in 12th Decides Opener.

Cincinnati, O., Aug. 20 (AP).—Cincinnati and Philadelphia exchanged honors in a double header today, the Reds taking the first game, 2 to 1, as Bucky Walters recorded his 18th victory of the year, his base hit driving in the winning run in the 12th. The Phillies, behind the five hit pitching by Charley Schanz, grabbed the final, 4 to 1.

WOMEN IN V. F. W. TO BE PROPOSED AT CONVENTION

Three Day Sessions Will Open Tomorrow.

A new issue — should WACs and other women serving overseas be admitted to membership in the Veterans of Foreign Wars? — is among the controversies to be threshed out during the three day national V. F. W. convention opening tomorrow in the Morrison hotel.

Since it was founded a year after the war with Spain, the Veterans of Foreign Wars has been strictly stag, with nurses who went overseas in World War I. eligible only for the ladies auxiliary. Resolutions proposing equal rights for women will be introduced this week from several states, reflecting the work of the WACs and also the competition between veterans' organizations to get the following of the millions of men now on foreign service.

Another Group Proposed.

Massachusetts delegates will submit a proposal that women with overseas military records be grouped into a men excluded subsidiary. Nebraska and Kansas state conventions went on record as holding that the question of co-educationalism should be deferred until after World War II.

The 45th annual V. F. W. encampment will consider proposals that overseas veterans be given special discharge priorities, tax waivers on incomes of less than $5,000 a year, representation at peace conferences, and additional pay for combat service.

Other Resolutions Coming Up.

The delegates also will debate resolutions to suspend immigration, put conscientious objector camps under military supervision, protest alleged coddling of prisoners of war, deport enemy aliens, and provide for the post-war maintenance of an army, navy, and air force with a minimum personnel of 3,000,000 men.

The soldier dead of this and previous wars will be eulogized at a memorial service in the Chicago Temple, 77 W. Washington st., at 8 o'clock tonight. Carl J. Schoeninger of Detroit is commander in chief of the V. F. W.

Algonquin Circus

Snake charmer and his assistant at Camp Algonquin circus yesterday.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

The trained dog and his master at camp circus.

Imagination and enthusiasm outranked realism yesterday at the annual Camp Algonquin circus when the 210 tanned little campers turned into clowns, hula dancers, Indians, snake charmers, and elephants to stage a one ring performance.

What did it matter that Little Egypt was a winsome lass of 6, or that the bare back riders were minus spangles, or that the bull got up and walked away before the matador finished his act?

The big top was a grassy plot of ground at Camp Algonquin, on the Fox river, 40 miles northwest of Chicago, where underprivileged youngsters enjoy two weeks out of doors. The camp, sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., and the generosity of TRIBUNE readers, is operated by United Charities.

Thirty mothers, also guests of the camp, took part in the shows and dressed in costumes. Every one visited the fortune wheel, saw Hitler in captivity, and got excited over the turtle race. The turtles, by the way, were captured especially for the race from the Fox river.

Last year 1,500 Chicago children benefited from a vacation at Camp Algonquin and before the camp closes this summer another 1,500 youngsters will have spent at least two weeks at the camp, according to Mrs. Astrid Save, who has been director for 23 years.

LEON SAMETINI, VIOLIN HEAD OF COLLEGE, DEAD

Leon Sametini, 58, of 44 Cedar st., head of the violin department of the Chicago Musical college, died in Grant hospital last night after a heart attack at his home earlier in the day. He was former soloist and concert master of the W-G-N concert orchestra.

Leon Sametini.

Sametini was born in Rotterdam, Holland, of Italian parents, and was known as the infant prodigy of the Netherlands. He was a protege of Queen Wilhelmina at the age of 15, and was presented by her on a concert tour of European cities. At 16, he was graduated from the conservatory at Prague and went to London.

He came to America about 40 years ago, and two years later joined the Chicago Musical college staff. He had appeared as soloist with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. He is survived by the widow, Augustine, and a son, Pvt. Robert L. Sametini of the army, stationed in Florida.

AFL MACHINISTS VOTE TO ALLOW OVERTIME WORK

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 20 [Special].—Members of lodge 68 of the AFL machinists' union, whose ban against overtime work led to government seizure this week of 104 machine shops in the San Francisco area, voted today to retain the ban with an understanding that members may nevertheless work any hours they desire without fear of union discipline.

Rear Adm. Harold G. Bowen, who is operating the shops for the navy, said after being informed of the union action that the shops will not be returned to their private operators until the navy is able to certify this would not handicap war production. He said Tuesday will be a deadline for imposing sanctions against workers refusing to accept the navy's work schedule.

Threatened sanctions include denial of availability certificates for employment, cancellation of occupational draft deferments, and denial of supplementary gasoline rations. The overtime ban, to which the national war labor board objected, prohibited union members from working more than 8 hours in a day and 48 hours in a week.

THREE BOYS FLEE FENCED AREA OF TRAINING SCHOOL

Three boys escaped from the Illinois State Training school near St. Charles last night, Richard Eddy, managing officer, announced. Another boy had fled Saturday night. Eddy said the most recent escape was from the Wilson dairy farm, inside the fence, about 6 p. m.

The boys are Charles Spaulding, 16, of Rock Island, committed in May for larceny; John Shelton, 16, of route 2, Cobden, Union county, committed in March for molesting a child, and William Colbroth, 17, of New Burnside, Williamson county, committed in March for burglary. They fled thru tall corn adjacent to the school farm, Eddy said.

John Christakos, 17, of 6903 S. State st., who walked away from the honor cottage Saturday night, remained at large. He was committed in Aug., 1942, for auto larceny, war paroled a year later, and was recommitted in December, 1943, for violation of parole.

MRS. M'WHORTER DIES; LEADER OF A.O.H. AUXILIARY

Mrs. Mary F. McWhorter, 76, who in the early part of the 20th century was national president of the ladies' auxiliary of the Ancient Order of Hibernians and later of the Celtic Cross association, which sent money to Ireland to relieve suffering there, died Saturday at Cenacle convent, 513 Fullerton pkwy., where she had gone for a week-end retreat. She resided at 7226 Indiana av.

As president of the Hibernian auxiliary, Mrs. McWhorter campaigned against United States entry into the league of nations which, she said, would be "a tail to England's kite." At her death, she was president of the Hibernian Life Insurance association and county president of the auxiliary.

Services will be held at 10:30 a. m., Wednesday, in St. Columbanus' church. Surviving are the husband and two daughters,

500 PLAN TO JOIN 4,000 IN WALKOUT OVER WLB DELAY

Approximately 500 more war workers in Minneapolis and St. Paul, Minn., are expected to join the walkout of 4,000 sash and door workers in Illinois, Wisconsin, and Iowa—all members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America [AFL]—which was called a week ago. The strike was called in protest against the absence of a WLB ruling, sought in September, 1943, on the union's request for an increase in wages of approximately 33½ per cent.

As nine locals in the Twin Cities prepared to take a strike vote, joining Rock Island, Dubuque, and Clinton, Ia.; Wausau, Oshkosh, and Merrill, Wis., the WLB ordered all men back to their jobs. The wage controversy was expected to be discussed here today at the meeting of the executive committeee of the AFL in the Drake hotel.

Lt. R. N. Tolleson of the army air force said yesterday that a detail of soldiers from Camp Ellis has replaced the striking union workers at Rock Island. The soldiers, he said, are loading vitally needed supplies for the air forces, including wooden cradles for droppable fuel tanks for airplanes.

Hands Stranger a Note to Wife; Dies of Poisoning

At 53d st. and Hyde Park blvd. yesterday, Hugh Miller, 29, a chemist for the Sherwin-Williams company, handed a stranger a note which read: "Notify my wife, Mrs. Lillian G. Miller, 5464 Harper av." Then he collapsed and died of cyanide poisoning. Mrs. Miller told Detective Frank Cassidy of the Hyde Park station that her husband had been despondent over ill health and had threatened suicide.

DEATH NOTICES

In Memoriam

ANDERSON—Charles G. Anderson. In loving memory, on his birthday, of one who left me forever yet will remain with me always—my Dad.
Lonesome daughter, MYRTLE MILES.

CAROSELLI—Mary Caroselli, Aug. 20, 1943. In loving memory of my dear aunt.
NIECE LUCY.

HALBORSEN—Almar Halvorsen. In loving memory of my son, who passed away two years ago today, Cape Town, South Africa.
He bid no one a last farewell,
He said good-by to none;
His loving heart has ceased to beat,
Before we knew it, he was gone,
Sadly missed and silently borne.
MOTHER.

MARKS—Harry A. Marks. In loving memory of our dear husband and father, who passed away one year ago today.
BELOVED WIFE AND CHILDREN.

SCHUPOLSKY—Dorothy R. Schupolsky.
We mourn for her in silence,
No eyes can see us weep,
But many a silent tear is shed
While others are asleep.
Loving Mother, Brothers and Sisters.

TRADE POLICY OF RECIPROCITY HELD FAILURE

Imports Rise, but Exports Fall.

Reciprocal trade agreements have failed and offer "no basis for solution of our post-war international economic problems," Dr. John Lee Coulter, economic consultant and former member of the United States tariff commission, said in a statement released by the American Tariff league yesterday.

Not only has the trade agreement policy failed to achieve any of its purposes, he said, but it has cost the country between 200 and 300 million dollars annually in revenues.

Hailed as Cure-All.

"Ten years ago the reciprocal trade agreements act was hailed as a measure to provide employment, stimulate exports, create good will, preserve peace thruout the world, and solve all the economic ills of society," he said. "Objective study now discloses that, far from accomplishing these purposes, the agreements resulted in just the opposite."

Exports were to be promoted to increase industrial employment at home, he said. However, dollar value of exports in the 1935-'39 period was only 60 per cent of the 1925-'29 period before the act's enactment.

Imports, tho, were stimulated. Volume of imports in the 1935-'39 period was almost the same as in the prosperity period of 1925-'29. Imports in 1937 were equal to or larger than any year in United States history, including 1929.

Depend on Customs Income.

Altho the federal government effected tariff reductions on more than 1,000 import items, foreign countries depend far more on customs duties for revenue than the United States. Less than 10 per cent of the United States' normal revenue comes from tariffs, compared with a foreign average of nearly 25 per cent.

Foreign countries "are pleased to see us open our American markets to their exports," Coulter said, and added: "Great harm may result if the American market is made a dumping ground for the products of foreign agriculture and labor with incomparably lower wages and living standards."

LAKE SHIPS SET RECORD IN JULY FREIGHT TRAFFIC

Cleveland, O., Aug. 20 [Special].—Great Lakes bulk freight shipping records were surpassed for the fourth straight month in July when the fleet hauled 22,857,436 net tons of ore, coal, and grain, the Lake Carriers' association said today.

Vessels hauled 14,458,049 tons of ore, 1,481,549 tons of grain, and 6,917,938 tons of bituminous coal to pass the old July record, established in 1942, by approximately 750,000 tons. The coal movement was the largest ever carried in July.

Cumulative shipments of the three major commodities for April 1 to Aug. 1 follow [000 omitted]:

	1944.	1943.	1942.
Coal	27,153	20,048	22,493
Grain	7,337	4,357	3,774
Totals	81,831	67,394	78,420

INTERCORPORATE GIFTS.

I notice occasional references to large capital donations made or proposed to be made by public utility holding companies to subsidiaries. What is the background of these transactions? F. J.

Answer: Usually such donations are made or proposed in connection with corporate simplification proceedings or refinancing proposals under the supervision of the securities and exchange commission.

One example was the refinancing of Florida Power and Light company last January, under a plan which included transfers to the company of substantial amounts of its securities previously owned by the parent American Power and Light company. The SEC in 1941 had charged that there was an overstatement of $40,065,995 in Florida Power plant and investment accounts.

American Power surrendered 17 million dollars of the subsidiary's debentures as a capital contribution to the latter and similarly donated 43,447 shares of Florida Power's preferred stock for retirement. American Power holds all the common stock.

The trustees of Associated Gas and Electric corporation recently proposed a 4 million dollar cash capital contribution by that company to NY PA NJ Utilities company as part of a plan to eliminate or reduce the obstacles to an upward flow of dividends from this subsidiary to the parent.

A 44 million dollar capital contribution which Electric Power and Light corporation proposes to make to the controled United Gas corporation is intended to facilitate the latter's recapitalization program.

WORLD'S LABOR BARRIERS EASED, SAYS AFL CHIEF

Washington, D. C., Aug. 20 (AP).—President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, speaking on the 10th anniversary of United States membership in the International Labor Organization, said today the war has removed old barriers to international coöperation and will spur the work of the ILO thruout the world.

"Until now the ILO has been forced to function in an international atmosphere of suspicion, distrust, and hesitancy," he said in an address prepared for a three-way broadcast with Labor Secretary Perkins in New York and Henry I. Harriman, ILO employer representative for the United States, in Boston, Mass.

Secretary Perkins said that as the end of military action in the war appears, "we can be glad that the ILO has—with our help—emerged whole and strong." Harriman said that in solving the problems of peace "it is the function of the ILO to suggest to the United Nations an outline of the economic and social measures which will lead to an expanding economy with full employment, a high standard of living, and stable relations between workers and employers."

Showgirl Steps in 'Cab'; Beaten, Robbed by Two

Emerging from the Melody club, 1260 N. Clark st., Mrs. Alma Lauer, 39, a showgirl who lives at 1447 N. Dearborn st., stepped into a dark colored coupe she thought was a taxicab, she told Hudson Avenue police yesterday. Another "passenger" slid into the seat beside her, she said, and with the aid of the driver beat her and robbed her of $6, a diamond wristwatch worth $500, and her wedding ring valued at $50 before letting her out four blocks from the club.

Jewel Tea Co. Retail Volume at Record High

Jewel Tea company had larger sales and profits in the 28 weeks ended July 15 as a result of "a substantial increase in income from manufacturing activities and store operations," F. J. Lunding, president, told stockholders yesterday.

Retail sales reached an all-time peak at $29,517,922, compared with $28,327,988 a year earlier, Lunding said, and increased despite the operation of 15 fewer direct-to-consumer routes.

Profits Top $600,000.

Profits rose to $604,173, equal to 88 cents a share against $457,053, or 62 cents a share. Net income in each period was after provisions of $100,000 for contingencies and inventory valuation.

Substantial savings were made in "handling ration stamps" with the removal of many items from the ration list, he said. Higher expenses were involved in maintaining trucks in operating condition.

More coffee was sold on routes than a year ago as the result of its removal from ration lists, but sales remain below normal, he said.

Shortage of labor has been "the most serious problem," he said, and women have played "an important part in keeping the business in full operation." Women are operating 563 routes, managing 29 grocery departments in the stores, and 37 are working in meat markets.

U. S. Plywood Reports Gains.

Increased sales and larger net income for the fiscal year ended April 30 were reported by the United States Plywood corporation. Sales set a record at $20,563,000, a gain of $1,493,000 over the preceding year. Net income also reached a new high at $913,741 before renegotiation of war contracts, compared with $757,406 the year before after a renegotiation settlement of $57,000 paid to the government.

Refund to the company of part of this payment is being sought, based on an amendment to the renegotiation act adopted in 1944, Lawrence Ottinger, president and founder of the company, said in the annual report.

Net earnings reported by corporations yesterday follow:

Twenty-eight Weeks Ended July 15.	1944.	1943.
Jewel Tea	$ 604,173	$ 457,053
Per share	.88	.62
Six Months Ended June 30.
Am Smelt & Refn	4,223,966	5,742,540

SET SEPTEMBER OIL PRODUCTION AT RECORD RATE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 20 (AP).—The petroleum administration for war today authorized production of oil in September at the rate of 5,051,000 barrels daily, the highest output rate ever certified to the various oil producing states.

The September certification, a net increase of 105,900 barrels daily over the August rate, also is the first to exceed 5 million barrels a day, PAW said. The rate authorized for midwestern states is 976,400 barrels, an increase of 11,600 barrels attributable to recently discovered reserves in Oklahoma and Kentucky.

California's production rate was increased 19,600 barrels a day to 936,700, with most of the increase to come from developed reserves. For the southwestern states the new rate is 2,931,400 barrels daily, an increase of 71,400 barrels, of which Texas is called on for 66,000.

"The urgency of military requirements has made it necessary to certify a rate for production for California and Texas which may well result in exceeding the maximum efficient rates of production for some fields in these states," said Deputy PAW Administrator Ralph K. Davies.

OPA INCREASES CANNERS' PRICE CEILING ON PEAS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 20 (AP).—Price ceiling increases for processors of the 1944 pack of canned peas were announced today by the OPA. Retail ceilings will be the same as last year, OPA said, since the added return to canners will be subsidized under the Commodity Credit corporation agreement intended to hold the price line on certain canned foods.

The new prices do not cover wholesalers and retailers, who establish their prices by fixed markups. The pricing formula for processors is the same as that recently announced for canned spinach, asparagus, and red sour pitted cherries.

The regulation provides specified amounts for each producing area, which may be added to the 1941 base prices of each processor. In addition, OPA has set upper and lower limits on the ceilings.

Buying of Steel Slackens on Thought War May End

Cleveland, O., Aug. 20 (AP).—The magazine Steel said today "increasingly definite indication that the European war is in its closing phases is bringing a pause in placing of steel orders for both near and remote delivery. Little change is apparent in pressure for delivery of tonnage already on books but consumers are not placing as much business as recently."

Bridge Refunding Bonds Offered by Bank Group

A banking syndicate headed by John Nuveen & Co. today will offer $4,150,000 of refunding bridge revenue bonds of Charleston county, S. C. The bonds, ranging from 2 to 2.4 per cent, were issued to retire outstanding serial 3½ per cent bonds authorized when the county acquired the bridge across the Cooper river.

BOSTON FUND ASSETS UP.

The Boston Fund, an investment trust, reported net assets at the end of July of $12,746,609, equal to $17.82 a share, compared with $10,917,565 a year earlier, equal to $15.91 a share.

People and Events

Dr. Orlan McGrew Arnold, former professor of chemistry at Rensselaer Polytechnic institute, has been employed by Chrysler corporation's engineering division to establish a new special laboratory for physical-chemistry research, Carl Breer, the company's director of research, announced yesterday. Dr. Arnold will experiment with the molecular structure of oil for improved lubrication; the molecular structure of paint, to make it stick better; and the refinement of insulation materials, textiles, and others.

Dr. Orlan Arnold.

Col. Walter F. Siegmund has been appointed general sales manager of Olin corporation, with headquarters at East Alton, Ill. Col. Siegmund recently was honorably retired from active duty in the army air forces. Before entering the army he was sales manager of Western Cartridge company, with which Olin corporation is affiliated.

Edward N. Wantz, a master mechanic, today will complete 45 years with the General Electric X-Ray corporation. Wantz, who is 63 years old, is a brother of J. B. Wantz, cofounder of the company, who is in his 50th year with the company.

Warns British Mines Will Be Modernized

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 20.—The reluctance of British mine workers to change to new and up to date methods of coal production to maintain output after the war was severely criticized in a statement prepared by F. A. Szarvasy, chairman of the Amalgamated Anthracite Collieries, Ltd., and distributed today with the 1943 annual report of the company. Szarvasy said the future tendency of the mining industry would be to produce more coal from fewer, centrally located, modern plants, rather than to continue operation of the present pits using old methods.

"We already have reduced the number of pits from which we produce coal and we intend to continue this program of concentration, altho not abandoning any workings from which we can produce at a reasonably low cost," his report said.

Report Findings Suppressed.

A group of American coal miners recently visited England to inspect mining operations. It is believed that their findings were highly critical of the antiquated methods still used by even the largest mining companies. Their report to other American miners on their findings in Britain was reported to have been suppressed by the state department, at the request of the British government.

According to Szarvasy's reasoning, it is not the companies who are to blame for the existing conditions, but rather the workers who view machines with suspicion and appear more interested in preserving their job security under the old operating system than in risking a reduction in the number of jobs thru new mining methods.

Would Gain in Long Run.

"It is rather tragic to contemplate that when the mine workers appear so anxious about their future security they should place so much faith in political propaganda, compared with the much safer road which is assured by diligent workmanship,"

CALL NELSON'S TRIP TO CHINA 'KICK IN TEETH'

Congressmen Suspect F. D. R.'s Motive.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 20 (AP).—Presidential conversion of Donald M. Nelson into an emissary to China for several months—just when he appeared to have won a round in his fight to get limited civilian production resumed—stirred surprised conjecture today among congressmen and others.

"It looks like a kick in the teeth," said one associate of the war production board chairman.

Speculation stemmed chiefly from President Roosevelt's specification that it would take Nelson and Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley "several months" to finish up their assignment of discussing military and economic problems with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

Called Critical Period.

Some of Nelson's associates called that time the critical period of his reconversion program and said they were positive that Nelson, until the White House announcement, last night, had believed his entire mission to China, including travel time, would be completed in about three weeks.

Most Democrats in congress withheld formal comment on the situation, but Sen. Wherry [R., Neb.] declared:

"If ever there was a time when we need a man of Mr. Nelson's experience, it is right here on the home front at this time."

Move Is Defended.

But Chairman Manasco [D., Ala.] of the house committee on expenditures, who has been directing house consideration of surplus property legislation, asserted:

"I don't think the shift in Nelson's work will have much effect on reconversion because we have just about completed arrangements for this job."

Sen. Wherry told reporters he thought Nelson's reconversion plans might be "stymied" in his absence, while Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] said:

"I can't imagine why Nelson is going to China just now when so many important decisions remain to be made at home."

Plans to Quiz Wilson.

Ferguson said he would ask the senate war investigating committee, of which he is a member, to call Charles E. Wilson, WPB executive vice chairman, for questioning as to his reconversion ideas.

Wilson, at the beginning, sided with the army, navy, and war man power commission in the view that Nelson's program to get some civilian goods making under way was premature.

Nelson put into effect last Tuesday an order allowing limited resumption in plants not needed for war, but the machinery thus provided had not been set in motion.

Some of Nelson's associates expressed the view that the White House action was double-barreled—giving a lift to China's morale and simultaneously removing the central figure of Washington's major current controversy, the Nelson vs. army dispute over how fast reconversion can proceed.

OUSTED OPA AID CALLS BOSS IN N. Y. A 'JOKE'

New York, Aug. 20 [Special].—Branding Regional Price Administrator Daniel P. Woolley a "joke," Adolph J. Chesley, discharged Bronx war price and rationing administrator, today declared the high paid personnel of OPA "are nothing but political appointees," adding "the real work in OPA is being done by local boards."

Chesley, president of the Bronx board of trade and a manufacturer, was discharged yesterday by Woolley, who said he had received complaints "from various labor leaders and consumer groups" that the Bronx price control program "has not been effective."

Asserting he would demand a hearing immediately of all charges against him, Chesley told newsmen "price control under Woolley is a joke. His regional office is nothing but a duplication of personnel squandering OPA budget money."

Chesley charged that Frank Russell, former district OPA director and friend of Democratic Leader Frank Kelly in Brooklyn, still "draws", a high salary out of OPA when no one knows what his duties are."

MARINE STAFF SEEKS MEN IN OFFICERS' JOBS

An appeal for men with 14 months' sea experience to take officer's training in the United States maritime service was made by Lt. R. T. Sexton, officer in charge of the 6th service area, yesterday.

"It makes no difference when this experience was gained, nor whether it was on merchant or naval vessels," Lt. Sexton said, "the important thing is that we fill the quotas with men who have the experience in either deck or engine departments."

Qualifying candidates are sworn into the service as acting chief petty officers. After completion of a four months' course at the officers' school in New London, Conn., graduates are commissioned as ensigns and licensed to sail as third assistant engineers or third mates. Applicants should apply to the United States maritime service, 844 Rush st. in Chicago, or 312 E. Wisconsin av. in Milwaukee, Wis.

15 OF TEXAS' 23 ELECTORS TO VOTE FOR BYRD

Houston, Tex., Aug. 20 (AP).—Fifteen of the 23 Presidential electors named by the Texas Democratic convention May 23 will not vote for President Roosevelt, John H. Crooker, Houston elector, asserted today.

Instead, he indicated in a statement to the Houston Post, they will cast their ballots for Sen. Byrd [D., Va.].

Instructions of the convention require the electors to vote for persons other than President Roosevelt and Vice Presidential nominee Truman.

The regular convention at Austin instructed delegates that unless the national convention seated them and met other requirements they were not to support the party's nominees. Delegates chosen by a "rump" pro-Roosevelt meeting also were seated at Chicago and Texas' votes divided equally between both factions.

Mississippi Revolt Fades.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 20 (AP).—An anti-fourth term threat by Mississippi's Democratic Presidential electors apparently had vanished today. Gov. Thomas L. Bailey, announcing he had contacted the electors by telephone, said "I am convinced Mississippi's nine electors will vote the Democratic ticket in the electoral college."

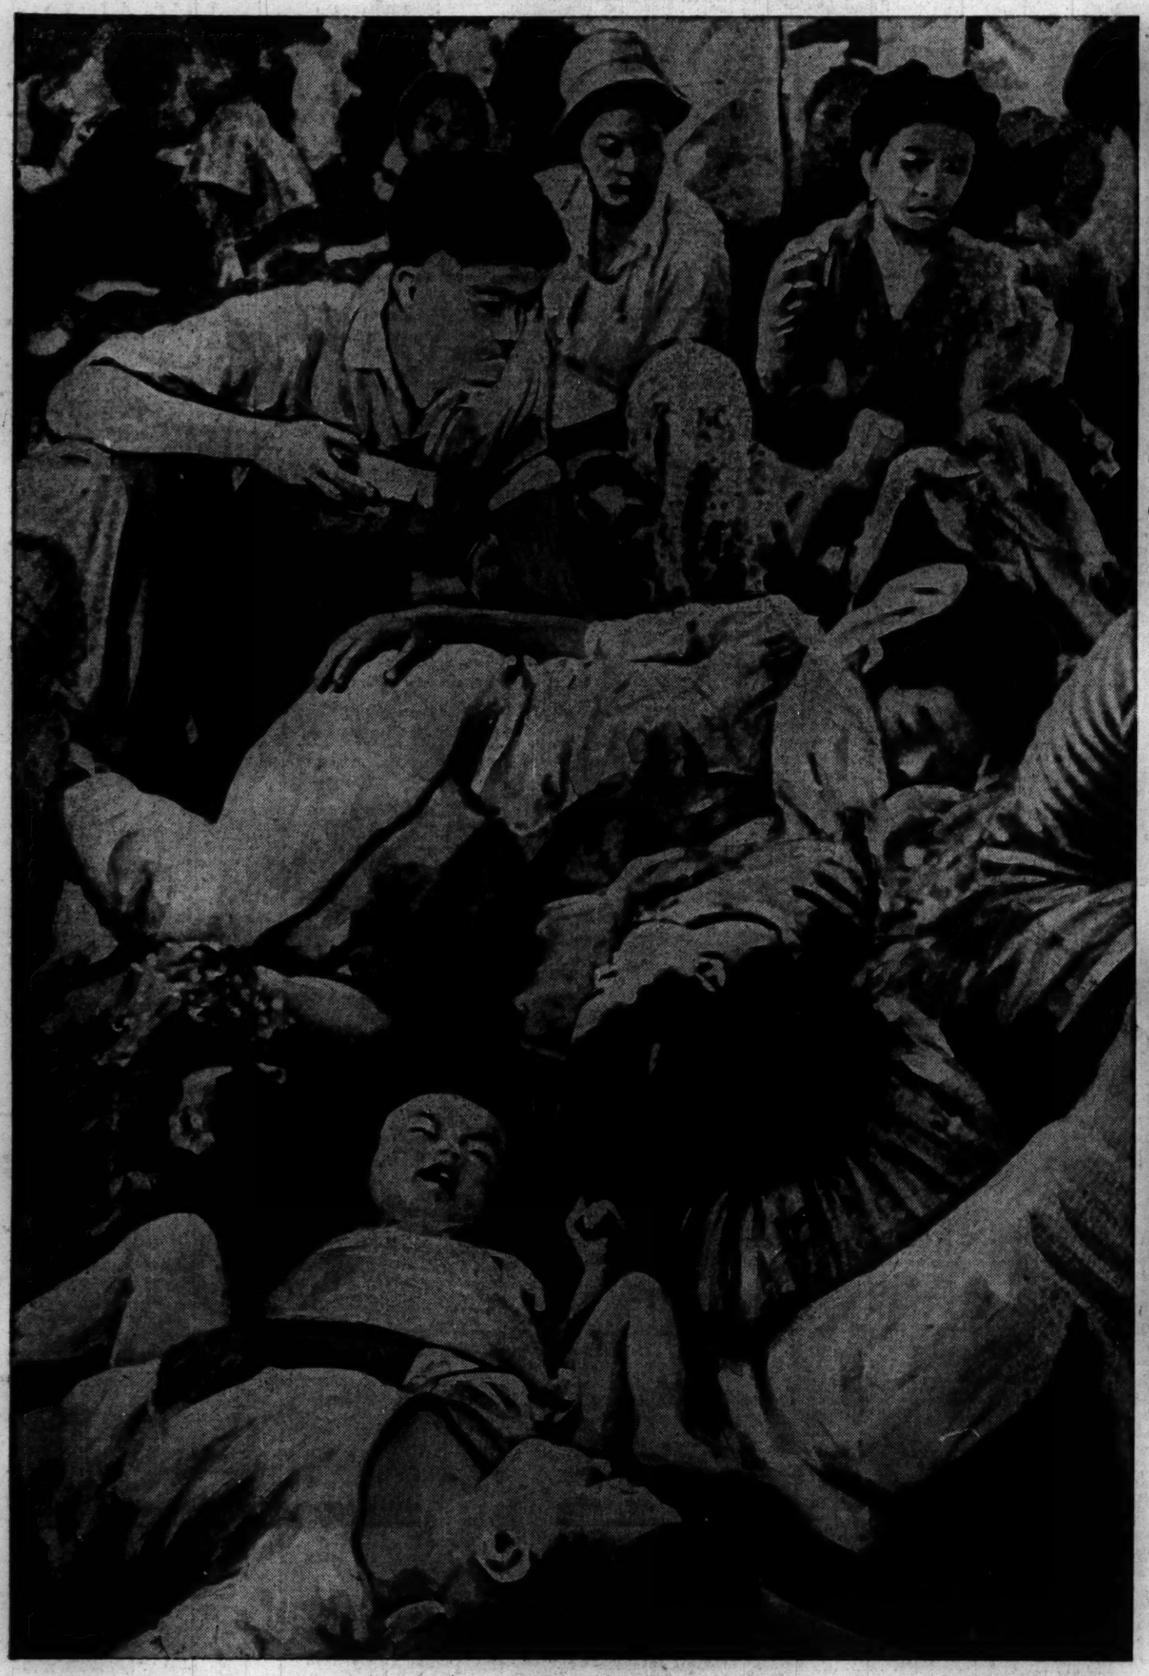
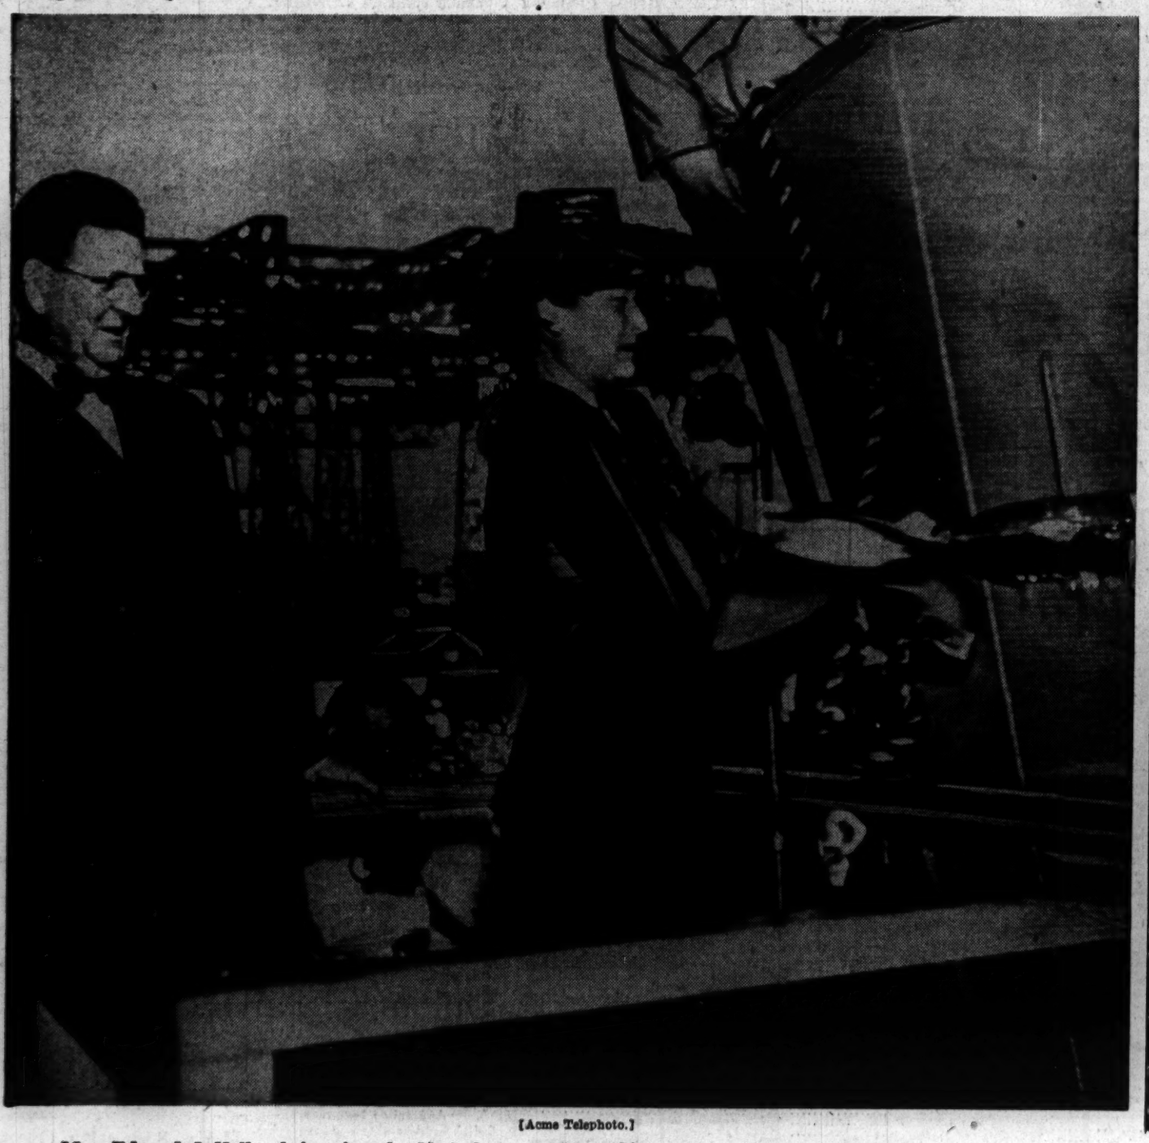
More Japanese Pictures of Conquest of Philippines—Mayor's Wife Christens Heavy Cruiser Chicago



Japanese text on this picture from booklet on conquest of Philippines describes the plight of these Filipino battle refugees as "inevitable," and continues: "Eventually thru the rescuing hand of the Imperial army, they are also able to greet the day of a new life."



[Acme Telephoto.]

Mrs. Edward J. Kelly christening the U. S. heavy cruiser Chicago yesterday at Philadelphia, Pa., as her husband, mayor of Chicago, looks on. The cruiser Los Angeles and aircraft carrier Antietam also were launched.

Jap text: "Machine gunner drinking reinforcing compound as he goes on bombing attack."

Jap caption on this picture said: "Elite troops which occupied Paranaque press their advance into Manila." Paranaque is four miles south of Philippine capital. Album from which pictures were taken was found when Gen. MacArthur captured Hollandia, Dutch New Guinea. The album was obtained by Arthur Veysey, Tribune correspondent.
